LOWELL SCOTS PARADE

Battle of Bannockburn Anniversary Observed — Sermon by Rev. S. A. Jackson

Lowell Scotchmen yesterday observed the anniversary of the famous battle of Bannockburn by a street parade and divine services at the Westminster church in Tyler street.

The parade was a most picturesque one and the notes of the bagpipes filled the air with a music comparatively uncommon here. The pipers were of the Clan Douglas of Haverhill and they were merry pipers, too. They were preceded by an American flag and a (after them came 200 brawny Scotchmen. The march started from the headquarters of Clan Grant, 141, in Merrimack street, and finished at the church in Tyler street.

The men made a fine appearance as they passed through Merrimack and Central streets. The stars and stripes were borne by James Wallace of Clan Grant. Next came the pipers in full Highland costume and behind, the pipers marched the members of the local clans, including Clan Grant and the Lowell Caledonian club, together with visiting clans from Lawrence, Haverhill, Andover and Wakefield.

Master James Johnson, Morris of Lowell, a very little lad, attracted a big share of attention. Dressed in full dress of kilts he marched beside his father and the people in the street cheered the fine little fellow.

At the church, a special program, appropriate to the occasion, had been prepared, including special music by the choir. In his sermon, Rev. S. A. Jackson paid tribute to the Scots who had won glory on the field of Bannockburn. In part, he said:

"There must have been a mighty display of heroism on that 24th of June

600 years ago, when Bruce's 20,000 men put to flight the greatest array of warriors that had ever marched out of England. But none of these circumstances are necessary as signs of a great conflict in the highest sense.

"One result of the battle was, that by his defeat, Edward II lost all control over England, though he kept the throne. Royalty was humbled, when the king was put on an allowance of £10 a day, by his own nobles. The English king, endeavored to prove, at Bannockburn, his divine right to rule an unwilling people, whose lawless king was still alive. The people proved, however, their divine right to freedom and to the choice of their own king and nationality.

"This battle was the Lord's because the victory did not go to the strongest army. God is not always on the side of the heaviest artillery (as Napoleon thought). Majorities do not always rule, though some people think they ought to. But might is not right and the right must rule whether it has a human majority of one million, or only one man to stand alone on the side of truth and righteousness. It isn't strange that (as the Bible puts it) 'one should chase a thousand and two put 10,000 to flight.' This has been the case in nearly all the moral and religious conflicts of the world. Israel's victory over mighty Egypt at the Red sea, the shepherd lad of Bethlehem smiting the Giant of Gath, Jonathan and his armor-bearer, defeating the garrison of the Philistines; Gideon's 300 putting to flight an army of Midianites like grasshoppers for multitude. Thus we find there is a power not in numbers, not in the arm of flesh nor in human wisdom which has won the victories of the moral world; it is the power of omnipotence, which saves 'not by might nor by power, but by my spirit,' saith the Lord."

CARRY LIFEBOATS FOR ALL

New Safety at Sea Measure, Reported to House, Follows Convention Recommendation

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The Alexander bill providing for the welfare and safety of passengers and seamen on inland and ocean steamships was reported to the house from the committee on merchant marine and fisheries, and stipulates that no vessel of the United States on an ocean route shall at any moment of its voyage carry more persons aboard than can be accommodated in lifeboats and life rafts.

The bill creates new requirements for able seamen, specifying that they may be nineteen years of age and have three years of sea service.

The bill has many marked differences from the bill on the same subject introduced by Senator La Follette and passed by the senate. The lifeboat provisions follow the recommendations of the London Convention on Safety of Life at Sea.

Lifeboat Best for Safety

"The committee is of the opinion,"

says the report, "that a lifeboat is the best form of safety device under favorable conditions, but it rarely happens that they can all be launched safely in the event of fire or shipwreck. The Titanic sank under favorable weather conditions, and time enough to launch them had elapsed to have made it entirely practicable to save all on board if sufficient lifeboats had been provided."

The committee reported that frequently rafts are more easily launched than boats.

The drastic provisions of the La Follette bill covering lifeboats for excursion steamers have been greatly modified in the house bill, which specifies that in the rush season lifeboats up to only 70 per cent. of the passengers need be carried. The report states that the great load of lifeboats demanded on this class of steamers in the La Follette bill would have rendered them topheavy.

In the season from May 15 to Sept.

15 vessels on ocean routes less than twenty miles off shore must carry lifeboat accommodations for passengers up to 70 per cent. of the total, and of this proportion one-half may be collapsible boats. This provision takes care of the large excursion steamers which could not possibly carry class one or class two boats for every passenger.

Less Boats in Rush Season

Ocean freighters must have lifeboat accommodations for everyone aboard. Great Lake boats more than three miles off shore must have lifeboats and rafts for everyone, but in the rush season from May 15 to Sept. 15 may have accommodations for 50 per cent. of which not less than three-fifths may be collapsible boats or rafts, subject to the approval of the board of supervision inspectors.

The bill establishes the grade of "certificated lifeboat man," who shall be familiar with everything connected with the use of lifeboats. It requires that for lifeboats or rafts carrying sixty-one persons there shall be three certificated lifeboat men, and running up to seven certificated men for lifeboats or rafts carrying from 160 to 210 persons, and thereafter one man to each additional fifty persons.

"TEA AND COFFEE"

are just as harmful to children as alcohol is to grown-ups," says Dr. Charlotte Abbey, superintendent of the Women's Directory, New York.

The reason why coffee and tea injure anybody is because these beverages contain the poisonous drug, caffeine, (from 1 1-2 to 3 grains to the cup), which physicians have long known affects the heart, stomach and liver.

Children especially, with their delicate nerves, are susceptible to the action of caffeine, and should never be allowed to have tea or coffee or any other beverage containing drugs.

Thousands of adults have found that their headaches, nervousness, indigestion and sleeplessness have vanished when a change was made from coffee and tea to

POSTUM

"THERE'S A REASON"

Postum contains no caffeine or any other injurious substance. Made from whole wheat and a small per cent. of molasses, it is a pure food-drink, having a delightful flavour, and containing the nutritive values of the grain. That's why it is good for both children and grown-ups.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder. Made in the cup with hot water. No boiling required. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

ARSENIC FOUND IN CANDY

CARELESS OR IGNORANT MANUFACTURERS FINED FOR LETTING IT FIND ITS WAY INTO PRODUCTS

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 22.—The accidental presence of arsenic in jelly, candy and chocolate and of lead in cream tartar, has caused one corporation to be fined $50 each for the shipment of such adulterated products in interstate commerce. In every case the arsenic and lead appear to have found their way into the products through either ignorance or carelessness on the part of the manufacturer.

In order to protect himself, as should have produced materials guaranteed by his vendor under the food and drugs act, thus shifting the responsibility from himself, or else made certain by personal investigation that they contained no injurious ingredients.

According to a recent announcement of the U. S. department of agriculture, the Williams Bros. Co., of Detroit, Mich., has been fined $100 for sending four brands of adulterated jelly into Missouri. One brand contained seven parts of arsenic per million. Two of the brands contained eight parts, and the fourth, 20 parts per million, which might render the jelly injurious to health.

The Catawba Candy Co., of Sandusky, Ohio, was also fined $50 and costs for sending into North Carolina and Illinois quantities of "Italian Cream," and "Sour Cream" a quantity of "Iced Squares" all of which contained arsenic in either the candy or coating, or both.

Leo Benjamin of New York City, according to the announcement, was fined $50 for shipping into Pennsylvania "Chocolate Crenolins," which contained arsenic. It also contained another mineral substance, a crude oxide of iron, which acted both as a color and a cocoa substitute. The label stated that "This Crenolin contains powdered cocoa, and a little harmless coloring."

NURSE SAYS COMFORT POWDER KEEPS BABY'S SKIN HEALTHY

Miss M. E. Joyce, Trained Nurse, Fall River, Mass., says: "Comfort Powder keeps baby's skin clean and healthy, with no sickening odors to suffocate the child as you get from perfumed powders. I would not be without Comfort Powder in the nursery on account of its antiseptic, soothing and healing qualities. Every mother should use it."

12 DROWNED IN CANAL

Passenger Launch Struck Stump and Capsized — Victims Mostly Women and Children

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 22.—Twelve persons, most of them women and children, were drowned in the Oswego canal, just south of Mud Lock, Onondaga lake, late last night, when a passenger launch plying between Mud Lock and Liverpool, struck a stump and capsized.

Among those known to have perished are Mrs. George H. Adams, three Adams children, Margaret, 4; Lillian, 2; and an infant, aged six months; John Mogg, an engineer, and a Miss Welsh. All were residents of Syracuse.

The body of Miss Welsh and an unidentified child were recovered a half hour after the fatality by a rescue party which was formed at Mud Lock, as soon as the first report of the tragedy reached there.

At least three men and one woman who were on the ill-fated launch, swam to safety on the banks of the canal, less than 50 feet away. Mrs. Lewis Daines, wife of the owner of the launch, succeeded in saving herself, but was in a serious condition at Mud Lock at midnight.

The tragedy occurred at 10:25 o'clock, less than 10 minutes after the launch had left the lock when the launch struck a stump. According to Lewis Daines, navigator of the launch, 10 passengers were aboard when he started on his trip through the canal to Liverpool.

"I had just started on my journey and was less than a quarter of a mile from the lock when the launch struck a stump," he said. "Before I knew what had happened, the boat had tipped over and everyone was thrown into the water."

"It all happened in a moment. I had life preservers aboard but there was no opportunity to rescue the women or children. It was everyone for himself in the darkness."

"I do not know how many went down, but I heard that four persons swam to the bank of the canal."

SALT WATER TO KILL PEST

Is Useless — Mosquito Life Thrives on the Salt

Refined Petroleum or Tar Oil Only Effective Remedies

LONDON, June 22.—Mosquitoes are fond of salt, and it is a waste of time and money to try to drive them away by putting salt in the pools and rain barrels where they breed. Such is the conclusion of Professor E. Halford Ross of the Lister Institute of Preventive Medicine.

The plan, he says, was given an extensive trial at Port Said, where the anti-mosquito campaign was started in 1906. There are large salt distilleries at Port Said, and the crude sea salt regularly was thrown into the water where the domestic mosquitoes were breeding. It was soon found that certain kinds of mosquito larvae can thrive well in such salt water.

"For example, Stegomyia calopus, the carrier of yellow fever, and Anopheles pharonsis, which is a carrier of malaria, bred undisturbed in water containing salt up to and including a salt content equal to that of the summer Mediterranean. As soon as this percentage of salt was reached a new mosquito appeared, namely, Leucotomus zanzibaricus, which is an inhabitant of the salt pans and salt marshes of Malak, the bitter pools of the Isthmus of Suez and the Mediterranean shores. This mosquito is particularly venomous."

Professor Ross adds that crude or refined petroleum or resin or tar oil are the only things to put into mosquito pools.

Find Use for American Bird

Two "Bob White" quail from the United States, the gift of the American Zoological society, are being bred by the colonial secretary, Lewis Hurcourt, at his country estate, Nuneham park, Oxfordshire, in the hope of introducing them into the British cotton growing colonies. This bird has been successfully used in the southern part of the United States in keeping down the cotton bollworm. In Egypt the worm has destroyed $2,000,000 worth of cotton in a year, and the only enemy it has there is the "paddy bird" of half-back heron. About 100,000 persons were employed in Egypt in 1910 in clearing the cotton of the pests, and every year sermons are preached in the mosques urging the natives to go into the fields and kill the worms. The Pel White has been introduced successfully into the West Indies, but previous efforts to introduce that variety of quail in Britain have failed. 25,000 humming birds and 182,000 kingfishers has been publicly introduced in London in the last two years, according to figures submitted in parliament. In Panama and New Guinea birds of paradise have been nearly swept out of existence. Exports of fancy feathers from the United Kingdom now amount to more than $1,500,000 a year, and the output of the featherwork shops of the kingdom is $5,000,000 a year, of which $2,500,000 represents ostrich feathers. The bill in parliament proposes to kill the trade in about 7,000,000 of feathers a year. Ostrich feathers are exempted. The feature trade is largely confined to London and Manchester and 2500 people are engaged in it. All but 500 of them handle ostrich feathers.

What Causes Spring Colds

The mysterious spring and early summer colds from which many New Yorkers as well as Londoners suffer are due to the fruit buds of the linden trees in the parks and public gardens, according to Professor Henry of Cambridge university. Describing this curious and little suspected source of danger in The Times, H. D. O'Neill says:

people sitting on penny chairs under the trees in Hyde park between Grosvenor and Stanhope streets, all obviously suffering from more or less severe irritation of the throat, nose and eyes. If they examined carefully the surface of their clothes, preferably with a magnifying glass, they would find a number of tiny spicules which are being liberated in myriads all over London by the breaking of the fruit buds on the plane (butternut) trees.

"In the dry winds prevailing at the present time it is possible to watch the fruit buds actually bursting on the plane trees and blowing away in tufts, which rapidly become subdivided into these minute and irritating little spikes. The danger of these trees has been known since the days of ancient Greece, and in some parts of Germany it has been found necessary to forbid by law the planting of these trees in the neighborhood of schools."

POLICE PROTECT LONDON WOMEN
LONDON, June 22.—Suffragette baiting has become the regular Sunday amusement of the London crowd. The police were kept busy yesterday afternoon in Hyde Park, protecting the women and escorting them to places of safety.

Various suffragette meetings were broken up, and the speakers hustled from the platforms with threats of a ducking in the Serpentine. From the temper of the crowds these threats probably would have been put into execution except for the energetic action of the police.

SMASH CHURCH WINDOWS

SHARON SELECTMEN OFFER REWARD AFTER VANDALISM IN CHURCH

SHARON, June 22.—Three stained-glass windows at the Church of Our Lady of Sorrows were shattered some time Saturday night and stones, gravel and glass were strewn about the altar. A window with the figure of St. Anne, which filled the entire space behind the altar, was broken in two places. The window was a memorial to the parents of the pastor, Rev. George A. Costello. The other wrecked windows are on the north side of the auditorium.

The large window of St. Anne is 30 feet from the ground and for this reason the vandals are believed not to be the work of boys. No cause is known for the deed. It may be the work of the same parties who have caused the 18 recent breaks in the town. Many think that some persons who wished to show that police protection in this town is insufficient and that some members of the force are incompetent took this means of proving it. The matter has been taken up with the state police and the board of selectmen has offered a reward.

COLLIDE ON LOWELL ROAD

TWO WOMEN SERIOUSLY INJURED IN AN AUTOMOBILE COLLISION LAST NIGHT

NASHUA, N. H., June 22.—Two women were seriously injured in an automobile collision on the Lowell road last night. Mrs. Mowatt of 76 Haverrill street, Lawrence, Mass., is believed to have received internal injuries, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. George Mowatt, has an arm broken. A car, driven by George Mowatt, was going towards Lowell when it collided with another machine in which were riding A. G. Smith, his son and daughter and James O'Neil, all of Nashua. The occupants of both cars were thrown to the roadway.

MORGAN B. WILLIAMS DEAD
LONDON, June 22.—Morgan B. Williams, who probably had more to do than any other man with the construction of the earlier railroads in the British Isles died today. He planned and built many of the Italian railroads as well as thousands of miles of the Russian lines. He was born in 1825 in Wales and after retiring from the engineering profession was for 20 years vice chairman of the Metropolitan Bank of England and Wales.

150TH ANNIVERSARY OF FREMONT
FREMONT, N. H., June 22.—The 150th anniversary of the settlement of the town of Fremont was observed with an all day celebration. Addresses by Governor Feltner and Representative Chalmers of Manchester were on the program including the formal exercises. Field sports, including a motor race and a parade filled out the day.

Signal Corps Important Branch of United States Army

Photos by American Press Association.

By JOHN J. BREEN.

IN the occupation of Vera Cruz by American forces and the frequent clashes on the border the signal corps of the United States army played an important part. All nations realize that the success of important military operations mainly depends upon the rapid transmission of orders and information of war. History records many battles lost by superior trained forces due to failures in the prompt transmission of orders. The day of the dashing, mud bespattered, but highly heroic, aid, falling exhausted at his commander's feet as he bands in a report of danger to some particular part of the army, is a thing of the past.

The old familiar picture of the commanding general, surrounded by his staff, observing from a hill or a knoll a furious battle raging practically at his feet or setting off through a hall of bullets and bursting shells to the aid and encouragement of a unit of his army hard pressed will never occur again in time of war. In the wars of the present and future the commanding general will be found fifteen or twenty miles from the scene of carnage, comfortably ensconced in a farmhouse, seated in front of a map dotted with pins designated with the names of corps, brigades, divisions, etc., and calmly playing the exciting game of chess, in which the lives of hundreds of thousands of his fellow countrymen are involved.

His task, while not so wearing and tearing physically, will be as strained as under the old methods. He will spend hour after hour before his map, going for perhaps twenty-four or forty-eight hours without sleep. But he will be away from the confusing roar of big guns and surrounded by utter quiet, conducive to calm thinking. Even the telephone office will be removed from his hearing in an adjacent room and only his closest aids allowed in his presence.

Wire Controlled Army.

This revolution of the art of warfare

has been brought about by the telegraph, the wireless and the telephone and the up to date methods of installing the wires as rapidly as the army can move.

No more striking case of the value of rapid communication of information and orders can be cited than that of the battle of Muden during the Russo-Japanese war. Field Marshal Oyama controlled his entire force by wire from his headquarters in a farmhouse twelve miles to the rear of the firing line, beyond even the noise of the thundering big guns.

As an army moves into hostile territory today its commander must be kept in constant communication with his base and the seat of government by lines of information. If they exist the ordinary telegraph or telephone lines of the country will be seized and utilized for this purpose. If such do not exist, field lines will be rapidly laid on the ground as fast as the army moves.

When deployment is made the division commander will require his signal troops to keep in touch with his brigade commanders and with his artillery. This calls for rapid work of laying lines.

Feats of the Buzzer.

The "buzzer" is a new development of the military lines of information. It is a composite telegraph and telephone, placed in a small portable case the size of the ordinary hand camera. When used as a telegraph instrument the buzzer emits a buzzing sound like that of a wireless apparatus in marked contrast to the sharp metallic click of the ordinary land telegraph set of instruments. A person accustomed to the latter set, however, has no difficulty in manipulating the buzzer. The battery for the buzzer is supplied with dry cells, included in the case.

Some remarkable feats are told of the capability of the buzzer to work under adverse circumstances. Authentic instances are cited by army officers of these sets being utilized along three miles of ordinary barbed wire fence and for a distance of a quarter of a mile of railroad track. One instance is even told of the buzzer being worked where a break of five feet in the circuit was made for experimental purposes and messages transmitted across the intervening space without serious difficulty. With an ordinary land set of instruments operation where even a loose connection occurs is an impossibility.

Possibly the most interesting instance was that tried and successfully carried out at the signal school at Fort Leavenworth. Fifteen officers joined hands, the first grasping the end of a wire connected with a buzzer set and the last officer holding the end of a wire being reeled off along the ground from a moving wagon. In the wagon, at the other end of the wire being reeled off, was another officer with a buzzer set, sending messages through the entire length of wire and the bodies of the fifteen officers.

One sunny morning in the divisional camp at San Antonio, Tex., two privates of the signal corps were amusing themselves and a crowd of enlisted men in a company street of an infantry regiment by heliographing rather broad army witticisms with the burnished bottoms of dishpans. A veteran infantry sergeant stood watching the fun.

"Them divvells," he said with a grin. "I guess if one of 'em got out in the desert with nothin' but a stray coyote he'd signal by makin' the coyote wave its tail in Morse code."

And any one who watches the signal corps at work will be inclined to agree with the sergeant.

Roosevelt Sees Giraffe He Killed

Photos © 1914, by American Press Association.

Upper—Colonel Roosevelt from late picture. Lower—Colonel Roosevelt pointing to giraffe he killed.

ONE of the pleasantest experiences Colonel Roosevelt had on his return from South America was his visit to Washington, where he viewed the stuffed specimens of some of the big game which fell before his mighty gun on his South African trip. He didn't attempt to conceal his "delight."

The first appointment on the program for the colonel's half day at the capital was a visit to the Smithsonian Institution, and the automobile was sent at a smart pace in that direction.

With Dr. Merriam at the wheel, the big car rolled rapidly up through the Smithsonian grounds under the few splendid trees left of those planted three-quarters of a century ago by Andrew Jackson Downing, many of which were felled by Mr. Roosevelt's orders when he was president. At the main south door of the new national museum a large crowd stood waiting. Halfway down the granite steps stood a platoon of newspaper photographers and moving picture men.

These the colonel faced unflinchingly. Quickly realizing the need for "business," he turned, told a joke to Dr. Merriam, gestured and bowed to the cheering crowd, and his lips were seen to be moving steadily as he advanced up the steps. Midway he was halted by newspaper men, who told him of the death of his old friend Jacob Riis, and he stopped to dictate in measured and chosen words a tribute which was hurried at once to the wires for the press.

"Is he dead?" Mr. Roosevelt exclaimed as he heard the news. "I can't begin to tell you how shocked I am by that news. He was all through my life my firmest friend. No greater patriot ever lived in his adopted land. I looked to him for counsel constantly, and he never failed me."

Then he hurried on up into the rotunda of the museum and into the west wing, the crowd rushing pell-mell after him. In the crowd were old men, women and children, many of them sight-seers from out of town.

The first group he visited was that of the rhinoceros family.

"Ah, by George!" exclaimed the colonel when his eye caught it. "That is great!"

Waving his hat over his head, he shouted: "Cherrie and Miller, where are you? Come here—see this!"

Leo Miller and George Cherrie, naturalists, who were with him on the South American trip, pushed through the crowd to where the colonel stood smiling as he studied the group.

"I remember just as well as if it were now, this moment, when I got that big bull," said the colonel to Dr. Merriam. "Kermit said to wait and get a better chance, but I said I must fire, and I did, and I got him."

Dr. Merriam gave the colonel an explanation of the newer methods of taxidermy used by the museum experts in mounting the colonel's specimens.

"It is wonderful," came the reply, "the best I have ever seen. And, see there, he has got the red dirt on the horns and snout. It is always there, and I was afraid the taxidermist would not remember. The pose of the head of that calf is fine—most lifelike. It is the same with the adults. The bull would rarely hold his head up like that unless he sniffed some danger. That's all right as it is, with that understanding."

"I am amazed," he said to Dr. Merriam, "to find that these specimens have been so well mounted. There herons are fine. But they are all in the trees. Oh, no; there is one on the rump of that cow. That's right, that's right. They perch there to eat the small flies that come up from the sand on the legs of the beasts. That is well done—by George, that is well done!"

Later Mr. Roosevelt pointed with considerable pride to a giraffe which he had killed on the South African trip. There always was a crowd of interested listeners, and the colonel's face glowed with pride as he answered questions and told of the stirring incidents surrounding the shooting of this animal. ## FINANCIERS QUAIL BEFORE "SHOW ME" JOE FOLK

AS counsel to the interstate commerce commission former Governor Joseph W. Folk of Missouri, in his conduct of the probe into the affairs of the New Haven railroad, exhibited a great deal of the combative spirit that gained him national fame when he sent the St. Louis boulders to jail. He entered the investigation with the zest that characterizes everything that he tackles, with the result that there were startling revelations of the mismanagement of the road, and the public got an enlightening idea of some of the methods of high finance.

It will be recalled that Mr. Folk, as circuit attorney of St. Louis, was the central figure in the most remarkable prosecution of political knavery since the breaking up of the notorious Tweed ring in the city of New York. His election was against his protest, but once elected he discharged his duties against still stronger protests from the party leaders who put him in nomination. Democratic and Republican corruptionists were all the same to him and were prosecuted without discrimination as to party affiliations.

One afternoon Mr. Folk was told that a large sum of money had been placed in a bank for the purpose of bribing certain officeholders to secure the passage of a street railway ordinance. An hour later Mr. Folk sent the names of nearly a hundred men to the sheriff with instructions to subpoena them for the grand jury at once.

When some of the boulders turned state's evidence there began the state prison procession of party leaders, millionaires and various city law makers which stirred the country and landed the fearless young lawyer in the governor's chair and made him loom big as a candidate for president.

Mr. Folk was elected to the office of circuit attorney by the slump in Republican power which swept that party out of office in St. Louis and turned over the government to the Democrats. As soon as he took office he began the investigations which resulted so disastrously to the ring. Soon after he assumed office he was approached by one of the party bosses who desired the release of one of the ward workers locked up on a criminal charge.

"I can do nothing," said Mr. Folk. "The man is guilty."

"But he helped to put you where you are," sneered the boss.

To this Mr. Folk replied that in that case the ward worker had made a mistake of judgment.

"He should not have helped to put me here," said he. "If he counted on my compounding crime. However, here I am, and as long as I stay here I am going to punish rogues."

From the time that he left the governor's chair Mr. Folk has been in great demand as a lecturer. His lectures generally are interspersed with interesting anecdotes. One of the stories Mr. Folk delights to tell of himself is the following:

"At a small town where he was billed to speak a portly man named Siddons had been scheduled to act as presiding officer. He felt the importance and dignity of the occasion keenly, but without knowing very much to say. In opening he rambled on about national issues and the past glories of the Democratic party till finally he reached the state situation, which he promptly declared was of overwhelming importance to the people of Missouri. To work up a climax he began:

"I will ask you this question: 'Who is this man that has been named for the governorship?' I say, 'Who is Joseph W. Folk?' I repeat it, 'Who is Joseph W. Folk?'"

"Oh, thunder!" squeaked a shriveled up little man in one of the front seats. "I'll bite. Who is he anyway?"

GIVE US A SANE FOURTH

So rapidly is the agitation in favor of a sane Fourth of July growing that it is no longer necessary to explain to people generally why so many interests are earnestly supporting it. Other movements have to be argued on theoretical lines and based on indirect examples, but in this most important matter it is very apparent that the abandonment of dangerous practices of celebration saves hundreds of lives and thousands of serious accidents yearly. The only strange thing about the safe and sane propaganda is that it has not been preached far more generally for years past.

A table compiled by an interested contemporary estimates that for the past five years the number of serious accidents on Fourth of July has decreased systematically until last year when there was an increase of 175 over the previous year. This increase has been attributed to a less rigid enforcement of protective ordinances and the practice of holding celebrations that attracted great crowds of people into one place. In 1908 the number of important accidents was 5623 and in 1912 it was 988 with a consistent reduction yearly. That this was due to the growth of the safe and sane movement is apparent from the fact that 253 cities had adopted the idea in 1912 as compared with four in 1905.

Any custom that is ancient has a certain attraction due to its long existence and this attraction in the case of Fourth of July celebrations is perpetuated by the juvenile tendency to make noise. Quite naturally, perhaps, all people are apt to get more or less noisy when asserting their independence, but this noise should be unattended with danger and the observance is useless unless its significance is understood. It is to be feared that many of those who in the past exploded dangerous fire crackers neither knew the risk they were incurring nor the meaning of the pandemonium which they made collectively. Much of this silly celebration reflected little credit on America or American citizens, and it frequently left regrets that came to maturity in the hospital. More than one father and mother in all our important cities connect the great holiday with some disaster that brought grief or death to their home.

Last year Lowell had a sensible and dignified celebration that must have impressed on our citizens the value of common sense and municipal sanity on such an occasion. This year the record should be equalled, for it cannot be very much exceeded. It is particularly desirable that some form of entertainment with a patriotic flavor should be provided for the young in various sections of the city, for any celebration that does not perpetuate the significance of the day is worse than useless. Let us have a sensible and really American Fourth of July this year.

PEOPLE OWN STREETS.

Perhaps very many do not doubt that the streets of our cities belong to the people, but one's faith in the belief is apt to be shaken after long observation of certain conditions. The New York state court of appeals has asserted the fact very strongly recently in a decision which states that the ordinance of the city of New York giving equal rights to cab owners is valid. In that city private interests have invaded the highways, hotels and given valuable standing privileges to taxicabs and other conveyances, and a source of revenue was created to which the city asserted its right to control. It has now been settled by the courts, however, that the blessing of the streets can not be usurped by individuals or private concerns. The streets belong to the people.

All cities have had experiences that make this decision interesting as relating to their peculiar problems. Sometimes it is an encroachment of private interests on sidewalks; at other times it is the illegal assumption of power by transportation companies or other public utilities. It may even be in the obstruction of traffic by signs. For long periods a city may allow some dangerous practices to grow, but sooner or later it becomes necessary to insist on public respect for and recognition of the principle that the streets of our cities are for the use of our citizens and that any form of private monopoly or abuse of privilege cannot be tolerated. Even the municipality cannot deed away a right over which it has no control before the law.

Perhaps no one needs the realization of the fact that the streets belong to the citizens more than the occasional automobile owner who feels that his mania for speed must not be checked, however pedestrians may run or jump to get out of his way. Not content with indulging his propensity to speed and arrogance where it may not harm anyone, except himself, he shows little respect for municipal ordinances or private feelings when driving in the heart of the city but sets his selfish gratification above the public good. Conditions have improved materially in Lowell of late, due to stricter supervision on the part of the authorities, but there is still need to impress on the few the truth that the streets belong to all the people and not to any privileged group among them.

NEW RAILROAD BILL

The minority members of the legislative railroad committee seem to have scored in their initial attempts to solve the railroad situation of New England for the substitute bill which has been framed by Senator Fisher and Rep. George H. Ellis will go to the legislature with the approval of Public Service Commissioner George W. Anderson and Governor Walsh. The new bill provides for a complete separation of the two roads, it respects the rights of the stockholders and the commonwealth regarding the stock now held by the Boston Holding company, and finally it protects the minority stockholders. The approval of the governor was secured when Senator Fisher and Rep. Ellis called on him and declared that they approved of his general stand on the railroad question but differed from him in some positive ways about the application of his theories. The success of the new bill in reconciling those who were not unanimous in support of any preceding measure will result in a new session of the railroad committee in the first instance and may lead to the settlement of the railroad question, though this question is so involved and hedged round with possibilities that action on any proposed bill cannot be forecasted too accurately.

The conviction seems to be growing, in connection with this same railroad question, that the state of Massachusetts does not want to own its transportation systems wholly or in part except as a last resort. If it should come in the present state of perplexed conditions, it could hardly be regarded other than as a necessary evil—and a few years of political instead of business management would tend to make matters infinitely worse than they are at present. The growing tendency now seems to be towards more careful state regulation so that the railroads may first of all be rescued from their present perilous position and then run in the interest of the public instead of a small group of selfishly interested financiers. It is to be hoped that the tentative bill to be considered by the Massachusetts legislature will prove a step in this direction.

CITY BOOMING

In a recent editorial on "City Booming" the St. Louis Star says pertinently: "The booming spirit is a mighty fine thing in a city. If the citizens realize what they are boasting, and boost in the right place." It goes on to state that the merits of a community as a place of residence or a place of business cannot be estimated from the wealth of the city, from the diversity of its manufactures, from the great number of its factories or its immense population. When a city begins to call attention to these things it is apt to become deluded, forgetting that a progressive civic spirit, wise municipal regulations, and an efficient government are what make cities desirable to the prospective resident. The real booming looks within and finds enough to agitate at home without heralding the virtues of the city broadcast. When the home booming secures the desired advantages, the outside advertising will take care of itself. As the St. Louis Star says:

"A million-dollar fund for better schools, better homes, fairer taxes, finer and more democratic parks, lower car fares, cheaper light, heat and power, more clean pleasure for all the people, would be worth boasting for. Nobody is afraid that this kind of boasting will not come, for it is already sprouting in spots. When it does become general it will put the old style form of boasting to shame."

PROPERTY DETERIORATION

The folly of letting railroad property deteriorate until the ultimate cost of repair is far in excess of what would have been spent for systematic upkeep has been demonstrated so unmistakably in this city that no one has a doubt of it. The danger of procrastination has also been forcibly proved. In the present state of public opinion it will not take many such occurrences such as the collapse of the Chelmsford street bridge to arouse a storm of protest that no public utility could ignore with impunity. Probably the railroad already realizes this as forcibly as the public, and feels somewhat powerless, but nothing can justify economy that results in danger to the public.

In the matter of rolling stock also the railroads must be prepared to do a little more business than usual on special occasions. News comes from Kansas that the railroads of that section have agreed to repair all their defective cars so as to be able to handle the great crops which are anticipated—said to be record breaking. Grain producers and railroad men have held conferences so that the railroads will be ready especially to handle the wheat crop and so that all unnecessary delays may be eliminated.

TYPOGRAPHICAL CONVENTION

The delegates to the convention of the New England Typographical union opening here today are cordially welcomed not only by the local fellow members of the craft but by the other members of the city, the press and the city government representing the entire people. The Typographical union nationally is probably the strongest and most progressive body of organized workers in this country. For this reason alone the convention assembling here today is an honor to our city which our citizens should fully appreciate. The Sun welcomes the delegates to Lowell and hopes their stay will be enjoyed in every possible manner.

THE RIVER PROJECT

The most ardent optimist in the ranks of those who have been booming the navigation of the Merrimack river could not wish for more prompt or more convincing action than was displayed in the legislature, for the bill went through all its stages from the committee report to the governor's signature without a hitch. It now remains for the people of the Merrimack valley to turn their attention to the federal government, confident that the spirit which carried the project through the legislature will carry it triumphantly through congress. After many years of neglect the Merrimack is coming into its own.

SEEN AND HEARD

It is quite possible to crack a joke without damaging it.

The man who spends all his time looking for something better is very likely not to find it.

You are never apt to get a million dollars by figuring what you would do if you had it.

It is our theory that the inventor of the doughnut was no friend of humanity.

It isn't final proof of aristocracy to call the Young Thing in the family a debutante.

If a man had to go home from work to a campfire supper, how he would howl about it.

The eating of a good Sunday dinner is much more pleasant than clearing the dinner away and washing the dishes.

A poor man is always saying he would like to be rich because of the great amount of good he could do with his money.

"What made me mad," said one successful Sunday patron of the hotel, "is that they charged me a double price for a sandwich that was dry as a shingle and nearly as hard. But I got even. I bored a hole in it, so it can't be used again."

SOME COMPILATION

Having been fully instructed in the intricacies of the white slave traffic as it exists among women who are immoral because they earn only $7.50 a week, instead of $12, says the New York Sun, the country is apparently to be educated in another phase of the same subject. The General Federation of Women's Clubs was informed on Tuesday as to the antecedents of several practitioners of the oldest profession there.

"Some of them are from homes such as yours—their fathers are merchants, real estate agents and managers of large business enterprises."

"One that we have interviewed is the daughter of a minister."

"Some are employed in department stores and offices."

"They are stenographers, cashiers, ticket sellers—some do not work, but live at home in idleness."

"Their fathers own yachts and automobiles."

"Some are in the grammar schools, some in high schools."

And some of the young men of their home village 'boobs.' Thus the situation grows confused. A year ago the minimum wage would have wiped out the evil; today we must abolish automobiles, yachts, 'boobs,' even living at home, apparently.

The matter is not so simple as some reformers are anxious to have us believe.

HOME, SWEET HOME

It was midnight. The burglar had entered the house as quietly as possible, but his shoes were not padded and they made a little noise. He had just reached the door of the bedroom when he heard some one moving in the bed as if about to get up and he paused. The sound of a woman's voice floated to his ears.

"If you don't take your boots off when you come into this house," it said, "there's going to be trouble and a whole lot of it. Here it's been raining for three hours, and you dare to tramp over my carpets with your mud."

A STOMACH TONIC

There is a form of indigestion called "atonic dyspepsia." Atonic means "lack of tone." It is probably the most common form of indigestion, but not much is heard about it because people are inclined to group all forms of dyspepsia as "stomach trouble" and the doctors let it go at that. Lack of tone in the digestive organs means that the stomach is no longer able to do its work as nature intended. The nerves that control it are weak, the glands that supply the digestive fluids are not working properly. Gas on the stomach, sour risings in the throat and constipation result. The cause of the trouble is thin blood. Stomach, nerves and glands are all dependent on the blood and when it gets thin and watery they are at once weakened. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood and the first response from the stomach is a better appetite, freedom from distress after eating and an increase in ambition and energy generally. Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a stomach tonic and see how your general health improves.

A diet book, "What to Eat and How to Eat" will be sent free on request by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Every druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

"The Kissing Cup," one of the finest of racing reel plays, will be shown at the B. F. Keith's today, and tomorrow, and should push interest up to a keen pitch. On Wednesday, owing to the fact that the high school graduation exercises will be held in the evening, no performance will be given. So a shorter time than usual will be allowed to lovers of sensational films to take in this real feature. "The Kissing Cup" was built from a scenario written by a man who knows the racing game from first to last, and who was in a position to have motion photographs taken of practically all of the noted racing horses with their jockeys, in America. He has built around the theme a story of compelling interest, and one which is literally a triumph of thrills. In addition to this there will be the striking two-reel feature, "Convict 113," an amazing story of a reformed criminal, who dismisses from his life the only woman he ever loved, in order that she may be saved the taint of being a criminal's wife. As a story of renunciation it stands forth as one of the most wonderful ever put on the stage. Two comedy pictures will also be shown. Beginning Thursday afternoon, and continuing through the remainder of the week "Sealed Orders," a magnificent military picture in six reels, will be shown. Hundreds of men are brought into the picture, and the story is one which is full of thrills from beginning to end. It is a wonderful picture, because the photographers have succeeded in getting together scenes which seem practically impossible for anybody to bring into a picture. The cavalry charge, the hand to hand fighting, the realistic bombardment of a town are some of the things which will make "Sealed Orders" one of the best pictures of the season. During the week Samuel Wallace will continue as the soloist. Admission is 10 cents to the theatre, with a few seats reserved at 15 cents for children, seating admitted for five cents. Performances begin at 2 and 7.15 p. m.

THOUGHT TO HAVE BEEN LOST IN LAKE ERIE WHILE FLYING DURING ELECTRICAL STORM.

TOLEDO, O., June 22.—Aviator Harry N. Atwood and bride, supposed to have been drowned in Lake Erie while flying in an air boat from Sandusky to Toledo yesterday during an electrical storm, are safe at Bonon, on the lake shore 17 miles east of Toledo. At five o'clock this morning Atwood telephoned to Toledo that his airship had been beaten down by the storm to a small island and that later he made his way to the mainland in the airboat which was undamaged. He said he expects to continue the flight to Toledo today.

FRANCH CELEBRATION SPRINGFIELD, June 22.—Many of the thousands of French residents of the United States and Canada gathered here to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Society St. Jean Baptiste participated today in the annual convention of the Artisans Canadien Français. SHOT PARIS PHILANTHROPIST PARIS, June 22.—An old man, Francis Prudhon, was the assailant of Dr. Henri De Rothschild, writer and philanthropist, who was shot Saturday night in front of a boulevard cafe. Questioned yesterday by the examining magistrate, Prudhon repeated his statement that Dr. De Rothschild's scheme for supplying pure milk to the poor had driven him out of business. He now regretted his act, but he explained, at the time his feelings overcame him when he saw the man to whom he attributed his misfortunes.

The inquiries of the police showed that the old man was subject to delusions. He rarely left his home for fear of imaginary foes.

Dr. De Rothschild's wound is slight.

Over 500 members and friends of the Grace Episcopal church of Lawrence attended the annual field day and picnic held Saturday at Lakeview park and the affair proved even more successful than its predecessors. During the day games were played and a well arranged sports program was carried out under the direction of the young men's Sunday school class.

Two young men, said to be residents of Braintree, drove a horse from Lawrence to Lowell at a record speed last evening and when the animal arrived in this city it was examined by the Lowell humane society officers and later turned over to a veterinary for treatment. The matter was reported to the police.

The first outing of the season of the Lowell Motor Boat club was held yesterday at the outing grounds of the Merrimack river near Nashua. About 100 members took part in the affair and at 5 o'clock, when the boats were in the water, flying left the boat house near Pawtucket falls and led by Commodore Fred Holmes, threaded their way up the stream. The return trip was started in the early afternoon.

The police have been asked to locate one John Ralph, a cotton weaver, formerly of Lawrence, but now believed to be in this city. He is wanted to appear in Judge Stone's court held in the court house at Providence, R. ## CATHOLIC CHURCH NEWS

Rev. James P. Cookin Sings First Mass at Immaculate—Graduation at St. Michael's

Rev. James P. Cookin, son of Mrs. James Cookin, 524 Rogers street, this city, sang his first mass yesterday at the Immaculate Conception church at 11 o'clock. Fr. Cookin was ordained recently by Bishop Allen of Mobile in the Baltimore cathedral. He was born in Tewksbury but spent most of his life in Lowell where both he and the other members of his family are well known and widely respected.

Yesterday the church was crowded with relatives and friends of the young priest, and with others to whom a priest's first mass makes an especial appeal. His mother, brothers and sisters were present, including one sister who is a nun in a convent at Convent Station, N. J. The altar was massed with roses and other seasonal flowers and the musical program was particularly elaborate. Throughout the ceremony was most impressive.

Fr. Cookin's assistant in the mass was Rev. Hugh McDermott of our Lady of the Presentation church in Brighton, formerly of St. Peter's, and the deacon and subdeacon respectively were Rev. Terence F. Loftus, O. M. I., and Rev. Patrick McConnell of St. Joseph's seminary, Baltimore.

Rev. Patrick J. O'Meara, O. M. I., preached the sermon, which was an eloquent exposition of the dignity of the priesthood. The text was: "The Lord hath sworn and will not repent: Thou art a priest forever according to the order of Melchisedech." (Ps. CIX-4.)

After dwelling on the personal traits and characteristics of Fr. Cookin, and complimenting both himself and his family on the culmination of his hopes, Fr. O'Meara said:

Before the newly ordained priest proceeds of the holy sacrifice of the mass it is but fitting that we pause for a moment to contemplate his Christ-like powers as ambassador of God in the pulpit, as judge in the tribunal of penance and as officer of the adorable sacrifice at the altar.

As God's ambassador the priest bears a commission from Jesus Christ. "As the Father hath sent Me I also send you." "Going, therefore, teach ye all nations." (John XV, 21). St. Paul says when the priest speaks it is Christ that is exhorting by his lips: "For Christ we are ambassadors, God as it were exhorting by us." (2 Cor. V, 20). Nay Christ identifies himself with his priests when He bids us to them through His Apostles: "If the first mass that was ever offered on this earth. Behold Christ in that first Holy Thursday night sitting at the banquet table surrounded by His 12 apostles. What a sad and sorrowful occasion was that for the world's redeemer. The shadows of Calvary were closing deeper and thicker upon Him, while His own chosen people were without a king, for His blood and all the evil powers of earth and hell were plotting His ruin. Yet it was on that night (as if to show in the most striking manner possible His great love for man) that Jesus Christ performed His greatest miracle and bestowed upon the world the sacrament of the Eucharist. He took the bread and wine and over them pronounced the solemn words of consecration. And as at the words, "Let there be light, and the light was made," so at the omnipotent words of Christ: "This is my body, this is my blood," instantly the substance of the bread and wine ceased to be, and in its place came the body and blood, soul and divinity of Jesus Christ. To His apostles He said, "Take ye and eat. This is my body." "Drink ye all of this. This is my blood, which shall be shed for you unto the remission of sins." Thus the first mass was offered; the first holy communion administered. Yea, more, the first ordination of God's priests took place for upon His apostles Jesus at once bestowed power to do as He had done. "Do ye this in commemoration of Me, for as often as you shall eat this bread or drink this chalice you shall show the death of the Lord until He come." (1 Cor. XI, 26.) Thus the apostles and their successors in the ministry were empowered by Christ Himself to perpetuate to all ages throughout all time, the sacrifice of Calvary and to shed His graces, His blessings, His merits, upon every individual soul. Hence, dear brethren, when God's anointed priest, standing at this altar today, shall pronounce the solemn words first pronounced by Christ over 1900 years ago, the same stupendous miracle shall take place in this church as took place in the temple at Jerusalem.

When this newly ordained priest, with the authority and in the name and person of Jesus Christ, shall bend low over the bread and wine, and before the altar, and whisper with trembling lips the sacred and all powerful words: "This is my body. This is my blood," immediately on this altar shall come the body and blood of Jesus Christ.

Yes, there in our very presence—in the hands of the priest will be that Jesus Christ, who once immolated Himself on Calvary to redeem the whole world, and who now immolates Himself on the altar for His own faithful children. Here then upon our altars is the adorable victim, Jesus Christ, to which the whole world owes its redemption, to which the whole world owes its salvation, to which the whole world owes its life. Here is enacted a sacrifice worthy of the great God Himself. Well could the eternal Father, looking down on the sacred and consecrated host as uplifted in the hands of His priest, exclaim: "This is My beloved Son in whom I am well pleased."

O venerable and exalted dignity of the priest of God! What office can be conceived or imagined greater than that of Christ's priest? Again, I repeat in the whole range of God's creatures nothing is nothing to surpass the dignity and power, especially as exercised in the pulpit, in the confessional, and at the altar.

Sacred Heart Church
At the 11 o'clock mass at the Sacred Heart church yesterday the 40 hours' devotion service, which opened Friday, was brought to a close with beautiful and impressive exercises. As yesterday was also the feast of the Sacred Heart, the day was one of general observance. Solemn high mass was sung, during which a musical program of rare excellence was given by the church choir, directed by John J. Kelly, and the sanctuary cloth, in charge of Rev. James T. McDermott, O. M. I. The blessed sacrament, incensed in a beautiful monstrance was exposed on the altar during the three days of the devotion and was carried in a procession at the conclusion of yesterday's mass, after which it was removed to the tabernacle while the procession, marched through the aisles of the church, the choir alternating in singing hymns appropriate to the occasion. Upon the return of the procession to the sanctuary, the service closed with solemn benediction of the blessed sacrament.

SHAMROCK IV TO MAKE USE OF BIG BALLOON JIB IN GREAT CUP RACE

SHAMROCK IV UNDER FULL SAIL

The Shamrock IV, is being groomed to use her immense balloon jib in the International races. Her great spread of canvas handicaps her, as the other boats will have a slight time allowance. To offset this the heavy head rigging will be escorted to, and Skipper Burton thinks it will prove a great success.

A large attendance witnessed the entertainment given by the pupils of the Riverside grammar school Saturday afternoon and all were pleased with the program which had been carefully prepared by the teachers. The affair consisted mostly of dances.

Next week is "Quarter Week" at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank. The bank will be closed Saturday, July 4th, it being a legal holiday.

N. E. TYPOGRAPHICAL CONVENTION OPENED

WILLIAM C. TRUMP,
President N. E. T. U.

JOHN V. DONOGHUE,
President Local T. U.

Large Number of Delegates Assembled — Opening Addresses of Welcome by Pres. Donoghue, Mayor Murphy and Others — Convention Program

Lowell is entertaining manipulators of the type from all over the country, for the great New England Typographical union has convened here for a three days session. There are a great many quite prominent men connected with the union that embraces all of the New England states and there will be some interesting speaking before the session closes. The local types will leave no stone unturned in their endeavor to give the visitors the time of their lives. An elaborate program has been arranged and the men in charge will see to it that all of the details are carried out to a nicety. The program includes a banquet, with prominent speakers, at 5 o'clock this evening at Prescott hall and a field day tomorrow at Canobie lake.

Convention Formally Opened
The convention was formally opened at 10 o'clock this morning in the Knights of Equity hall, Harrington building, Central street, with a fine program of music, speeches by local and visiting officials, and a general social time. The address of welcome was by President John V. Donoghue, followed by addresses by Mayor Dennis J. Murphy and Secretary John H. Murphy of the Lowell board of trade. The response to the address of President Donoghue was made by President Wm. C. Trump of the New England body and it was a triumph speech.

The opening prayer was by Rev. Joseph A. Curran of St. Patrick's church. Address of Welcome
President John V. Donoghue made an address of welcome, speaking in part as follows:
"In the presence of these distinguished guests, as president of Lowell Typographical union, No. 310, it is a great honor to me and a happy privilege, to formally open this convention of the New England Typographical union and to welcome you on this fine June morning. In the name of our organization to the City of Lowell, the home of the best printers in the east, and the home of a peaceful and law-abiding people, whom I know recognize in you the representatives of a craft whose close application to the art preservation of arts, all these years has succeeded in adding much to the typography of our papers and publications. Here in Lowell the highest standard of perfection has been maintained and the artistic tendencies of our craft have been preserved to posterity.

"A printing office is the greatest college in the world," someone said years ago. How well, how strikingly is that saying exemplified in the Lowell Typographical union.

This Advertising Space
Tells you what and why and above all where. Also, sometimes tells how and who. Most of the people put themselves on the defensive the minute they begin to read an advertisement. Not so of this corner, kind reader; the fact that you have read this far today attests your continued interest. Frankly speaking we do not exaggerate in our advertising.

intelligence of those who follow the trade, how well it has added in the growth, the prosperity, the stability and the tremendous success our splendid organization is enjoying all over North America, with over 700,000 members in the United States, Canada, Cuba, Hawaii and the Philippines, with a pension system, with a finely equipped, healthful printers' home in Colorado, with a mortuary benefit fund and with a technical school for the proper teaching of apprentices, I make the positive statement, defying contradiction, that the International Typographical union, as at present constituted, has fulfilled the hopes and the fondest dreams of its founders, standing today as the leading trades organization in the world and ready to go forward in the onward march of progress in all that pertains to honest and safely guided union-like methods.

"It is enough to say that just so long as the Typographical union will endure, just so long with honest, conscientious, conservative, patient effort be the dominating factors, the compelling force in trades unionism. In your leisure moments, apart from the sessions of the convention, during your brief stay with us, an appreciative Lowell union has prepared a program for your entertainment and education and hence we trust, therefore, that you will pause for a moment from the exciting work of your deliberations to break bread with us on this all-important occasion for the benefits that will accrue to both of us. I am sure, will be many and quite lasting.

"As a final word let me express again the pleasure, the honor the Lowell union feels at the entertainment of a New England convention, for like the 'scent of the rose' that hangs around the inspiration of your meeting will stimulate us to further effort and to further accomplishment in the years to come. To the end that the International Typographical union will become even more potent and more beneficial in its praiseworthy mission of help and benefit to the printers of the civilized world."

The City's Welcome
Mayor Murphy extended the city's welcome to the delegates and other visitors and assured them that the city felt honored in entertaining the men of their calling. The mayor said that he was singing the praises of this organization day in and day out and I must confess that his enthusiasm has proved contagious, for I've caught it, and while I represent the city of Lowell as chief executive, yet I feel a great personal interest, especially because of the stories of achievement told me by Mr. Coll.

"It would be impossible to think of a group of men more welcome than yourselves and Lowell appreciates the many great things you represent. We have a beautiful city and I sincerely hope that you will visit the many points of interest before you say goodbye. I hope that you will not only visit the city hall, memorial building, stores and our mammoth manufacturing plants, but that you will also avail yourselves of the opportunity of taking some of the delightful trolley rides out of here that furnish the most exquisite scenery in the country. ## DISSOLUTION SUIT AGAINST NEW HAVEN

Pres. Wilson and Atty. Gen. McReynolds Agree That it Must Go Forward Unless, Mass. Legislature Empowers the Holding Company to Sell its Boston & Maine Stock

WASHINGTON, June 22.—President Wilson and Attorney General McReynolds agreed that the dissolution suit against the New Haven railroad must go forward unless the Massachusetts legislature empowers the holding company to sell its Boston & Maine stock.

President Wilson told inquirers that unless the legislature acted in line with the attorney general and Governor Walsh the only course left open to the department of justice would be to go ahead with the Sherman law suit which has been held up according to the agreement between Chairman Elliott of the New Haven and Mr. McReynolds.

When negotiations for the peaceful dissolution of the New Haven merger approached a point several weeks ago where a settlement without a protracted contest in the courts seemed assured, Attorney General McReynolds agreed to hold back the government suit until July 15, awaiting the action of the Massachusetts legislature. The consent of that body is necessary before the holding company may sell its Boston & Maine stock. The disposition of those holdings is one of the government's foremost demands. Officials of the New Haven agreed to it and Governor Walsh recommended that the legislature pass a bill necessary to that end. Last week the legislature referred the bill to a recess committee and a delay until after Christmas was threatened.

JUMP FOR THEIR LIVES

MANCHESTER, N. H., June 22.—Fire which broke out in the cab of engine 3211 attached to the Canadian express leaving Boston at nine o'clock this morning caused the engineer and fireman to jump for their lives in the local railroad yard after the application of the emergency brakes with a jar that tossed passengers about in their seats.

The fire caused a tie-up of an hour and put the engine out of commission and greatly inconvenienced vacationists, as well as hundreds of others awaiting the train here and in other New Hampshire cities north of Manchester, who were departing for the commencement exercises at Dartmouth college.

The train mentioned above passed through this city at 9:30 o'clock this forenoon and stopped at the local station, where, it is said, a large number of passengers boarded, some presumably going to Hanover, N. H., to attend the commencement exercises at Dartmouth college.

FUNERALS

KATSHORAS—The funeral of John Katshoras took place yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the chapel of Undertaker C. H. Molloy. Services were held at the Greek Orthodox church at 2:45. Rev. Basil Panagopolous officiating. Burial was in the Westlawn cemetery.

HUNT—The funeral of William H. Hunt, who died in Everett June 17, was held in this city Saturday afternoon. Burial was in the Lowell cemetery. Undertaker George M. Eastman in charge.

DUTTON—The funeral services of Mrs. Emma Ann Dutton were held from the home of her son, Mr. Walter L. Dutton, 673 Pleasant street, Dracut, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock and were largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Bartlett, pastor of the Dracut Centre church, and there were appropriate selections sung by Miss Anna Hall. The flowers were numerous and beautiful, among them being: Large pinks, inscribed "Mother" from Mr. and Mrs. Dutton; wealth with lavender ribbon, marked "Grandma" from the grandchildren; and other offerings from the employees of the stitching room of A. Kimball & Son Shoe Co., of Lawrence; Dracut Centre church, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Coffin, Mr. Daniel Fox, Mr. and Mrs. George Mansfield, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Farrell, S. G. School Closing
The final session of the primary schools will be held tomorrow afternoon, at which time the children will be excused for their summer vacation.

RAILROADS WIN FIGHT
WASHINGTON, June 22.—Transcontinental railroads won their fight to limit to some $700,000,000 worth of oil lands when the supreme today held void the clause in the patents making the land over to the government, if found to contain minerals.

Justice Vandewater announced the supreme court's decision today in the California cases involving the right of transcontinental railroads to seven hundred million dollars' worth of oil lands. The first point was decided in favor of the government—that oil lands were mineral lands.

HELD MEMORIAL SERVICE
Impressive memorial services were held at Billerica yesterday afternoon by Loyola Area Pollard lodge, when a large number of members from this city and Billerica joined together after parading from the Union hall to the North Billerica Baptist church, attended the service in a body and listened to an instructive sermon preached by Rev. Charles H. Williams.

Box 48 shortly before noon today was for a grass fire in a field between the old English and St. Patrick's cemeteries. No damage was done.

NEW PLAN TO SOLVE THE MEXICAN PROBLEM

Actual Negotiations Between the Representatives of Two Fighting Factions in Effort to Agree on Individual for Provisional Presidency

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 22.—Actual negotiations between representatives of the two fighting factions in Mexico in an effort to agree on an individual for the provisional presidency is the latest plan which the mediators have evolved for the solution of the Mexican problem.

Just how the two elements will be drawn together remained a secret today but it became known that strong pressure had been brought to bear on General Carranza through the American government and that the mediators had persuaded the Huerta government to come into the plan.

Informal parleys between the representatives of the two factions outside of the formal mediation proceedings but with the counsel and advice of the American delegates have been in progress.

This move was adopted as a last resort, every effort to get the constitutionalists to agree to an armistice as desired by the mediators having failed.

The appeal which is said to have influenced both factions is that the Mexicans themselves must save their country from further spoliation and bloodshed by each making certain sacrifices to abandon the principles for which they have been contending. It will be several days before the plans will materialize and constitutionalist delegates will continue their discussion of other points in the general peace plan than those on which they have been deadlocked. Separate conversations with the Huerta delegates are understood to have been held with the constitutionalists.

TWO AUTOS COLLIDED

Narrow Escape of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vigeant and Family in Collision Yesterday Afternoon

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vigeant of 48 Riverside street, this city, their two daughters, Regina and Annette, as well as their son, Napoleon, and niece, Miss Anita Bouhais, had a narrow escape from death yesterday afternoon in an automobile accident which occurred on the Lowell road two miles beyond Nashua, N. H. Fortunately no one was injured, but the machine was badly damaged. Mr. Vigeant when seen this morning said he could not explain how the entire party were not killed.

To a Star reporter Mr. Vigeant told the following story in relation to the accident: "Yesterday afternoon we were going to Manchester, N. H., in my Rambler touring car and my son, Napoleon, a careful chauffeur, was at the wheel. In the machine also were my wife, my two daughters, Regina and Annette, and my niece, Miss Anita Bouhais, of Dracut street. We were going at a rate of about 15 miles an hour, following another car.

"When we reached a spot about two miles beyond Nashua, N. H., an Overland touring car, owned and operated by Walter A. Jacobs of Manchester, N. H., came along at a rate of speed of between 25 and 30 miles an hour. At a glance I saw a collision was inevitable and I shouted, at the same time pressing the brake.

"The Overland car was in the left lane and we were in the right lane. The driver of the other car attempted to swing to the left. In the car automobile were five passengers—three women, and they were all panic stricken. Despite the efforts of the chauffeurs the Overland car crashed into the side of my machine and the automobiles did not turn turtle. Both cars were brought to a full stop and upon investigation we found that my machine had suffered the more severe damage. Both wheels on the left side had been torn from their sockets and the mudguard as well as running board were badly damaged. The other car suffered only slight damage.

Mr. Vigeant said the engine of his car was in good running order and the party were able to drive to Nashua, where the car was left for repairs, and then the party returned to Lowell by electric.

LOWELL SCOTS PARADE

Battle of Bannockburn Anniversary Observed—Sermon by Rev. S. A. Jackson

Lowell Scotchmen yesterday observed the anniversary of the famous battle of Bannockburn by a street parade and divine services at the Westminster church in Tyler street.

The parade was a most picturesque one and the notes of the bagpipes filled the air with a music comparatively uncommon here. The pipers were of the Clan Douglas of Inverhill and they are merry pipers, too. They were preceded by an American flag and after them came 200 brawny Scotchmen. The march started from the headquarters of Clan Grant, 14, in Merrimack street, and finished at the church in Tyler street.

The men made a fine appearance as they passed through Merrimack and Central streets. The stars and stripes was borne by James Wallace of Clan Grant. Next came the pipers in full Highland costume and behind the pipers marched the members of the local clubs, including Clan Grant and the Lowell Caledonian club, together with visiting clans from Lawrence, Haverhill, Andover and Wakefield.

Master James Johnson Morris of Lowell, a very little lad, attracted a big share of attention. Dressed in full dress of kilts he marched beside his father and the people in the street cheered the fine little fellow.

At the church, a special program, appropriate to the occasion, had been prepared, including special music by the choir. In his sermon, Rev. S. A. Jackson paid tribute to the Scots who had won glory on the field of Bannockburn. In part, he said:

"There must have been a mighty display of heroism on that 24th of June

600 years ago, when Bruce's 20,000 men put to flight the greatest array of warriors that had ever marched out of England. But none of these circumstances are necessary as signs of a great conflict in the highest sense.

"One result of the battle was, that by his defeat, Edward II lost all control over England, though he kept the throne. Royalty was humbled, when the king was put on an allowance of £10 a day, by his own noblemen. The English king endeavored to prove, at Bannockburn, his divine right to rule an unwilling people, whose lawful king was still alive. The people proved, however, their divine right to freedom and to the choice of their own king and nationality.

"This battle was the Lord's because the victory did not go to the strongest army. God is not always on the side of the heaviest artillery (as Napoleon thought). Majorities do not always rule, though some people think they ought to. But might is not right and the right must rule whether it has a human majority of one million, or only one man to stand alone on the side of truth and righteousness. It isn't strange that (as the Bible puts it) 'one should chase a thousand and two put 10,000 to flight.' This has been the case in nearly all the moral and religious conflicts of the world. Israel's victory over mighty Egypt at the Red Sea; the shepherd lad of Bethlehem smiting the Giant of Gath; Jonathan and his armor-bearer defeating the warriors of the Philistines; Gideon's 300 putting to flight an army of Midianites like grasshoppers; for multitude. Thus we find there is a power not in numbers, not in the arm of flesh nor in human wisdom which has won the victories of the moral world; it is the power of omnipotence, which saves 'not by might nor by power, but by my spirit,' saith the Lord."

CARRY LIFEBOATS FOR ALL

New Safety at Sea Measure, Reported to House, Follows Convention Recommendation

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The Alexander bill providing for the welfare and safety of passengers and seamen on inland and ocean steamships was reported to the house from the committee on merchant marine and fisheries, and stipulates that no vessel of the United States on an ocean route shall at any moment of its voyage carry more persons aboard than can be accommodated in lifeboats and life rafts.

The bill creates new requirements for able seamen, specifying that they may be nineteen years of age and have three years of sea service.

The bill has many marked differences from the bill on the same subject introduced by Senator La Follette and passed by the senate. The lifeboat provisions follow the recommendations of the London Convention on Safety of Life at Sea.

Lifeboat Best for Safety

"The committee is of the opinion,"

says the report, "that a lifeboat is the best form of safety device under favorable conditions, but it rarely happens that they can all be launched safely in the event of fire or shipwreck. The Titanic sank under favorable weather conditions, and time enough to launch them had elapsed to have made it entirely practicable to save all on board if sufficient lifeboats had been provided."

The committee reported that frequently rafts are more easily launched than boats.

The drastic provisions of the La Follette bill covering lifeboats for excursion steamers have been greatly modified in the house bill, which specifies that in the rush season lifeboats up to only 75 per cent of the passengers need be carried. The report states that the great load of lifeboats demanded on this class of steamers in the La Follette bill would have rendered them topheavy.

In the season from May 15 to Sept.

15 vessels on ocean routes less than twenty miles off shore must carry lifeboat accommodations for passengers up to 70 per cent of the total, and of this proportion one-half may be collapsible boats. This provision takes care of the large excursion steamers which could not possibly carry class one or class two boats for every passenger.

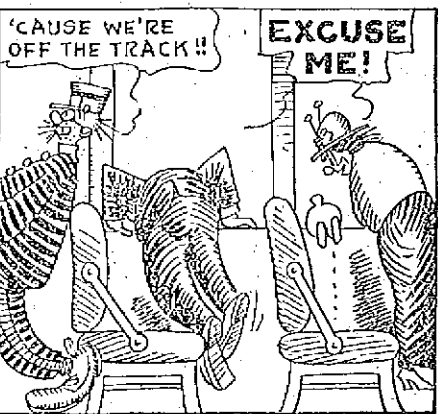

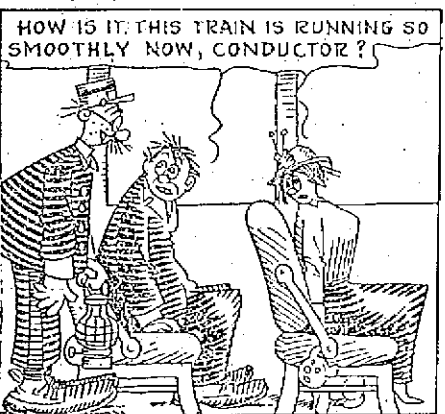

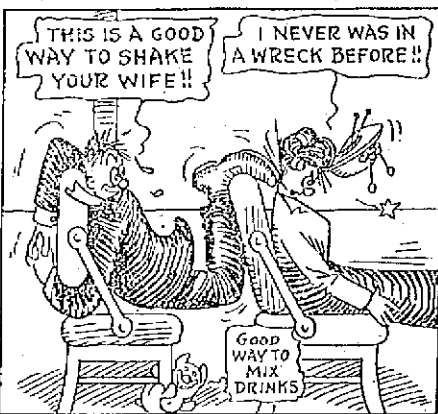

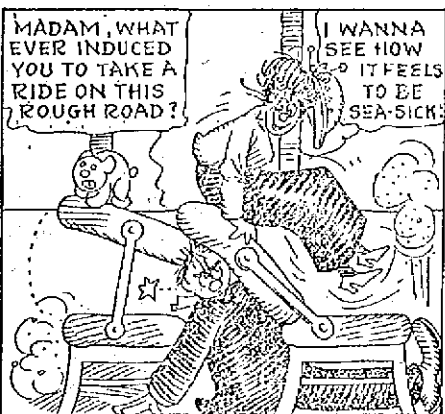

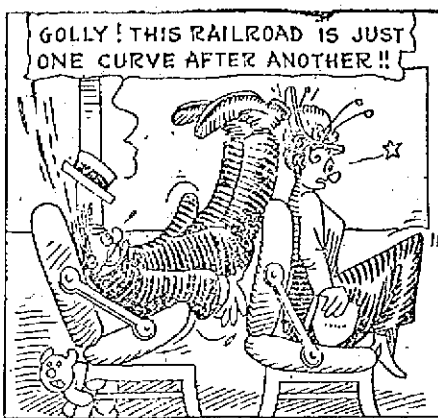

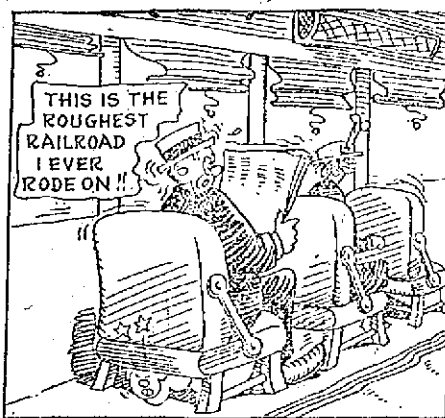

Less Boats in Rush Season

Ocean freighters must have lifeboat accommodations for everyone aboard. Great Lake boats more than three miles off shore must have lifeboats and rafts for everyone, but in the rush season from May 15 to Sept. 15 may have accommodations for 50 per cent of which not less than three-fifths may be collapsible boats or rafts, subject to the approval of the board of supervision inspectors.

The bill establishes the grade of "certificated lifeboat man," who shall be familiar with everything connected with the use of lifeboats. It requires that for lifeboats or rafts carrying sixty-one persons there shall be three certificated lifeboat men, and running up to seven certificated men for lifeboats or rafts carrying from 160 to 210 persons, and thereafter one man to each additional fifty persons.

KING'S BIRTHDAY HONORS

Kitchener Made Earl; A.H. Stanley, Baronet—Order of Knighthood Conferred on Explorer Mawson

LONDON, June 22.—The king's birthday honors were announced yesterday. The list includes a large number of barons and baronets, but there are few notable names in it.

Lord Kitchener of Khartoum, His Majesty's agent and consul general in Egypt, is made an earl. Sir Herbert Cosens-Hardy, Sir Edgar Vincent, Maj. General John Fielden Brocklehurst and Sir Leonard Lyell are raised to barons.

Among the baronets is Albert H. Stanley, manager of the London Underground Railways, who is English-born, but was reared in the United States. Mr. Stanley came to London from Detroit and assumed his British citizenship last year. For a number of years he was connected with the Detroit United Railways and the Public Service railways of New Jersey.

Other baronets named are Sir Joseph Beecham, the manufacturer and philanthropist; George Henschel, the composer, and Sir T. Vansittart Bower, lord mayor of London.

Right Hon. Robert L. Borden, premier of Canada; George E. Foster, minister of trade in Canada, and Walter E. Davidson, governor of Newfoundland, are made knights of the Grand Cross of St. Michael and St. George. Among the knights bachelors named is Douglas Mawson, the explorer.

Knighthood was also conferred on James George Fraser, professor of social anthropology, Liverpool, and author of "The Golden Bough."

ARSENIC FOUND IN CANDY

CARELESS OR IGNORANT MANUFACTURERS FINED FOR LETTING IT FIND ITS WAY INTO PRODUCTS

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 22.—The accidental presence of arsenic in jelly, candy and chocolate and of lead in cream tartar, has caused one corporation to be fined $100 and three corporations to be fined $20 each for the shipment of such adulterated products into interstate commerce. In every case the arsenic and lead appear to have found their way into the products through either ignorance or carelessness on the part of the manufacturer. In order to protect himself, he should have procured materials guaranteed by his vendor under the food and drugs act, thus shifting the responsibility from himself, or else made certain by a personal investigation that they contained no injurious ingredients.

According to a recent announcement of the U. S. department of agriculture, the Williams Bros. Co. of Detroit, Mich., has been fined $100 for sending four brands of adulterated jelly into Missouri. One brand contained seven parts of arsenic per million. Two of the brands contained eight parts, and the fourth, 20 parts per million, which might render the jelly injurious to health.

The Calumet Candy Co. of Sandusky, Ohio, was also fined $50 and costs for sending into North Carolina and Illinois quantities of "Italian Cream" and into Oklahoma a quantity of "Teeed Squares" all of which contained arsenic in either the candy or coating, or both. Leo Benjamin of New York City, according to the announcement, was fined $50 for shipping into Pennsylvania "Chocolate Cremolles" which contained arsenic. It also contained another mineral substance, a crude oxide of iron, which acted both as a color and a cocoa substitute. The label stated that: "This Cremolles contains powdered cocoa, and a little harmless coloring."

Cream Tartar Contains Lead

The Pan Chemical Co. of New York City was fined $50 for shipping a quantity of adulterated cream tartar into the state of Washington. It contained lead, a poisonous ingredient, in the amount of 62 parts per million, which might render it injurious to health.

The Sen-Sen Chielet Co., a corporation organized under the laws of Maine, with a factory at Salem, Ohio, was fined $25 and costs for shipping misbranded chewing gum from Ohio into Illinois. The gum bore a label containing the words "Jumbo Pepsin Gum." Analysis showed that the gum contained no pepsin.

The shipment of adulterated and misbranded mince-meat in interstate commerce has brought three lines of $25 each and costs to the W. H. Marvin Co. of Urbana, Ohio. Two "mince-meat" contained nothing more than a trace of meat, there being 0.1 per cent of meat in two of the shipments, and 0.2 per cent in the third. This was not considered sufficient to comply with the federal law. The labels on the shipments giving the composite articles of the "mince-meat" mentioned meat first.

Short weight of peanut butter brought a fine of $25 and costs to Julius Kuehler (The Royal Peanut Butter Co.) of Cleveland, Ohio, because the article was shipped in interstate commerce. Ten packages showed an average shortage of over 13 per cent in weight. Another Ohio company of Toledo, the Ohio Spice & Extract Co., was fined $25 and costs for shipping adulterated and misbranded mace into Missouri.

SIXTEEN FINE AT SOUTHBORO

SOUTHBORO, June 22.—A hand tub rushed to the outskirts of the town on an automobile truck when word was received yesterday that the dwelling of F. B. Knowles, a Boston broker, was afire, could not obtain sufficient water to fight the flames effectively, and the house was destroyed. The loss is $15,000. Mr. Knowles and his family were away at the time.

NURSE SAYS COMFORT POWDER KEEPS BABY'S SKIN HEALTHY

Miss M. E. Joyce, Trained Nurse, Fall River, Mass., says: "Comfort Powder keeps baby's skin clean and healthy, with no sickening odors to suffocate the child as you get from perfumed powders. I would not be without Comfort Powder in the nursery on account of its antiseptic, soothing and healing qualities. Every mother should use it."

CHAS. A. COMISKY TO FILE INJUNCTION SUITS—FARRELL OF NEW YORK ALSO ACTS

CHICAGO, June 22.—Hal Chase, first baseman, who jumped to the Buffalo team of the Federal league, will be enjoined in every federal league city from playing with any other teams than the Chicago Americans. It was declared today by Charles A. Comiskey, president of the White Sox.

Comiskey prepared to file injunction suits today.

President Frank Farrell of the New York Americans spent part of yesterday in consultation with Comiskey. Farrell said he intended to push proceedings to enjoin A. A. Scholz who jumped to the Buffalo Federal team playing with any other team than the New York Americans.

are just as harmful to children as alcohol is to grown-ups," says Dr. Charlotte Abbey, superintendent of the Women's Directory, New York.

The reason why coffee and tea injure anybody is because these beverages contain the poisonous drug, caffeine, (from 1 1-2 to 3 grains to the cup), which physicians have long known affects the heart, stomach and liver.

Children especially, with their delicate nerves, are susceptible to the action of caffeine, and should never be allowed to have tea or coffee or any other beverage containing drugs.

Thousands of adults have found that their headaches, nervousness, indigestion and sleeplessness have vanished when a change was made from coffee and tea to

POSTUM

"THERE'S A REASON"

Postum contains no caffeine or any other injurious substance. Made from whole wheat and a small per cent. of molasses, it is a pure food-drink, having a delightful flavour, and containing the nutritive values of the grain. That's why it is good for both children and grown-ups.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder. Made in the cup with hot water. No boiling required. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

Featured at Bat for Lowell High

In a game made conspicuous by loose fielding and poor baseball, Lowell high went down to defeat at the hands of Lawrence high, their rivals, last Saturday afternoon at Spalding park, by the score of 9-7. Each team was guilty of an even half dozen misplays. A very small crowd was in attendance in spite of the fact that the game was the second one of the Lawrence series, toward which every energy is always bent by the local team. The rival high schools won stand one game apiece with the third and rubber contest to be decided in this city on Wednesday afternoon.

Wilson and Flynn were opposed to each other at the start of the game, but the down-river southpaw was replaced by Burckel in the fifth session. Wilson work was greatly affected by the poor support his teammates gave him and was continually in the hole due to errors. At such times the local boy weakened and went wild. Had he been given any kind of support, how-

Lowell Took First Game
3-2 and Lost Second
in Slugging Contest

Lowell broke even in their double bill at Worcester Saturday afternoon, taking the first game 3-2 and losing the second contest by a 14-10 score.

The games demonstrated the two ex-trêmes of baseball, the first one being a pitchers' battle between Maybom and Van Dyke while the second affair was a slugfest for both clubs.

Sixteen hits apiece were gathered in the latter struggle.

Lowell deserved the first game. To begin with, Maybom pitched a better game than did Van Dyke, although the Worcester southpaw displayed rare form in the pinches. Only five hits were made by Burckel's men while the Lowell bats rapped out nine safe clouts. Maybom issued but one free ticket.

Jimmy Ring started the second game but was hampered out of the box after four straight innings in which

Worcester collected four runs and when Ring retired in the fifth bases were choked. Ruba DeGroot, who followed him, did not fare any better, and before the Worcester bats had been sheathed after eight innings of slugging, 14 tallies had made their way up on to the score board. Lowell made a ninth inning rally which netted five runs, but the home team's lead was too great to overcome.

DeGroot, Waco, Dee, Kelly and

Burke did the bulk of Lowell's hitting and run-getting. Pettelger and Shotton were in the role of sluggers for Worcester. The scores:

GIVE US A SANE FOURTH

So rapidly is the agitation in favor of a sane Fourth of July growing that it is no longer necessary to explain to people why so many interests are coming to support it. Other movements have to be argued on their merits and based on indirect examples, but in this most important matter it is very apparent that the abandonment of dangerous practices of celebration saves hundreds of lives yearly. The only strange thing about the safe and sane propaganda is that it has not been preached for more generally for years past.

A table compiled by an interested contemporary estimates that for the past five years the number of serious accidents on Fourth of July has decreased systematically until last year when there was an increase of 115 over the previous year. This increase has been attributed to a less rigid enforcement of protective ordinances and the practice of holding celebrations that attracted great crowds of people into one place. In 1908 the number of important accidents was 522 and in 1912 it was 555 with a consistent reduction yearly. That this was due to the growth of the safe and sane movement is apparent from the fact that 253 cities had adopted the idea in 1912 as compared with 107 in 1905.

Any custom that is ancient has a certain attraction due to its long existence and this attraction in the case of Fourth of July celebrations is perpetuated by the juvenile tendency to make noise. Quite naturally, perhaps, all people are apt to get more or less noisy when asserting their independence, but this noise should be unattended with danger and the observance is useless unless its significance is understood. It is to be feared that many of those who in the past exploded dangerous fire crackers neither knew the risk they were incurring nor the meaning of the pandemonium which they made collectively. Much of this silly celebrating reflected little credit on America or American citizens, and it frequently left regrets that came to maturity in the hospital. More than one father and mother in all our important cities connect the great holiday with some disaster that brought grief or death to their home.

Last year Lowell had a sensible and dignified celebration that must have impressed on our citizens the value of common sense and municipal spirit on such an occasion. This year the record should be equalled for it cannot be very much excelled. It is particularly desirable that some form of entertainment with a patriotic flavor should be provided for the young in various sections of the city, for any celebration that does not perpetuate the significance of the day is worse than useless. Let us have a sensible and really American Fourth of July this year.

PEOPLE OWN STREETS

Perhaps very many do not doubt that the streets of our cities belong to the people, but one's faith in the belief is apt to be shaken after long observation of certain conditions. The New York state court of appeals has asserted the fact very strongly recently in a decision which states that the ordinance of the city of New York giving equal rights to car owners is valid. In that city private interests have invaded the highways, hotels have given valuable standing privileges to taxicabs and other conveyances, and a source of revenue was created to which the city asserted its right to control. It has now been settled by the courts, however, that the licensing of the streets can not be usurped by individuals or private concerns. The streets belong to the people.

All cities have had experiences that make this decision interesting as relating to their peculiar problems. Sometimes it is an encroachment of private interests on sidewalks; at other times it is in the illegal assumption of power by transportation companies or other public utilities. It may even be in the obstruction of traffic by signs. For long periods a city may allow some dangerous practice to grow, but sooner or later it becomes necessary to insist on public respect for and recognition of the principle that the streets of our cities are for the use of our citizens and that any form of private monopoly or abuse of privilege cannot be tolerated. Even the municipality cannot deed away a right over which it has no control before the law.

Perhaps no one needs the reflection of the fact that the streets belong to the citizens more than the occasional automobile owner who feels that his mania for speed must not be checked, however pedestrian may run or jump to get out of his way. Not content with indulging his propensity to speed and arrogance where it may not harm anyone except himself, he shows little respect for municipal ordinances or private facilities when driving in the heart of the city but with his selfish gratification above the public good. Conditions have improved materially in Lowell of late, due to stricter supervision on the part of the authorities.

but there is still need to impress on the few the truth that the streets belong to all the people and not to any privileged group among them.

NEW RAILROAD BILL

The minority members of the legislative railroad committee seem to have agreed in their initial attempts to solve the railroad situation of New England for the substitute bill which has been introduced by Senator Fisher and Rep. George H. Ellis will go to the legislature with the approval of Public Service Commissioner George W. Anderson and Governor Walsh. The new bill provides for a complete separation of the two roads, it respects the rights of the stockholders and the commonwealth regarding the stock now held by the Boston Holdings company and finally it protects the minority stockholders. The approval of the governor was secured when Senator Fisher and Rep. Ellis called on him and declared that they approved of his general stand on the railroad question but differed from him in some positive ways about the application of his theories. The success of the new bill in reconciling those who were not unanimous in support of any prevailing measure will result in a new session of the railroad committee in the first instance and may lead to the settlement of the railroad question, though this question is so involved and hedged round with possibilities that action on any proposed bill cannot be forecasted too accurately.

The conviction seems to be growing in connection with this same railroad question, that the state of Massachusetts does not want to own its transportation system wholly or in part except as a last resort. If it should come in the present state of perplexed conditions, it could hardly be regarded other than as a necessary evil—and a few years of political instead of business management would tend to make matters infinitely worse than they are at present. The growing tendency now seems to be towards more careful state regulation so that the railroads may first of all be relieved from their present perilous position and then run in the interest of the public instead of a small group of selfishly interested financiers. It is to be hoped that the tentative bill to be considered by the Massachusetts legislature will prove a step in this direction.

CITY BOOMING

In a recent editorial on "City Booming" the St. Louis Star says pertinently: "The booming spirit is a mighty fine thing in a city, if the citizens realize what they are boasting, and boast in the right place." It goes on to state that the merits of a community as a place of residence or a place of business cannot be estimated from the wealth of the city, from the diversity of its manufactures, from the great number of its factories or its immense population. When a city begins to call attention to these things it is apt to become deluded, forgetting that a progressive city spirit, wise municipal regulations, and an efficient government are what make cities desirable to the prospective resident. The real booming looks within and finds enough to agitate at home without heralding the virtues of the city broadcast. When the home boasting secures the desired advantages, the outside advertising will take care of itself. As the St. Louis Star says:

"A million-dollar fund for better schools, better homes, fairer taxes, better and more democratic parks, lower car fares, cheaper light, heat and power, more clean pleasure for all the people, would be worth boasting for. Schools are afraid that this kind of boasting will not come for it is already sporting in spots. When it does become general it will put the old style form of boasting to shame."

PROPERTY DETERIORATION

The folly of letting railroad property deteriorate until the ultimate cost of repair is far in excess of what would have been spent for systematic upkeep has been demonstrated so unmistakably in this city that no one has a doubt of it. The danger of procrastination has also been forcibly proved. In the present state of public opinion it will not take many such occurrences such as the collapse of the Chestnut street bridge to arouse a storm of protest that no public utility could ignore with impunity. Probably the railroad already realizes this as forcibly as the public, and feels somewhat powerless, but nothing can justify economy that results in danger to the public.

In the matter of rolling stock also the railroad must be prepared to do a little more business than usual on special occasions. News comes from Grain producers and railroad men have held conferences so that the railroads will be ready especially to handle the wheat crop and so that all unnecessary delays may be eliminated.

TYPOGRAPHICAL CONVENTION

The delegates to the convention of the New England Typographical union opening here today are cordially welcomed not only by the local fellow members of the craft but by the other unions of the city, the press and the city government representing the entire people. The Typographical union nationally is probably the strongest and most progressive body of organized workers in this country. For this reason alone the convention assembling here today is an honor to our city which our citizens should fully appreciate. The Sun welcomes the delegates to Lowell and hopes their stay will be enjoyed in every possible manner.

THE RIVER PROJECT

The most ardent optimist in the ranks of those who have been boosting the navigation of the Merrimack river could not wish for more prompt or more convincing action than was displayed in the legislature, for the bill went through all its stages from the committee report to the governor's signature without a hitch. It now remains for the people of the Merrimack valley to turn their attention to the federal government, confident that the spirit which carried the project through the legislature will carry it triumphantly through congress. After many years of neglect the Merrimack is coming into its own.

SEEN AND HEARD

It is quite possible to crack a joke without damaging it.

The man who spends all his time looking for something better is very likely not to find it.

You are never apt to get a million dollars by figuring what you would do if you had it.

It is our theory that the inventor of the doughnut was no friend of humanity.

It isn't final proof of aristocracy to call the Young Thing in the family a debutante.

If a man had to go home from work to a campfire supper, how he would howl about it.

The eating of a good Sunday dinner is much more pleasant than clearing the dinner away and washing the dishes.

A poor man is always saying he would like to be rich because of the great amount of good he could do with his money.

"What made me mad," said one recent Sunday patron of the hotel, "is that they charged me a double price for a sandwich that was dry as a shingle and nearly as hard. But I got even. I bored a hole in it, so it can't be used again."

SOME COMPLICATION

Having been fully instructed in the intricacies of the white slave traffic as it exists among women who are immoral because they earn only $3.00 a week, instead of $5.12, says the New York Sun, the country is apparently to be educated in another phase of the same subject. The General Federation of Women's Clubs was informed on Tuesday as to the antecedents of several practitioners of the oldest profession that.

"Some of them are from homes such as yours—their fathers are merchants, real estate agents and managers of large business enterprises. One that we have interviewed is the daughter of a minister. Some are employed in department stores and offices."

"They are stenographers, cashiers, ticket sellers—some do not work, but live at home in idleness. Their fathers own yachts and automobiles. Some are in the grammar schools, some in high school."

And some call the young men of their home village "books." Thus the situation grows confused. A year ago the minimum wage would have wiped out the evil; today we must abolish automobiles, yachts, "books," even living at home, apparently.

The matter is not so simple as some earnest reformers are anxious to have us believe.

HOME, SWEET HOME

It was midnight. The burglar had entered the house as quietly as possible, but his shoes were not padded and they made a little noise. He had just reached the door of the bedroom when he heard some one moving in the hall as if about to get up and he paused. The sound of a woman's voice floated to his ears.

"If you don't take your boots off when you come into this house," it said, "there's going to be trouble and a whole lot of it. Here it's been raining for three hours, and you dare to tramp over my carpets with your mud."

NEARING THE END

You are drifting down the current, you are drifting with the tide, you are getting nearer every day to that great ocean wide, all your joints are getting rusty, age creeps on you unawares, and no more you feel upon your brow youth's soft and balmy hair. But what the use to worry when the storm is raging wild? A little further on, perhaps, the weather may get mild; and there's still a hope to cheer you as your boatlet speeds along, and there's still a daily reason for a bit of cheerful song.

You are drifting down the stream of time, the days are going by, but it doesn't do a bit of good to weep and pine and sigh. You are gliding down the river and it's hard to keep aloft; but you needn't wheeze and chub and snarl like some old motorboat. With your hand upon the rudder and your eye upon a star, keep the steering wheel within you till you drift across the bar.

A HEALTH

I'll this cup to one made up Of loveliness alone. A woman, of her gentle sex The seeming paragon— Whom the best elements And kindly stars have given A form so fair that like the air, 'Tis less of earth than heaven.

Her every tone is music's own. Like those of morning birds, And something more than melody Dwells in her voice. The melody of her heart are they, And from her lips each flows. As one may see the burdened bee Forth issue from the rose.

Affections are as thoughts to her. The measures of her hours: Her feelings have the fragrance, The freshness of young flowers. And lovely passions changing oft, So fill her, she appears The image of themselves, by turns— The idol of past years!

I'll this cup to one made up Of loveliness alone. The seeming paragon— Whom the best elements And kindly stars have given A form so fair that like the air, 'Tis less of earth than heaven.

TO PREVENT CRIME

The first step in what is described as a program to step outside of the prison walls and meet crime on its own ground—in the midst of society—has been taken by the management of the state prison at Jackson, Mich. An extension work department has been organized with the three-fold purpose of keeping young men out of prison, of aiding paroled prisoners to meet the terms of their pardon and of preventing discharged prisoners from coming back.

Four years ago Jackson prison was called one of the worst managed penal institutions in the country. In 1909 the legislature abolished the contract labor system and all but one of the pending contracts at Jackson expired July 1, 1912. The state account system of prison industry came in.

One of the next improvements at Jackson was the establishment, under the regime of Warden Nathan F. Simpson, of a grade and high school department under the direction of an ex-state superintendent of public instruction. The school offers a diploma to prisoners who complete its course and they are then eligible to enter the freshman class of any college in the state.

Warden Simpson then discovered that the average age of his prisoners is shifting downward. Ten years ago it was twenty-eight, today it is twenty-three. This seemed to indicate lax parental and social influences. Moreover, the management discerned that the attitude of society toward the ex-prisoner is such that he is almost compelled to find his associates among criminals.

A STOMACH TONIC

There is a form of indigestion called "atonic" dyspepsia. Atonic means "lack of tone." It is probably the most common form of indigestion but not much is heard about it because people are inclined to group all forms of dyspepsia as "stomach trouble" and the doctors let it go at that.

Lack of tone in the digestive organs means that the stomach is no longer able to do its work as nature intended. The nerves that control it are weak, the glands that supply the digestive fluids are not working properly. Gas on the stomach, sour risings in the chest and constipation result. The cause of the trouble is thin blood. Stomach, nerves and glands are all dependent on the blood and when it gets thin and watery they are at once weakened. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood and the first response from the stomach is a better appetite, freedom from distress after eating and an increase in ambition and energy generally. Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a stomach tonic and see how your general health improves.

Part of the announced plan is to organize each community to care for its wayward youth and to receive back the paroled and discharged men. The prison will send its chaplain, E. H. Lougher, and other agents in the various communities to lecture on the causes of crime and to effect local organizations auxiliary to the extension department.—From The Survey.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

"The Kissing Cup," one of the finest of racing reel plays, will be shown at the B. F. Keith theatre today and tomorrow, and should push interest up to a keen pitch. On Wednesday, owing to the fact that the high school graduation exercises will be held in the evening, no performances will be given. So a shorter time than usual will be allowed to lovers of sensational films to take in this reel feature. "The Kissing Cup" was built from a scenario written by a man who knows the racing game from first to last, and who was in a position to have motion photographs taken of practically all of the noted racing horses with their jockeys in America. He has built around the theme a story of compelling interest, and one which is literally crammed with thrills. In addition to this there will be the striking two-reel feature, "Convict 113," an amazing story of a reformed criminal, who dismisses from his life the only woman he ever loved, in an effort that she may be saved the taint of being a criminal's wife. As a story of redemption it stands forth as one of the most wonderful ever put on the stage. Two comedy pictures will also be shown. Beginning Thursday afternoon, and continuing through the remainder of the week, "Sealed Orders," a magnificent military picture in six reels, will be shown. Hundreds of men are brought into the picture, and the story is one which is full of thrills from beginning to end. It is a wonderful picture because the photographers have succeeded in getting together scenes which seem practically impossible for anybody to bring into a picture. The swiftness of the hand to hand fighting, the realistic bombardment of a town are some of the things which will make "Sealed Orders" one of the best pictures of the season. During the week Samuel Wallace will continue as the soloist. Admission is 10 cents in the theatre, with a few seats reserved at 15 cents and children being admitted for five cents. Performances begin at 2 and 7:15 p. m.

FIRE CAUSED $50,000 LOSS IN WORCESTER

Flames Started in Clothing Store and Spread Into Cellars of Riker-Jaynes and Liggett Hall & Lyon Drugstores

WORCESTER, June 22.—Fire which started from an unknown cause in the cellar of the D. H. Fames company clothing store at Main and Front streets early today did damage estimated at $50,000. The flames spread into the cellars of the Riker-Jaynes drugstore and the Liggett-Hall & Lyon drugstore. The buildings, all four story brick structures are filled with offices and small shops and they suffered from smoke but the principal loss was in the cellar from fire and water.

Fine Showing at the Exhibition of Work in the Vocational School

THE TWO GASOLINE ENGINES MADE BY STUDENTS

The exhibit at the vocational school showing the work of the boys' departments at the Mann and Old Bartlett schools attracted a great many visitors Saturday afternoon and was highly creditable to the school.

The electric department showed a great variety of work in the line of wiring and equipment which only an expert could understand.

Similarly in the automobile repair department there were to be seen various parts of automobiles upon which the students were working, their duty being to take the parts asunder and put them together again or to repair breaks or any defect that might occur in the mechanism.

Perhaps it was in the machine shop work that the products of the school were shown to the best advantage. Here were a great many articles actually made by the pupils, including lathes and different other pieces of machinery. The most important exhibits, however, were two cycle gasoline engines for motor boats, five or six horse power each. These engines attracted much attention and were admired by many practical machinists who visited the school.

In the carpentry department were seen many articles constructed by the student, such as screens, cabinets, desks, boxes, step ladders and many others calculated to train the young men in the different operations of carpentry.

Principal Fisher was congratulated upon the fine showing made and the state officials are well pleased with the results attained.

SPILLANE IS SENTENCED

Judge Enright Imposed Term of One Year in Stabbing Case—Defendant Appealed

Michael Spillane was sentenced to one year in the house of correction by Judge Enright in police court today for assault with a dangerous weapon upon John J. Moloney, a barber residing at 155 Pleasant street. Through his attorney, J. Joseph O'Connor, he appealed and was held in the sum of $300 for his appearance in superior court.

The assault occurred on June 4th, while Mr. Moloney was proceeding to his home about 11:30 o'clock in the evening. He was taken to St. John's hospital and was released but a few days ago, the case having been continued twice so that he could testify. In court today the complainant told of being stopped by Mr. Spillane near the corner of Pond and Concord streets and when he refused to talk to him, the defendant followed him for about 300 yards and then struck him in the side. Mr. Moloney said that he was not aware that he had been stabbed until he had walked several yards and then he felt the blood flowing from his wound. He identified Mr. Spillane as the man who committed the assault.

Officer Lane's Testimony
Patrolman Simon Lane testified that he went to the prisoner's house about 2:30 o'clock on the morning after Mr. Moloney was attacked and found a jack-knife covered with blood, on the kitchen table. He awoke Mr. Spillane and asked him about the matter but defendant denied any knowledge of it. The stained knife was presented as evidence. Sergt. McCleughry, who assisted the former witness in making the arrest, corroborated his statements.

Joseph Sharkey told the court that he heard Messrs. Moloney and Spillane disputing on Concord street and said that the former was requesting the defendant to go away and let him alone.

Dr. Loughran was summoned to testify to the extent of the complainant's injuries, but he arrived late and after a short delay over the local court's jurisdiction in the case the aforementioned sentence was imposed. Mr. Spillane was bailed out by John J. O'Connor.

Larceny Cases.

Costas Samaras pleaded not guilty to the larceny of $34 from a Greek Newspaper Co., but as the evidence presented was not sufficient to satisfy the court of his guilt the case was continued till tomorrow morning for further consideration.

It seems that Samaras was engaged to deliver newspapers in the upper Market street district and the government contends that he collected money for these papers which he never turned over to the company. However, there was no evidence presented to this effect, but the complainant said he could bring in more witnesses and he was held in the sum of $200 for his appearance tomorrow.

Walter Hayes, alias Francis Keefe, the young man who was arrested by Patrolman Kennedy on Church street last Saturday forenoon, after stealing a pocketbook and a ring from Rose Zabalski, was ordered committed to the house of correction for four months.

Deputy Downey produced a letter from the police department of Manchester, N. H., which showed that the defendant had been arrested many times in the Queen city.

According to the evidence presented in court today Hayes went into a house on Church street, pretending to sell oil and while the woman was busy washing the door picked the purse containing $34 and a ring from the table.

He pleaded guilty but asked for an opportunity to do better as he had a wife ill in New Hampshire. The court ordered that the sentence be too serious, however, and a sentence to the house of correction was imposed.

Napoleon Bolsvert and Adelard Gervais were charged with disturbing the peace by obstructing the sidewalk and striking blows at each other and at pedestrians who were passing at the time. The men said that the fight was the result of a game of pool which did not end favorably to one of the pair. Both are working at the present time and each was asked to pay a fine of $10 within the next month.

Manuel Robella, Antonio Francis and Silvian Francis were arrested yesterday by Patrolman Regan and brought into court today charged with drunkenness while the second man was charged with assault upon the arresting officer. Each were fined $10 for the drunkenness charge and Antonio was given a suspended sentence of four months to the house of correction.

Two men were fined five dollars for drunkenness, one was sent to the state farm and another was given a suspended sentence of two months in jail. Two men and a woman were arrested in a house on Marshall street late Saturday evening by Patrolmen Drewett and Cullinan where it is al-

MAN WAS FOUND DYING

AND TAKEN TO THE POLICE STATION—TWO OTHER ACCIDENTS YESTERDAY

While patrolling his beat late Saturday night, Officer Drewett found a man named Clifford Cox, aged 32 years, of 2 in the rear of 60 Middlesex street, lying near his home in a very weak condition. The ambulance was summoned and the man was removed to the Chelmsford street hospital where he died a short time after it was stated at the hospital that he was suffering from lack of food and care when he arrived at the institution. Cox leaves a father, with whom he lived, and other relatives.

At one time he worked in a second-hand store on Middlesex street.

Accident at Tyngsboro

A fatal accident was narrowly averted at the Tyngsboro bridge yesterday afternoon while the water services were being held when a motorcyclist in attempting to avoid running into Mrs. Anna Bodwin of Lowell swerved his machine and struck against the railing of the bridge. Fortunately no one was seriously injured.

The accident occurred just at the conclusion of the flower memorial services. Two automobiles were proceeding across the bridge while the motor cycle was going in the opposite direction. The driver of the cycle turned his machine to the right so as to pass the automobiles and in so doing he grazed Mrs. Bodwin and bumped into the bridge. The woman's cheek was slightly cut and the rider was thrown but not seriously hurt. The woman was dressed by Dr. Lambert who was passing at the time.

Man Broke Leg

While jumping from a boat to the shore of the Merrimack river yesterday afternoon, Joseph F. Sears of 171 Broadway, landed on a rock, sustaining a fracture of the leg. Mr. Sears had attended the outing of the Lowell Motor club and was crossing the river in a boat, to board an electric car for Lowell when the accident occurred. The ambulance was called and he was removed to the Lowell hospital for treatment.

Frank Wells of 27 Stackpole street fell to the platform while getting off a train at Ayer yesterday afternoon and was slightly cut and bruised. His condition is not serious.

LOWELL MAN'S BROTHER KILLED AT NO. READING

Charles S. Harris Shot by His Brother James After a Quarrel Over Chopping Wood—Slayer Surrendered—Brothers of Rev. Benjamin Harris

NORTH READING, June 22.—James Harris, aged 38, a farmer and special policeman, shot and killed his brother, Charles S. Harris, 36, yesterday morning in the kitchen of the house on Chestnut street where the bachelor brothers have lived a lonely life for a score of years.

The news of the tragedy was first told by James Harris himself when, leaving his house about 12:15, he met Edward Coran, a friend, who was on his way to call on the Harris brothers. Harris told Coran that he had shot his brother. He then walked to the home of Constable Thomas Crosswell, but that official was already on his way to the scene of the tragedy, having been summoned by a neighbor's telephone.

James then kept on to the office of Dr. George W. Averill, asking him to come to the Harris house at once and repeating his confession. He then returned home, where Constable Crosswell was in charge. His brother was dead. Constable Crosswell notified the state police and Dr. Roscoe B. Perley of Melrose, the medical examiner.

Quarrelled for Long Time
To the constable and other town officials, James said he and his brother had had trouble for years and had not spoken for a long time except to quarrel. He claimed the shooting yesterday was done in self-defense.

James story is that yesterday he found Charles chopping wood at the block in the yard. He told him to desist and Charles refused. A dispute ensued and both grew excited and angry. Charles raised the axe and came toward James, uttering threats of violence. The elder retreated to the kitchen, Charles following him with the axe.

Once within the house James drew his revolver and struck his brother, hitting him with the butt of the weapon on the forehead, a bruise on the head of the dead man bearing out this statement.

James Discharges Revolver
Charles continued to advance. Then James fired three or four shots, aiming at his brother's legs, and the marks of imbedded bullets in the kitchen walls seem to corroborate this. Then another shot was fired, entering the right breast, penetrating the diaphragm and the liver and lodging under the skin on the left side, of the back.

The wounded man fell, and James walked out of the house to seek help and give himself up. It was then he encountered Coran, who with his family was spending the day. Mrs. Alice Harris, a neighbor, and who was about to call on the brothers.

In response to the call of Constable Crosswell, State Officer Silas P. Smith arrived within an hour, and Dr. Perley came later and performed an autopsy. His verdict is death from a fatal hemorrhage caused by a bullet wound.

James Harris was taken to the Reading police station, where he will spend the night.

Brothers of Lowell Clergyman
Charles S. Harris, the victim, was a shoemaker and worked in a building in the yard near the farmhouse. The two brothers have been residents of North Reading about 40 years. Their mother died 25 years ago. For 20 years they have lived alone in the Chestnut-street house, James conducting the farm.

Rev. Benjamin Harris of Lowell is a brother. Both brothers spent Saturday evening in Lawrence. To these who gathered at the Harris house yesterday afternoon and to the officers James seemed not to realize the gravity of his act, the only time he exhibited any emotion being when he made good-bye to his sister before starting with Constable Crosswell for Reading.

FORMAL CHARGE OF MURDER MADE AGAINST JAMES HARRIS TODAY
WOBURN, June 22.—A formal charge of murder was made in the district court here today against James Harris, who is alleged to have shot and killed his brother, Charles, at their home in North Reading yesterday. By agreement of counsel, the case was continued until June 27 for a hearing.

James was committed without bail to the Middlesex county jail at East Cambridge.

Harris surrendered to the police yesterday, telling them that he had shot his brother in self-defense. He said that Charles attacked him with an axe and that he fired in self-defense.

James continued to advance. Then James fired three or four shots, aiming at his brother's legs, and the marks of imbedded bullets in the kitchen walls seem to corroborate this. Then another shot was fired, entering the right breast, penetrating the diaphragm and the liver and lodging under the skin on the left side, of the back.

The wounded man fell, and James walked out of the house to seek help and give himself up. It was then he encountered Coran, who with his family was spending the day. Mrs. Alice Harris, a neighbor, and who was about to call on the brothers.

In response to the call of Constable Crosswell, State Officer Silas P. Smith arrived within an hour, and Dr. Perley came later and performed an autopsy. His verdict is death from a fatal hemorrhage caused by a bullet wound.

James Harris was taken to the Reading police station, where he will spend the night.

GENERAL VILLA ORDERS ADVANCE OF REBEL TROOPS ON ZACATECAS WHERE A DESPERATE BATTLE IS EXPECTED

TORREON, June 22.—General Villa, who showed his teeth to Carranza and is now in undisputed sway of the federal troops in northern and central Mexico, has given orders to push toward Zacatecas, where the federales expect to make a desperate stand. If the peace negotiations end and war with Mexico on the part of the United States ensues it is likely that Villa will push on toward Vera Cruz or Tampico with a part of his army to fight with the federales against the Americans.

CHARLES LYONS

Said to be From Lowell
Drowned at Suncook,
N. H.

Late yesterday afternoon word reached this city that Charles A. Lyons, aged 63 years, who claimed Lowell as his home city, was drowned in the Suncook river at Suncook, N. H., early Sunday morning. According to the story told the Suncook police the drowned man and a brother went to sleep on the bank of the river Saturday night and sometime before morning Charles rolled from his sleeping place into the water. When the body was found only the head was submerged. An attempt to locate relatives of the dead man in this city brought to light the fact that a Charles Lyons formerly lived near the Chelmsford line and it is believed he is the man.

PUT TO DEATH

Tool of "Black Hand"
Syndicate Executed at
Sing Sing Today

OSSINING, N. Y., June 22.—Peter Rebacci, a 19-year-old Italian, a tool of a "black hand" syndicate in Westchester county, was put to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison today for the murder of Tony Marro, of White Plains. Rebacci had figured in other crimes and on his promise to expose the workings of the murder syndicate Governor Glynn granted him a six months' reprieve. His confession will be used at the trial of four other members of the syndicate.

The electrocution today was conducted by E. B. Currier of Massachusetts in the absence of E. F. Davis, the state electrician, who is ill at his home at Cornish. This is the first execution by electricity in this state Davis has missed. He has executed 111 criminals.

Friday, July 3rd, is "Quarter Day" at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank.

JILT MAN SHOT GIRL

GARDNER, June 22.—Miss Wanda Rakowski, aged 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Rakowski of 490 Massant street, was shot through the body at 12:15 yesterday morning by Antonio Jost, aged 30, a boarder in her home. The bullet passed through her left arm was deflected by the left shoulder blade and was removed by Dr. J. B. Donnelly.

The shooting took place in a room occupied by the girl Jost, who had the room across the hallway, then turned the weapon upon himself and fired three bullets into his head, one behind the left ear, one in his jaw and the third in the fleshy part of his neck. He was found unconscious on the floor and with the girl was taken to the Henry Hayward Memorial hospital.

At the hospital last night it was reported that the girl would probably recover. Jost, however, is in a serious condition, but an effort will be made to find the bullets in his head by the X-ray.

According to the parents of the girl, the cause of the shooting is ascribed to jealousy. Jost was anxious to marry Miss Rakowski but the young woman spurned his advances. They were both employed in a toy factory on Mill at and Jost, for the past three months, boarded with the Rakowski family.

DELIGHTFUL LAWN PARTY
A delightful lawn party was held Saturday afternoon at the grounds of Mrs. C. R. Hunter, 616 Princeton street, under the auspices of the Dances of Mrs. C. R. Hunter. The program included a training school and general dancing on the green. The grounds were prettily decorated and booths and tables containing teas and other dainties were erected here and there and all did a prosperous business. The officers in charge were as follows:

Mrs. C. F. Hunter, in general charge, assisted by Mrs. Esther Whitaker, Mrs. Smith, Miss Bertrand, Mrs. Samuel Arnold, Miss Mildred Perkins, Miss Ruth Hunter, Miss Florence Hunter, Miss Nellie Whitaker and Miss Lillian Whitaker. Sir knights assisting: Messrs. Elmer D. Robinson, William H. Saunders, Arthur Delong and Harry Merrill. The crowd booth: Misses Nellie Whitaker and Florence Hunter. Tea booth: Misses Ruth Hunter, Irene McDonald and Mildred Perkins. Supper committee: Mrs. Elmer D. Robinson, Mrs. Fred Bailey and Mrs. Samuel Arnold.

HELD AN IDEAL OUTING

Hamilton and Other Industrial Concerns Joined in Day's Outing at Nantasket Beach

In the good old summertime there are many outings of all degrees of social success; there are good outings, better outings and best outings. At the head of the list is the annual outing of the Hamilton Manufacturing Co. of this city, which this year was held jointly with the Merrimack Utilization Co. of Lowell, the Sharp Manufacturing Co. of New Bedford and the Mason Machine Co. of Taunton. These who took part in the affair, to the number of about 200, were the superintendents, overseers, office clerks and others connected officially with the various companies. All the heads of departments were present. The joint outing is the idea of Mr. Arthur H. Sharp, who wishes by this means to keep in personal touch with those directing the many allied industries. At this outing a personal gift of $50 in gold is given to the superintendent or overseer whose department has made the greatest record for efficiency during the year. For the past two years the prize has come to the Hamilton Co. but this year it went to an employee of the Sharp Co. in New Bedford.

The happy representatives of the Hamilton Co. met in Merrimack square on Saturday at 9:15 and took a special car to Rowe's wharf, where they were joined by representatives of the other industries. The larger crowd then took the boat to Nantasket beach and went direct to the beautiful Villa Napoli on the heights above the sea. Here the crowd formed two by two and each man was presented to Mr. Sharp.

Shortly after their arrival all sat down to a splendid banquet which was as remarkable for quality as for quantity—a fact which the party with appetites well sharpened appreciated. During the banquet there was a fine concert performance by the resident amusement troupe, some pretty members of which had a more or less magnetic attraction for a few of the Lowell men—names mentioned.

At the conclusion of the banquet a social time was enjoyed and several brief speeches were made. Thomas S. Pendergast presided, and made many pertinent introductions, the humor of which added not a little to the enjoyment. When Mr. Arthur H. Sharp was introduced as the first speaker, the crowd rose and gave three cheers, winding up with the spirited singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Mr. Sharp expressed his delight at being present and announced that the winner of the prize for efficiency was Henry Denoyer of the Sharp Co. New Bedford.

Col. Peter H. Corr of Taunton, chairman of the Massachusetts commission on the Panama canal, invited these present to hold their next outing at San Francisco, promising them all manner of good times.

Mr. Stephen C. Lowe of the John Hetherington Machine Manufacturing Co. expressed his love for all outdoor and all good things, especially Arthur Sharp. He said that outbursts such as that of the allied industries go a great way towards promoting good business relations and cooperative efficiency.

D. L. Pendergast of the Boston Elevated, who started his business career with the old Hamilton, proved the hit of the occasion as at previous banquets. He complimented the Hamilton on the fact that he had left it and kept the audience laughing continually by his bright play of words. After telling a number of anecdotes he expressed his belief that the outings of the Sharp companies are excellent from a business standpoint and he declared that if all employers would pattern themselves on Mr. Sharp, business would be on a better foundation. The closer the employer and employee get, he said, the better for the country. In conclusion he hoped that he will be present at the next and all future reunions. The last speaker was Mr. Charles Clark of the "Textile Manufacturer" who made many witty references to the business policies of the administration.

At the head table sat the following: Stephen C. Lowe, D. L. Pendergast, Thomas P. Glennon, Arthur H. Sharp, S. S. Widger, Col. Peter H. Corr and Charles H. Clark. Other guests were: A. J. Houghton, Walter F. Keenna, Robert J. Curran, Theodore May, Preston M. Trull, of the Clarence Whitman Co.; John Sullivan of Catlin & Co.; John K. Whittier, Saco-Lowell Machine Co.; James Cooper and E. A. Rooney of the Whitman Machine Co.; Chas. A. Falvey of J. M. Pendergast Co.; Chas. H. Tuttle, Henry J. Ballou of the S. C. Lowe Supply Co.; E. A. Warren, Universal Winding Co.; Joseph McLean, J. J. Pendergast Co.; W. D. Beal of Cooper and Brush; George Livinius, E. A. Shaw Co.; Geo. H. Whiting, D. H. Dickson Co.; F. H. Dering, Barry Thayer Co.; Ralph Lawson, Linderman and Co.; C. B. Perchard, Robert W. Mead, Ingersoll, Avery & Co.; Nathaniel Kinsman, Jr., Chromo Berach Co. and G. E. Baker.

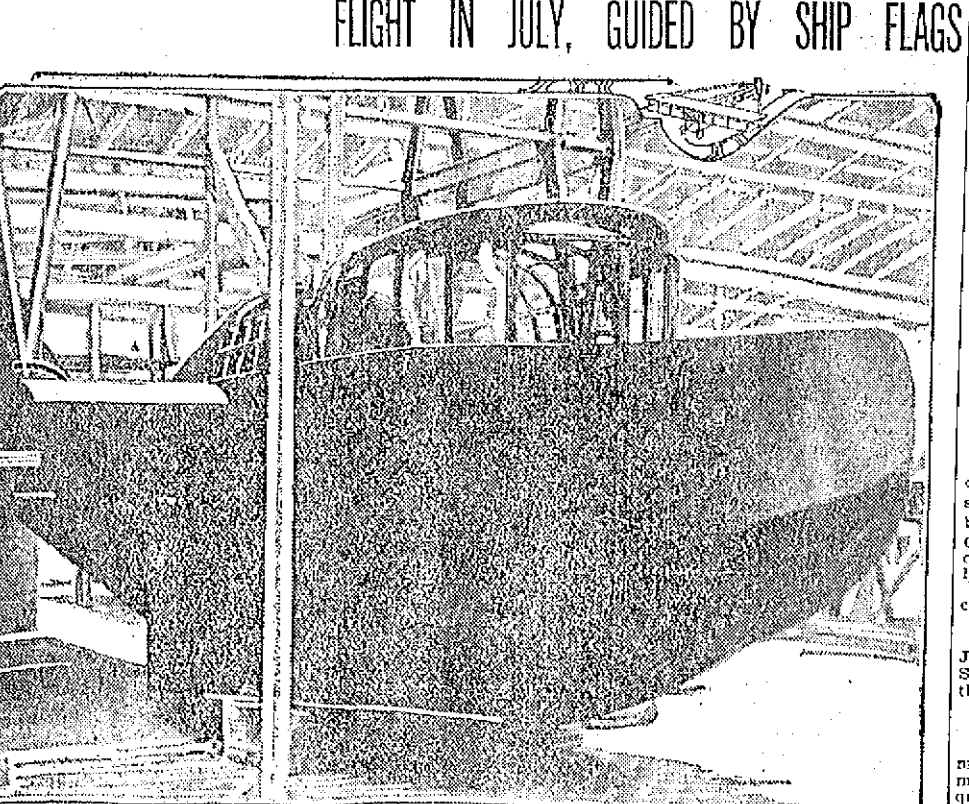

After the banquet the crowd assembled in the ball grounds where, after a photograph had been taken, a stiff game was played between the Hamilton and Merrimack Utilization companies of Lowell combined and the Mason and Sharp companies opposed. Despite the good work of Charles Sharkey who pitched for Lowell and the strenuous rooting of Supl. A. D. Milliken of the Hamilton and others, the Sharp team won by a score of 7 to 5. A buffet lunch was served on the grounds after the game and it was a very tired though happy group which turned towards home in the cool evening. Mr. A. D. Milliken of the Hamilton Co. had general charge of all local arrangements.

Interest begins Friday, July 3rd, at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank.

Wallace E. Safford of Mattapan, Mass., a graduate of the Lowell high school, class '12, has successfully passed his entrance examinations to West Point. The young man is only 12 years of age and is now completing a three-year enlistment in the National Guard as sergeant.

Over 500 members and friends of the Grace Episcopal church and friends of the church held a field day and picnic held Saturday at Lakeview park and which proved even more successful than its predecessors. During the day games were played and a well arranged sporting program was carried out under the direction of the young men's Sunday school class.

Two young men, said to be residents of Dracut, drove a horse from Lawrence to Lowell at a record speed last evening and when the animal arrived in this city it was examined by the Lowell humane society officers and later turned over to a veterinary for treatment. The matter was reported to the police.

The first outing of the season of the Lowell Motor Boat club was held yesterday at the outing grounds of the club on the shores of the Merrimack river near Nashua. About 100 members took part in the affair and at 9 o'clock between 15 and 20 boats with flags flying left the boat house near Faguet street and led by Commodore Fred Holmes, threaded their way up the stream. The return trip was started in the early afternoon.

The police have been asked to locate one John Ralph, a cotton weaver, formerly of Lawrence, but now believed to be in this city. He is wanted to appear in the court house at Providence, R. I., tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, when an administrator will be appointed for the estate of his sister, Eliza A. Ralph, who died at Providence, May 15. Mr. Ralph is also asked to communicate with Mrs. McGovern, 63 Kingston street, Lawrence, or Mrs. J. H. Grady, 21 Bailey street, same city.

CATHOLIC CHURCH NEWS

Rev. James P. Cookin Sings First Mass at Immaculate—Graduation at St. Michael's

Rev. James P. Cookin, son of Mrs. James Cookin, 824 Rogers street, this city, sang his first mass yesterday at 11 o'clock. Fr. Cookin was ordained recently at St. Mary's seminary, Emmetsburg, Md. He was born in Tewksbury but spent most of his life in Lowell where both he and the other members of his family are well known and widely respected.

Yesterday the church was crowded with relatives and friends of the young priest, and with others to whom a priest's first mass makes an especial appeal. His mother, brothers and sisters were present, including one sister who is nun in a convent at Convent Station, N. J. The altar was massed with roses and other reasonable flowers and the musical program was particularly elaborate. Throughout the ceremony was most impressive.

Fr. Cookin's assistant in the mass was Rev. Hugh McDermott of Our Lady of the Presentation church in Brighton, formerly of St. Peter's, and the deacon and subdeacon respectively were Rev. Terence P. Loftus, O. M. I., and Rev. Patrick McConnell of St. Joseph's seminary, Baltimore.

Rev. Patrick J. Phelan, O. M. I., preached the sermon, which was an eloquent exposition of the dignity of the priesthood. The text was: "The Lord hath sworn and will not repent: Thou art a priest forever according to the order of Melchizedek." (Ps. CLX-4.)

After dwelling on the personal traits and characteristics of Fr. Cookin, and complimenting both himself and his family on the culmination of his hopes, Fr. Phelan said:

"Before the newly ordained priest proceeds of the holy sacrifice of the mass it is but fitting that we pause for a moment to contemplate his Christ-like powers, as ambassador of God in the pulpit, as judge in the tribunal of penance and as officer of the adorable sacrifice at the altar."

As God's ambassador the priest bears a commission from Jesus Christ. "As the Father hath sent Me, I also send you." "Go, therefore, teach ye all nations." (John XV, 21.) St. Paul says when the priest speaks it is Christ that is exhorting by his lips: "For Christ we are ambassadors. God as if we were exhorting by us." (2 Cor. V, 20). Nay Christ identifies himself with His priests when He said to them through His Apostles: "He the first mass that was ever offered on this earth. Behold Christ on that first night Thursday evening sitting at the banquet table surrounded by His 12 apostles. What a sad and sorrowful occasion was that for the world's redeemer. The shadows of Calvary were closing deeper and thicker upon Him, while His own chosen people were without clamoring for His blood and all the evil powers of earth and hell were plotting His ruin. Yet it was on that night (as if to show in the most striking manner possible) His great love for man) that Jesus Christ performed His greatest miracle and bestowed upon the world the best gift in His power. Into His hands He took bread and wine and over them pronounced the solemn words of consecration. And as at the words, "Let there be light, and the light was made," so at the omnipotent words of Christ, "This is my body. This is my blood," instantly the substance of the bread and wine ceased to be, and in its place came the body and blood, soul and divinity of Jesus Christ. To His apostles He said, "Take ye and eat. This is my body. Drink ye all of this. This is my blood, which shall be shed for many unto the remission of sins." Thus the first mass was offered; the first holy communion administered. Yea, more, the first ordination of God's priests took place for upon His apostles Jesus at once bestowed power to do as He had done. "Do ye this in commemoration of Me, for as often as you shall eat this bread or drink this chalice you shall show the death of the Lord until He come." (1 Cor. xi, 26.) Thus the apostles and their successors in the ministry were empowered by Christ Himself to perpetuate to new throughout all time, the great sacrifice of Calvary and to shed its graces, its blessings, its merits, upon every individual soul. Hence, dear brethren, when God's anointed priest, standing at this altar today, shall pronounce the solemn words first pronounced by Christ over 1800 years ago, the same stupendous miracle shall take place in this church as took place in the cenacle at Jerusalem.

"When this newly ordained priest, with the authority and in the name and person of Jesus Christ, shall bend low over the bread and wine on the altar, and whisper with trembling lips the sacred and all powerful words, 'This is my body. This is my blood,' immediately on the altar shall come the body and blood of Jesus Christ. Yes, here in our very presence—in the hands of the priest will be that Jesus Christ, who once immolated Himself on Calvary to redeem the whole world, and who now immolates Himself on the altar for His own faithful children. Here then upon our altars is the adorable victim, Jesus Christ, to which the whole world contains nothing to be compared; even heaven itself contains nothing greater or more holy. Here is enacted a sacrifice worthy of the great God Himself. Well could the eternal Father, looking down on the sacred and consecrated host as uplifted in the hands of His priest, exclaim: 'This is by beloved Son in whom I am well pleased.' O venerable and exalted dignity of the priest of God! What office can be conceived or imagined greater than that of Christ's priest? Again, I repeat in the whole range of God's creatures there is nothing to surpass their dignity and power, especially as exercised in the pulpit, in the confessional, and at the altar."

Sacred Heart Church

At the 11 o'clock mass at the Sacred Heart church yesterday the 40 hours' devotion service, which opened Friday, was brought to a close with beautiful and impressive exercises. As yesterday was also the feast of the Sacred Heart, the day was one of general observance. Solemn high mass was sung, during which a musical program of rare excellence was given by the church choir, directed by John J. Kelly, and the sanctuary choir, in charge of Rev. James T. McDermott, O. M. I. The blessed sacrament incensed in a beautiful monstrance was exposed on the main altar during the three days of the devotion and was carried in a procession at the conclusion of yesterday's mass, after which it was removed to the tabernacle while the procession marched through the aisles of the church, the choir alternating in singing hymns appropriate to the occasion. Upon the return of the procession to the sanctuary, the service closed with solemn benediction of the blessed sacrament.

N. E. TYPOGRAPHICAL CONVENTION OPENED

WILLIAM E. TRUMP,
President N. E. T. U.

JOHN V. DONOGHUE,
President Local T. U.

Large Number of Delegates Assembled — Opening Addresses of Welcome by Pres. Donoghue, Mayor Murphy and Others — Convention Program

Lowell is entertaining manipulators of the type from all over the country, for the great New England Typographical union has convened here for a three days session. There are a great many quite prominent men connected with the union that embraces all of the New England states and there will be some interesting speaking before the session closes. The local types will leave no stone unturned in their endeavor to give the visitors the time of their lives. An elaborate program has been arranged and the men in charge will see to it that all of the details are carried out to a nicety. The program includes a banquet, with prominent speakers at 8 o'clock this evening at Prescott hall and a field day tomorrow at Canobie lake.

Convention Formally Opened
The convention was formally opened at 10 o'clock this morning in Knights of Liberty hall, Harrington building, Central street, with a fine program of music, speeches by local and visiting officials, and a general social time. The address of welcome was by President John V. Donoghue, followed by Mayor Dennis J. Murphy and Secretary John H. Murphy of the Lowell board of trade. The response to the address of President Donoghue was made by President Wm. C. Trump of the New England body and it was a trump speech.

The opening prayer was by Rev. Joseph A. Curtin of St. Patrick's church. Address of Welcome
President John V. Donoghue made an address of welcome, speaking in part as follows:
"In the presence of these distinguished guests, as president of Lowell Typographical union, No. 310, it is a great honor to me and a happy privilege, to formally open this convention of the New England Typographical union and to welcome you on this fine June morning in the name of our organization to the City of Lowell, the home of the best printers in the east, and the home of a peaceful and law-abiding people, whom I know recognize in you the representatives of a craft whose close application to the art preservative of arts, all these years has succeeded in adding much to the typography of our papers and publications. Here in Lowell the highest standard of perfection has been maintained and the artistic tendencies of our craft have been preserved to posterity.
"A printing office is the greatest college in the world; someone said years ago. How well, how strikingly is that saying exemplified in the intelligence of those who follow the trade, how well it has aided in the growth, the prosperity, the stability and the tremendous success our splendid organization is enjoying all over North America, with over 700 subordinate unions, approximating 70,000 members in the United States, Canada, Cuba, Hawaii and the Philippines; with a pension system, with a finely equipped, healthful printers' home in Colorado, with a mortuary benefit fund and with a technical school for the proper teaching of apprentices, I make the positive statement, defying contradiction, that the International Typographical union, as at present constituted, has fulfilled the hopes and the fondest dreams of its founders, standing today as the leading trades organization in the world and ready to go forward in the onward march of progress in all that pertains to honest and safely guided union-like methods.
"It is enough to say that just so long as the Typographical union will endure, just so long with honest, conscientious, conservative, patient effort be the dominating factors, the compelling force in trades unionism. In your leisure moments, apart from the sessions of the convention, during your brief stay with us here, I hope that the inspiration of your meeting will stimulate you on to further effort and to further accomplishment in the years to come, to the end that the International Typographical union will be the shining star of the printing world, even more potent and more beneficial in its praiseworthy mission of help and honor to the printers of the civilized world."

The City's Welcome
Mayor Murphy extended the city's welcome to the delegates and other visitors and assured them that the city felt honored in entertaining men of their calibre. The mayor said that his private secretary, Mr. John Cull, had added very materially to his interest in the convention.

"An associated," said his Honor, "with a man who helped to build up the organization so splendidly represented here today. I refer to my private secretary, Mr. Cull. He is an old and honored member of the Typographical union and he worked for years at his trade as printer. He has been slugging the presses of this organization day in and day out and I must confess that his enthusiasm has proved contagious. For I've caught it, and while I represent the city of Lowell as chief executive, yet I feel a great personal interest, especially because of the stories of achievement told me by Mr. Cull.
"It would be impossible to think of a class of men more welcome than yourselves and Lowell appreciates the many great things you represent. We have a beautiful city and I sincerely hope that you will visit the many points of interest before you say goodbye. I hope that you will not only visit the city hall, memorial building, stores and our mammoth manufacturing plants, but that you will also avail yourselves of the opportunity of taking some of the delightful trolley rides out of Lowell. There are short rides out of here that furnish the most exquisite scenery in the country."

TITLE TO $700,000,000 WORTH OF OIL LANDS

Transcontinental Railroads Won Their Fight When Supreme Court Held Void the Clause in Patents, Making Land Revert to Government if Found to Contain Minerals

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Transcontinental railroads won their fight for title to some $700,000,000 worth of oil lands when the supreme court today held void the clause in the patents making the land revert to the government, if found to contain minerals.

Justice Vandever announced the supreme court's decision today in the California cases involving the right of transcontinental railroads to seven hundred million dollars' worth of oil lands. The first point was decided in favor of the government—that all lands were mineral lands.

This was precisely the contention of the attorneys for the railroads.

Justice Van Devanter pointed out that all the land patents granted to railroads since 1860 contained a clause declaring the land should not pass from the government if later it was found to contain minerals.

"Let us see what this would mean in the case of the Northern Pacific," said he. "The Northern Pacific got every alternate section of land in a forty mile wide strip from Duluth to the Pacific. Should these clauses be held valid the question would arise as to whether those who long ago purchased from the railroad and created farms, ranches and towns upon them had any rights."

The company contended that evidence could not be presented at this day to show that the lands were mineral and that the issues of the patents was conclusive proof that they were not.

It also argued that the exception was void.

Justice Van Devanter held that a general statute made it the duty of the secretary of the interior to inquire whether the lands were of the class for which a patent could be issued.

Referring to the practice of the land office, Justice Van Devanter said it had been the uniform practice to decide whether the land was within the limits of the application when the application was made and before the issuing of the patent.

The government has a separate suit, distinguished from the case today, to cancel the patents to oil lands held by the transcontinental carriers.

Today's decision was in a case brought by Edmund Burke of California, who claimed the right to lands now held by the Southern Pacific on the ground that they should revert to the government because oil had been found after the issue of the patent to the railroad.

Inasmuch as all the transcontinental lines have similar lands they came into the proceeding. The court decided practically only one point in favor of the government's contentions—that oil lands were mineral lands.

The recovery, however, of lands exceeding in value seven times all the gold coin in the United States and more than all the personal property and real estate taxed in Louisiana, Rhode Island, Virginia, North Carolina or Nebraska was involved.

of incorrect transmission of the name, it was reported last night that the schooner J. R. Allison was sunk in the Gulf and that the crew was being brought here on the steamer Antilles. The Antilles arrived here today but her officer said the boat lost was the J. O. Ellison, Tampa for New Orleans.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The supreme court today affirmed the decree of the New York federal court holding organizations of eastern states retail lumber dealers had violated the Sherman anti-trust law by circulating among their members black lists of wholesalers who sold lumber direct to big consumers.

CONCORD, N. H., June 22.—Council for the Boston & Maine railroad have filed in the superior court for Merrimack county an answer to the suit brought by Mrs. Clementine B. Wentworth of this city, a stockholder in the railroad, asking for the annulment of the express transportation contract between the American Express company and the Boston & Maine railroad on the ground of its inequity to the latter corporation and its having been obtained by the dominating influence of interlocking directors.

BIG CONSPIRACY CASE

DEFENSE IN $50,000 SUIT OF MRS. HOLMAN AGAINST FORMER HUSBAND RESTED

HARTFORD, June 22.—The defense in the $50,000 conspiracy suit of Mrs. Elizabeth Curtis Holman against her former husband, Prof. Granston Brenton and Dr. O. C. Smith and Paul Waterman, rested today.

Mrs. Holman alleges that Professor Brenton and the two physicians, conspired to place her in a retreat. Mrs. Holman, called to the stand in rebuttal, was asked if in view of the evidence given by the physicians and other witnesses for the defense she desired to change her testimony. She replied "No." Her counsel produced the certificate of the "mystic marriage" between her and Holman and signed by the latter as a notary and attempted to question her about it. The court, however, ruled the questions out.

TY COBB MAY BE ARRESTED

DETROIT, Mich., June 22.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the famous outfielder of the Tigers, may be defendant in a suit for damages as a result of the trouble he caused in the butcher shop of W. D. Carpenter Saturday night. Cobb, who pointed a loaded revolver at Carpenter and then assaulted Harold Harring, another employee, when Har- old attempted to interfere.

Carpenter conferred with his attorney today and said he was undecided whether to ask to have Cobb arrested or seek damages in a civil suit. Ty in a signed statement to the newspapers, says he went to Carpenter's place of business to demand an apology for an alleged insult to Mrs. Cobb, and took a loaded revolver to protect himself.

WRECK INQUIRY

Second Officer of Stordstad on the Stand at Quebec Today

QUEBEC, June 22.—The second officer of the Stordstad, Einar Reithertz, took up the story of the Empress of Ireland tragedy today when the government commission began the second week of its investigation. Reithertz was asleep in his berth when the steamers collided and his testimony had to do with events that followed. He said that he took charge of one of the boats lowered from the Stordstad and rescued 50 persons from the water on the first trip, although the boat was supposed to carry only 30. He did not have to row far, he said, to reach the people in the water. He thought that the Empress might have been two or three hundred feet from his boat when she went down.

Knut Tonder, a sailor on the collector, said that the Empress was on the port bow of the Stordstad when he first saw her. He could tell by the vibration of the propeller, he said, that the Stordstad's engines had been put astern.

STUBBORN BARN FIRE

IN THE HIGHLANDS

Barn of Josiah Butler, Damaged — Contents Saved by Commissioners Carmichael, Donnelly and Chief Saunders — Blaze Had Good Start

Shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon an alarm from box 54 summoned the fire department to the corner of Stevens and Princeton streets, where the stable of Josiah Butler was ablaze.

It happened very fortunately that Commissioners Carmichael and Donnelly with Chief Saunders of the fire department were driving up Harvard street at the time and were first to notice the blaze. They drove quickly to the scene and after ringing the alarm all three set to work to clear the barn of its contents as the fire had already attained considerable headway. An automobile and various other articles of value were removed and the chief's first inquiry was, if there was any gasoline on the premises and it was understood that a quantity was removed.

The blaze was quite a stubborn one and it required the use of a considerable amount of water to place it under control. The extent of the damage at the time was going to press could not be estimated.

Col. Carmichael gave his first demonstration of fire fighting and apparently Chief Saunders was proud of the fireman's dash into the burning building with Commissioner Donnelly at his heels. The auto was quickly removed and Chief Saunders' expert knowledge guarded against explosion. The roof was practically destroyed and the interior gutted.

FATAL LAUNCH ACCIDENT WILL SUPPORT TREATIES

INVESTIGATION OF CAUSE OF MISHAP WHICH RESULTED IN THE DROWNING OF 12

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 22.—An investigation of the launch accident which resulted in the drowning of 12 people in the Oswego canal last night is being made under the direction of Governor Moore. There were 20 passengers in the boat and it was reported today that the craft was licensed to carry not more than 10 passengers. It was raining at the time of the accident and the canvas curtains had been pulled down and buttoned securely so that the boat proved a trap for its passengers.

Seven children are numbered among the victims. Three women and two men were also drowned. Only one of the children on the boat at the time of the accident was saved. Lewis Dainer, owner of the launch, said today that he was not more than 15 feet from the bank and that there were sufficient life preservers on the boat for all aboard. Dainer, two of whose children were drowned said his boat struck some object in the water, causing the launch to overturn.

40,000 ON PICKET DUTY

SURROUNDED THE WESTINGHOUSE PLANTS AT PITTSBURGH THIS MORNING

PITTSBURGH, June 22.—Four thousand pickets surrounded the Westinghouse plants this morning in anticipation of an attempt to take workmen into the shops. The general strike committee held a meeting and gave final instructions to the subcommittee that is expected to call on President Herr late in the day in an effort to reach an agreement. Officers of the union said that no change had been made in their demand.

PRES. WILSON CONFIDENT SENATE WILL SUPPORT COLOMBIAN AND NICARAGUAN TREATIES

WASHINGTON, June 22.—President Wilson believes that when the Colombian and Nicaraguan treaties are understood they will be amply supported in the senate. He made this clear to callers today but refused to go into details. The treaties are pending before the foreign relations committee, before which Secretary Bryan again appeared today to continue his explanation. There is some opposition to the proposed payment of $25,000,000 to Colombia and also to features of the Nicaraguan treaty which some senators contend would work unduly to sustain the present government there.

JUDGE CLINCH ELECTED

BOSTON, June 22.—Judge Edward Clinch of New York was today chosen president of the northern Baptist convention succeeding Henry Bond of Brattleboro, Vt.

Other officers elected were: First vice president, R. R. Griffith, Grand Forks, N. D.; second vice president, F. Wayland Ayer, Camden, N. J.; corresponding secretary, Rev. C. B. Williams, St. Louis; recording secretary, Rev. Maurice Levy, Brooklyn, N. Y.; treasurer, Frank L. Miner, Des Moines, Ia.

Rev. Carter H. Jones of Washington was elected president of the American Baptist Foreign mission society. Home secretary Fred P. Haggard, foreign secretary James H. Franklin and Arthur C. Baldwin and treasurer Ernest Butler, all of Massachusetts, were re-elected.

The American Home mission society elected as president D. K. Edwards of Los Angeles, Cal. Other officers included Rev. H. L. Morehouse of New York, corresponding secretary, and Frank T. Moulton of Yonkers, N. Y., treasurer.

On recommendation of the social service commission a social program was adopted for each month in the year. January will be given over to the subject of health; February, education; March, the city; April, the Lord's day; May, the home; June, the child; July, the nation; August, amusements; September, labor; October, prisons; November, temperance; December, peace.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT
BOSTON, June 22.—The constitutionality of the workmen's compensation act was upheld by the full bench of the supreme court today. The court ruled that an employee injured under the act cannot maintain an independent suit unless at the time he enters upon his employment he gives notice to his employer that he does not intend to waive his common law rights.

The case came before the full court on an appeal from the superior court which sustained a decree of the Industrial Accident Board awarding damages to Hazel Young against Jefferson E. Duncan. Miss Young was dissatisfied with the award and claimed that the board had no jurisdiction and that she was entitled to prosecute a personal accident suit against Duncan.

NO BASEBALL EXTRA TODAY

SHOT AND KILLED HUSBAND MANAGER KILLED BY LIONS

Mrs. Folsom Likely to Be Sent to Asylum by Court—May Never Be Tried for Crime

FORTSMOUTH, N. H., June 22.—There is a strong probability that Mrs. Mary Folsom, who Saturday shot her husband, Henry H. Folsom, of Somerville, Mass., a Boston lawyer, while riding with him in a carriage at Exeter, will never be tried on a charge of murder.

This phase of the situation came out yesterday, when County Solicitor Stephen, before leaving for New York, gave orders that the prisoner be kept under close observation to determine her mental condition.

If he finds, on his return, that reports warrant the step, Mr. Stephen will petition the superior court for her commitment to an asylum without the formality of a trial.

This attitude is assumed on the ground that if the woman is manifestly irresponsible a trial would be useless and can be avoided by action under the law covering the commitment of insane persons.

Mrs. Folsom yesterday told Deputy Sheriff William H. Shaw that she killed her husband because of fear that she was to be returned to an asylum and that Mr. Folsom would have to live alone.

After being arraigned in the Exeter district court Saturday evening and held without bail for the October term of the superior court, Mrs. Folsom was brought to the Rockingham county jail in the city by County Solicitor Stephen and Sheriff Sperry.

The woman was in a state of nervous collapse. On her arrival here County Physician Taylor was summoned and at his suggestion a trained nurse, Miss Simpson, was secured to care for Mrs. Folsom and also to safeguard against a possible attempt at escape.

Soon after being taken to the woman's apartments Mrs. Folsom, exhausted, passed into a sound slumber that lasted until 1:30 yesterday morning. She then became restless and the nurse found it necessary to administer an opiate.

She slept well into the morning and on arising partook of a breakfast of eggs and butter and at no time during the day was she in an incoherent mood, according to Deputy Shaw.

She spoke in glowing terms of her husband, saying he was the most wonderful man that she ever knew and that she killed him because she could not bear the thoughts of his living alone without her care.

Dietrich, Partly Devoured—Body Rescued With Pike Pole—One Lion Escaped

CHICAGO, June 22.—Emerson D. Dietrich, Brooklyn manager of a theatrical production presenting a troupe of trained lions, was killed and partly devoured last night by six lions when he entered the car in which they were caged.

While the keepers were trying to recover Dietrich's body from the beasts a lion escaped from an adjoining cage and terrorized residents of the thick-populated quarter in which the car stood.

The escaped lion finally was driven back to its car, having harmed no one. A pike pole from the fire department finally was used to withdraw Dietrich's body from the lions, after it had been sprinkled with formaldehyde to drive the animals away.

George McCord, keeper of the lions, was unable to help Dietrich. "When he went into the den," McCord said, "Teddy, the leader of the attack against Dietrich, began to play with him, and he told the beast to get down. Four of the lions were facing him."

"Finally, Teddy slunk behind him and in a minute was on his back. Four others leaped for him a moment later, and I think his neck was broken at once."

"Teddy, the oldest of the lions, tried to save him but the others pushed her away and she quit and watched them without joining in the attack."

The lions were owned by Mme. Adèle Castillo, to whom Dietrich was engaged to be married. She said she had formerly taken care of the animals herself and none of them ever before had given indications of being vicious. She attributed the attack to the fact that the car was dark when Dietrich entered.

Policemen armed with rifles guarded the car last night. The lions had become greatly excited and kept up an incessant roaring, which attracted a great crowd.

The car in which they were kept was an ordinary box car, in the ends of which steel cages had been built, reaching within a few feet of the top of the car, leaving a passageway about two feet wide between them. In one cage were the six older lions and in the other four younger ones.

A score of policemen and members of a fire company were needed to withdraw Dietrich's body from the cage. After the disinfected had been thrown into the den the animals made repeated plunges at the bars, just outside of which the rescuers were working.

The lions have been used in hundreds of public performances, according to Mme. Castillo, five or six of them being liberated on the stage together to perform under her direction. She always has controlled them, using only a short whip.

REV. F. DUNNELS REV. S. G. NEIL

Has Resigned to Accept Of Philadelphia Spoke Call to New Jersey at the First Baptist Church

Rev. Frederick A. Dunneels has resigned as pastor of the Highland Congregational church. He read his letter of resignation at the morning service yesterday. Mr. Dunneels has accepted a call from the Presbyterian church at East Orange, N. J., and his resignation goes into effect September 1. He has been the pastor at the Highland church for nearly nine years.

Rev. Samuel G. Neil, one of the secretaries of the American Baptist Publication society and prominent in the Baptist denomination, preached two sermons in Lowell yesterday, in the morning at the First church, and in the evening at the Worthen street church. Mr. Neil is attending the Baptist anniversary in Boston and came up to supply Pastor Pinkham's pulpit for one service.

STOP SPANKING WIFE

ANDREW CELKO SURPRISED TO LEARN THAT HE HAS NO RIGHT TO PUNISH HIS WIFE

PITTSBURGH, June 22.—Andrew Celko was amazed when told by Justice of the Peace M. L. Martin of Natrona yesterday that he had no right to spank his wife.

"Of course I spank her for she's my wife," declared Celko when questioned at a hearing, following a charge by Mrs. Celko that her husband abused her. The wife, who is young and pretty, was in tears.

She explained that her husband not only used the flat of his hand but a razor strap.

"When I tell her to hurry supper and she don't mind, I have to spank her," said Celko.

The husband was released on his promise to abandon spanking.

Melancholy Women

Women should understand that melancholy, commonly called the "Blues," is in nine times out of ten a pure symptom of some organic derangement which should have attention. ## AT ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE

Graduation Exercises Held Last Evening With Large Attendance—St. Louis' School Closing

Over 500 men and women attended the graduation exercises of St. Joseph's college which were held in the college hall in Merrimack street last evening. Among those in attendance were several clergymen as well as the parents of the thirteen graduates. A varied entertainment program was carried out in a most delightful way by the pupils of the school under the able direction of the Marist brothers, who are in charge of the institution.

The full program was as follows: Rose's overture by the College orchestra; chorus, "Le Bourgeois," by the college chorus; welcome address by Rev. Fr. Drapeau; violin selection, "Young Brigade," by Joseph Decelle; Henri Ledoux, Armand Verreault, Gerard Lambert and Leon Moisan; chorus, "Les Maitres," by a group of twelve pupils; "The Maitres," by a group of twelve pupils; and Theodore Panthoum; action chorus, "Qui Entrez dans la Maison," by the younger pupils; comedy, "Hypocritism," by Romeo Gaudet; oratorio, "Raphael Melancon," Albert Lamoureux; Artistic Harmonies; patriotic songs and drill by pupils of seventh and eighth classes; orchestra, "Our Graduates," comedy, "Monseigneur," by the graduates; distribution of diplomas and special honors; farewell address by George Biron, and orchestra selection, "Let's Start."

A feature of the program was a musical number entitled "Monseigneur," in which the graduates, by the name of the graduates, distributed diplomas and special honors; farewell address by George Biron, and orchestra selection, "Let's Start."

The graduates who were awarded diplomas, gold medals and other prizes were as follows: Albert Spaul, Fr. Drapeau, Emile Lamoureux, Raymond Daigle, Joseph Bergeron, Rene Gagnon, Paul Dostaler, Leo Cyr, Albert Gionet, Joseph Dufresne, Arthur Lemire, Arthur Hamel and Geo. Biron.

Prizes of the medals and other prizes were as follows: Rev. J. H. Baccette, O. M. I., Ph. D., Dr. H. Miquel, Court St. Antoine, C. of E. Joseph E. Lambert, J. B. Pelletier, Joseph P. ## DAVIS CUP MATCHES

R. LINDLEY MURRAY, OF CALIFORNIA WILL TRY FOR AMERICAN TEAM

NEW YORK, June 22.—Since winning the metropolitan tennis championship on Saturday, R. Lindley Murray, the Leland-Stanford university student has placed himself under the tutelage of Robert D. Wrenn, chairman of the committee of management of the Davis cup matches for America, and it was reported today that the young Californian would try for a place on the American team.

Maurice McLoughlin, the national champion, is of course relied upon to repel the invaders. Buddy, the champion's partner in the doubles, also is regarded as one of the first line of the defense, with R. Maurice Williams, 2nd, as the third member of the team. In the event of any of these three players meeting with an accident before the international matches in August, a player as near their equal as possible must be held in reserve. Tennis experts believe that Murray is being groomed by Wrenn for this place.

BOY OF 14 DROWNED

PANTUCKET LAD LOST LIFE IN SEEKONK RIVER—COMPANION NARROWLY ESCAPED

EAST PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 22.—Alfred Frachette, 14, of Pawtucket, was drowned in the Seekonk river here yesterday. A double drowning was narrowly averted when his companion, Walter Stender, 15, of Pawtucket, attempted a rescue and barely had strength to break the death grip of the other boy. The body has not been recovered.

BROOKLYN HANDICAP TUESDAY

NEW YORK, June 22.—The Brooklyn handicap, for the spring feature of the Brooklyn Jockey club at the Gravesend race track will be held tomorrow at the Aqueduct course. The needs of New York's growing population have caused the collapse of Gravesend as a racetrack.

At least ten sterling performers will go to the post for the Brooklyn handicap at its old distance of a mile and a quarter. The two starters, include Rock View, Buskin, Luke McLuke, Flying Fairy, Charlestonian, Thornhill and Lahore.

LOWELL SCOTS PARADE

Battle of Bannockburn Anniversary Observed — Sermon by Rev. S. A. Jackson

Lowell Scotchmen yesterday observed the anniversary of the famous battle of Bannockburn by a street parade and divine services at the Westminster church in Tyler street.

The parade was a most picturesque one and the notes of the bagpipes filled the air with a music comparatively uncommon here. The pipers were of the Clan Douglas of Haverhill and they are merry pipers, too. They were preceded by an American flag and after them came 200 brawny Scotchmen. The march started from the headquarters of Clan Grant, 141, in Merrimack street, and finished at the church in Tyler street.

The men made a fine appearance as they passed through Merrimack and Central streets. The stars and stripes was borne by James Wallace of Clan Grant. Next came the pipers in full Highland costume and behind the pipers marched the members of the local clans, including Clan Grant and the Lowell Caledonian club, together with visiting clans from Lawrence, Haverhill, Andover and Wakefield.

Master James Johnson Morris of Lowell, a very little lad, attracted a big share of attention. Dressed in full dress of kilts he marched beside his father and the people in the street cheered the fine little fellow.

At the church, a special program, appropriate to the occasion, had been prepared, including special music by the choir. In his sermon, Rev. S. A. Jackson paid tribute to the Scots who had won glory on the field of Bannockburn. In part, he said:

"There must have been a mighty display of heroism on that 24th of June

600 years ago, when Bruce's 20,000 men put to flight the greatest array of warriors that had ever marched out of England. But none of these circumstances are necessary as signs of a great conflict in the highest sense.

"One result of the battle was, that by his defeat, Edward II lost all control over England, though he kept the throne. Royalty was dethroned, when the king was put on an allowance of £10 a day, by his own noblemen. The English king endeavored to prove, at Bannockburn, his divine right to rule an 'unwilling' people, whom 'lawful' king was still alive. The people proved, however, their 'divine right to freedom' and to the choice of their own king and nationality.

"This battle was 'the Lord's' because the victory did not go to the strongest army. God is not always on the side of the heaviest artillery (as Napoleon thought). Majorities do not always rule, though some people think they ought to. But might is not right and the right must rule, whether it has a human majority of one million, or only one man to stand alone on the side of truth and righteousness. It isn't strange that (as the Bible puts it) 'one should chase a thousand and two put 10,000 to flight.' This has been the case in nearly all the moral and religious conflicts of the world. Israel's victory over mighty Egypt, at the Red sea; the shepherd lad of Bethlehem smiting the Giant of Gath; Jonathan and his armor-bearer defeating the garrison of the Philistines; Gideon's 300 putting to flight an army of Midianites like grasshoppers; for multitudes like grasshoppers, for multitudes. Thus we find there is a power not in numbers, not in the arm of flesh nor in human wisdom which has won the victories of the moral world; it is the power of omnipotence, which saves 'not by might nor by power, but by my spirit,' saith the Lord."

CARRY LIFEBOATS FOR ALL

New Safety at Sea Measure, Reported to House, Follows Convention Recommendation

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The Alexander bill providing for the welfare and safety of passengers and seamen on inland and ocean steamships was reported to the house from the committee on merchant marine and fisheries, and stipulates that no vessel of the United States on an ocean route shall at any moment of its voyage carry more persons aboard than can be accommodated in lifeboats and life rafts.

The bill creates new requirements for able seamen, specifying that they may be nineteen years of age and have three years of sea service.

The bill has many marked differences from the bill on the same subject introduced by Senator La Follette and passed by the senate. The lifeboat provisions follow the recommendations of the London Convention on Safety of Life at Sea.

Lifeboat Best for Safety
"The committee is of the opinion,"

says the report, "that a lifeboat is the best form of safety device under favorable conditions, but it rarely happens that they can all be launched safely in the event of fire or shipwreck. The Titanic sank under favorable weather conditions, and time enough to launch them had elapsed to have made it entirely practicable to save all on board if sufficient lifeboats had been provided."

The committee reported that frequently rafts are more easily launched than boats.

The drastic provisions of the La Follette bill covering lifeboats for excursion steamers have been greatly modified in the house bill, which specifies that in the rush season lifeboats up to only 70 per cent. of the passengers need be carried. The report states that the great loss of lifeboats demanded of this class of steamers in the La Follette bill would have rendered them top-heavy.

In the season from May 15 to Sept.

15 vessels on ocean routes less than twenty miles off shore must carry lifeboat accommodations for passengers up to 70 per cent. of the total, and of this proportion one-half may be collapsible boats. This provision takes care of the large excursion steamers which could not possibly carry class one or class two boats for every passenger.

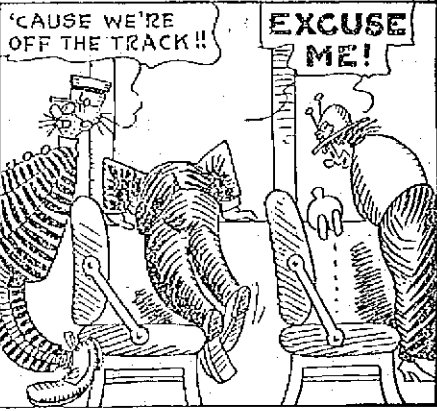

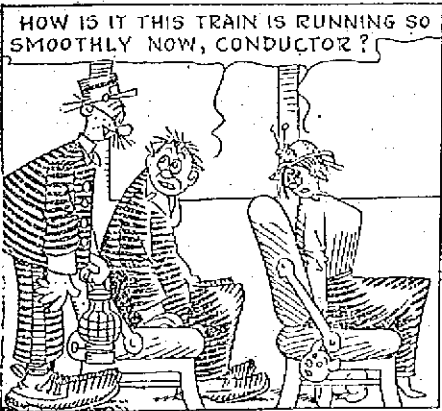

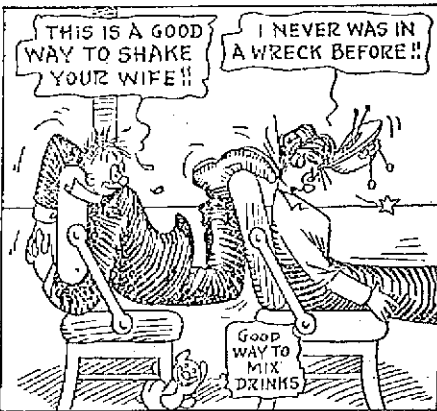

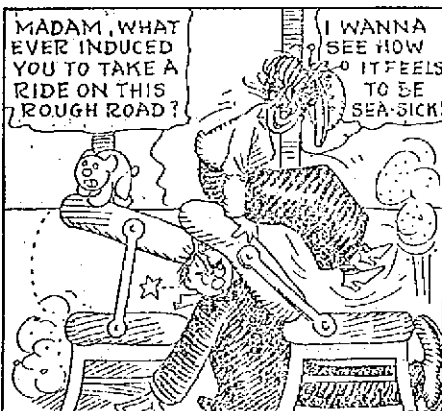

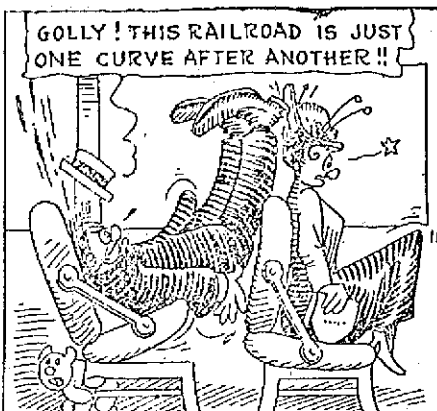

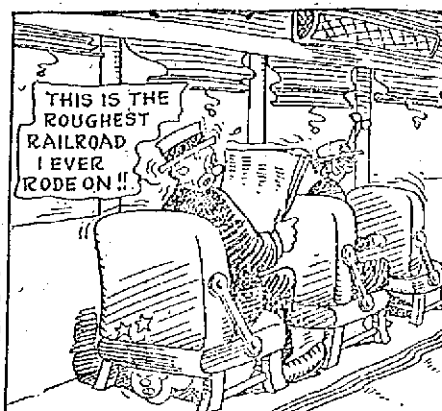

Less Boats in Rush Season

Ocean freighters must have lifeboat accommodations for everyone aboard. Great Lake boats more than three miles off shore must have lifeboats and rafts for everyone, but in the rush season from May 15 to Sept. 15 may have accommodations for 50 per cent. of which not less than three-fifths may be collapsible boats or rafts, subject to the approval of the board of supervising inspectors.

The bill establishes the grade of "certificated lifeboat man" who shall be familiar with everything connected with the use of lifeboats. It requires that for lifeboats or rafts carrying sixty-one persons there shall be three certificated lifeboat men, and running up to seven certificated men for lifeboats or rafts carrying from 160 to 210 persons, and thereafter one man to each additional fifty persons.

KING'S BIRTHDAY HONORS

Kitchener Made Earl; A.H. Stanley, Baronet—Order of Knighthood Conferred on Explorer Mawson

LONDON, June 22.—The King's birthday honors were announced yesterday. The list includes a large number of barons and baronets, but there are few notable names in it.

Lord Kitchener of Khartoum, His Majesty's agent and consul general in Egypt, is made an earl. Sir Herbert Cosens-Hardy, Sir Edgar Vincent, Major General John Fielden Brocklehurst and Sir Leonard Dreyer are raised to barons.

Among the baronets is Albert H. Stanley, manager of the London Underground Railways, who is English-born, but was reared in the United States. Mr. Stanley came to London from Detroit and assumed his British citizenship last year. For a number of

ARSENIC FOUND IN CANDY

CARELESS OR IGNORANT MANUFACTURERS FINED FOR LETTING IT FIND ITS WAY INTO PRODUCTS

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 22.—The accidental presence of arsenic in jelly, candy and chocolate and of lead in cream tartar, has caused one corporation to be fined $100 and three corporations to be fined $50 each for the shipment of such adulterated products in interstate commerce. In every case the arsenic and lead appear to have found their way into the products through either ignorance or carelessness on the part of the manufacturer.

In order to protect himself, he should have procured materials guaranteed by his vendor under the food and drugs act, thus shifting the responsibility from himself, or else made certain by personal investigation that they contained no injurious ingredients.

According to a recent announcement of the U. S. department of agriculture, the Williams Bros. Co. of Detroit, Mich., has been fined $100 for sending four brands of adulterated jelly into Missouri. One brand contained arsenic in part of the brand containing six parts, and the fourth, 20 parts per million, which might render the jelly injurious to health.

The Catawba Candy Co., of Sandusky, Ohio, was also fined $50 and costs for sending into North Carolina and Illinois quantities of "Italian Cream" and into Oklahoma a quantity of "Teed Sams" all of which contained arsenic in either the candy or coating, or both.

Another Ohio company (of Toledo), the Ohio Spice & Extract Co., was fined $25 and costs for shipping adulterated and misbranded mace into Missouri.

The Sen-Sen Chocolate Co., a corporation organized under the laws of Maine, with a factory at Salem, Ohio, was fined $25 and costs for shipping misbranded chewing gum from Ohio into Illinois. The gum bore a label containing the words "Jumbo Pepsin Gum." Analysis showed that the gum contained no pepsin.

The shipment of adulterated and misbranded mince-meat in interstate commerce has brought three fines of $25 each and costs to the W. H. Marvin Co., Urbana, Ohio. The "mince-meat" contained nothing more than a trace of meat, there being 0.1 per cent. of meat in two of the shipments, and 0.3 per cent. in the third. This was not considered sufficient to comply with the federal law. The labels on the shipments giving the composite articles of the "mince-meat" mentioned meat first.

Short weight of peanut butter brought a fine of $25 and costs to Julius Koehler (The Royal Peanut Butter Co.) of Cleveland, Ohio, because the article was shipped in interstate commerce. Ten packages showed an average shortage of over 13 per cent. in weight. Another Ohio company (of Toledo), the Ohio Spice & Extract Co., was fined $25 and costs for shipping adulterated and misbranded mace into Missouri.

SIX-AGE FINE AT SOUTHBORO
SOUTHBORO, June 22.—A hand tub rushed to the outskirts of the town on an automobile truck when word was received yesterday that the dwelling of F. B. Knowles, a Boston broker, was on fire, could not obtain sufficient water to fight the flames effectively, and the house was destroyed. The loss is $15,000. Mr. Knowles and his family were away at the time.

"TEA AND COFFEE"

are just as harmful to children as alcohol is to grown-ups," says Dr. Charlotte Abbey, superintendent of the Women's Directory, New York.

The reason why coffee and tea injure anybody is because these beverages contain the poisonous drug, caffeine, (from 1-2 to 3 grains to the cup), which physicians have long known affects the heart, stomach and liver.

Children, especially, with their delicate nerves, are susceptible to the action of caffeine, and should never be allowed to have tea or coffee or any other beverage containing drugs.

Thousands of adults have found that their headaches, nervousness, indigestion and sleeplessness have vanished when a change was made from coffee and tea to

POSTUM

"THERE'S A REASON"

Postum contains no caffeine or any other injurious substance. Made from whole wheat and a small per cent. of molasses, it is a pure food-drink, having a delightful flavour, and containing the nutritive values of the grain. That's why it is good for both children and grown-ups.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder. Made in the cup with hot water. No boiling required. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

12 DROWNED IN CANAL

Passenger Launch Struck Stump and Capsized — Victims Mostly Women and Children

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 22.—Twelve persons, most of them women and children, were drowned in the capsizing of a passenger launch at midnight, just south of Mud Lock, Onondaga lake, late last night, when a passenger launch plying between Mud Lock and Liverpool, struck a stump and capsized.

Among those known to have perished are Mrs. George H. Adams, wife of Adams and children, Margaret, 12, and John, 10, and an infant, all of Mrs. Adams; John Morgan, an engineer, and a Miss Walsh. All were residents of Syracuse.

The body of Miss Walsh and an unidentified child were recovered a half hour after the fatality by a rescue party which was formed at Mud Lock as soon as the first report of the tragedy reached there.

At least three men and one woman were on the ill-fated launch, which was carrying about 150 persons, less than 50 feet away from the bank, when the launch struck the stump.

SALT WATER TO KILL PEST

Is Useless — Mosquito Life Thrives on the Salt

Refined Petroleum or Tar Oil Only Effective Remedies

LONDON, June 22.—Mosquitoes are fond of salt, and it is a waste of time and money to try to drive them away by putting salt in the pools and rain barrels where they breed. Such is the conclusion of Professor E. Hafford Ross of the Lister Institute of Preventive Medicine.

The plan, he says, was given an extensive trial at Port Said, where the anti-mosquito campaign was started in 1906. There are large salt distilleries at Port Said, and the crude sea salt regularly was thrown into the water where the domestic mosquitoes were breeding. It was soon found that certain kinds of mosquito larvae can thrive well in such salt water.

"For example, Stegomyia calopus, the carrier of yellow fever, and Anopheles pharoensis, which is a carrier of malaria, breed undisturbed in water containing salt up to and including a half-content equal to that of the summer Mediterranean. As soon as this percentage of salt was reached a new mosquito appeared, namely, Stegomyia zanzibari, which is an inhabitant of the salt pans and salt marshes of Malia, the bitter pools of the Isthmus of Suez and the Mediterranean shores. This mosquito is particularly venomous."

Professor Ross adds that crude or refined petroleum or resin or tar oil are the only things to put into mosquito pools.

Find Use for American Bird

Two "Rob White" quail from the United States, the gift of the American Zoological society, are being bred by the colonial secretary, Lewis Harcourt, at his country estate, Nuneham park, Oxfordshire, in the hope of introducing them into the British cotton-growing colonies. This bird has been successfully used in the southern part of the United States in keeping down the cotton bollworm. In Egypt the worm has destroyed 25,000,000 worth of cotton in a year, and the only enemy it has there is the "buddy bird," of buff-buff plumage. About 160,000 persons were employed in Egypt in 1910 in clearing the cotton of the pests, and every year worms are preched in the mosquito rearing the natives to go into the fields and kill the birds. The Rob White has been introduced successfully into the West Indies, but previous efforts to introduce it a variety of quail in Britain have failed.

Plumage from 150,000 to 200,000 hummingbirds and 100,000 kingfishers has been publicly auctioned in London in the last two years, according to figures submitted in parliament. In Papua and New Guinea birds of various kinds have been nearly exterminated by the natives. Experts of native feathers from the United Kingdom now amount to more than $1,000,000 a year, and the output of the feather trade of the kingdom is $2,000,000 a year, of which $2,000,000 represents export feathers. The bill in parliament proposes to kill the trade in about 1,000,000 of feathers a year. British feathers are exported to London and Manchester and 250,000 pounds are engaged in it. All but 100 of these handle British feathers.

What Causes Spring Colds

The mysterious spring and early summer colds from which many New Yorkers as well as Londoners suffer are due to the fruit flies of the buttonwood trees in the parks and gardens, according to Professor Henry of Cambridge university. He says that the curious and little expected source of danger in the Thos. H. D. O'Neill says:

"We shall see clouds of people sitting on penny chairs under the trees in Hyde park between Grosvenor and St. James' gates, all obviously suffering from more or less severe irritation of the throat, nose and eyes. If they examined carefully the surface of their clothes, they would find a number of tiny speckles which are being liberated in swarms all over London by the breaking of the fruit buds on the plane (buttonwood) trees.

"In the dry winds prevailing at the present time it is possible to watch the fruit buds actually bursting on the plane trees and blowing away in tufts which rapidly become subdivided into these minute and irritating little specks. The danger of these trees has been known since the days of ancient Greece, and in some parts of Germany it has been found necessary to forbid by law the planting of these trees in the neighborhood of schools."

POLICE PROTECT LONDON WOMEN

LONDON, June 22.—Suffragette leader has become the regular Sunday amusement of the London crowds. The police were kept busy yesterday afternoon in Hyde Park, protecting the women and escorting them to places of safety.

Various suffragette meetings were broken up and the speakers hustled from the platforms with threats of a ducking in the Serpentine. From the tower of the Crockett tower, the police probably would have taken into execution except for the energetic action of the police.

SMASH CHURCH WINDOWS

SHARON SELECTMEN OFFER REWARD AFTER VANDALISM IN CHURCH

SHARON, June 22.—Three stained-glass windows at the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, were shattered some time Saturday night and stones, gravel and glass were strewn about the altar. A window with the figure of St. Anne, which filled the entire space behind the altar, was broken in two places. The window was a memorial to the parents of the pastor, Rev. George A. Costello. The other wrecked windows are on the north side of the sanctuary.

The large window of St. Anne is 39 feet from the ground and for this reason the vandals are believed not to be the work of boys. No cause is known for the deed. It may be the work of the same parties who have caused the 18 recent breaks in the town. Many think that some persons who wished to show that the police protection in the church is insufficient and that some members of the force are incompetent took this means of proving it. The matter has been taken up with the state police and the board of selectmen has offered a reward.

COLLIDE ON LOWELL ROAD

TWO WOMEN SERIOUSLY INJURED IN AN AUTOMOBILE COLLISION LAST NIGHT

NASHUA, N. H., June 22.—Two women were seriously injured in an automobile collision on the Lowell road last night. Mrs. Mowatt of 76 Harvard street, Lawrence, Mass., is believed to have received internal injuries, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. George Mowatt, had an arm broken.

A car, driven by George Mowatt, was going towards Lowell when it collided with another machine in which were riding A. G. Smith, 36, son and daughter and James O'Leary, all of Nashua. The occupants of both cars were thrown to the roadway.

MORGAN B. WILLIAMS DEAD

LONDON, June 22.—Morgan B. Williams, who probably had more to do than any other with the construction of the earlier railways in the British Isles, died today. He planned and built many of the Italian railways as well as thousands of miles of the Russian lines. He was born in 1825 in Wales and after retiring from the engineering profession was for 20 years vice chairman of the Metropolitan Bank of England and Wales.

150TH ANNIVERSARY OF FREMONT

FREMONT, N. H., June 22.—The 150th anniversary of the settlement of the town of Fremont was observed with an all day celebration, addressed by Hon. Geo. F. Lowell and Representative Charles C. Marshall. The celebration was the project of the Grand services. Field guns, including a 100 lb. gun and a 100 lb. gun, were fired.

3-2 and Lost Second
in Slugging Contest

Lowell broke even in their double bill at Worcester Saturday afternoon, taking the first game 3-2 and losing the second contest by a 14-10 score. The games demonstrated the two extremes of baseball, the first one being a pitchers' battle between Maybom and Van Dyke while the second affair was a slugging bee for both clubs. Sixteen hits apiece were gathered in the latter struggle.

Lowell deserved the first game. To begin with, Maybom pitched a better game than did Van Dyke, although the Worcester pitcher collected some hits in the first inning. Only one hit was made by Burdett's men while the Lowell bats rapped out nine safe slugs. Maybom issued but one free ticket.

Jimmy Ring started the second game but was hampered out of the box after four strenuous innings in which Worcester collected four runs and when Ring retired in the fifth the bats were checked. Rube DeGroot, who followed him, did not fare any better, and before the Worcester bats had been sheathed after eight innings of slaughter 14 tallies had made their way up on to the score board. Lowell's bats, however, were not so hot. They collected five runs, but the home team's lead was too great to overcome.

DeGroot, Wacab, Des, Kelly and Burke did the bulk of Lowell's hitting and run-getting. Potteiger and Shorten were in the role of sluggers for Worcester. The scores:

N. E. TYPO CONVENTION

try and our beautiful suburban towns are worthy of your attention.

"I hope that your visit here will be a pleasant one and beneficial as well, not only to the local and state organizations, but to the national organization as well."

Board of Trade Secretary
John H. Murphy, secretary of the Lowell board of trade, was the next speaker. He said in part:

"As a representative of the commercial interests of the city of Lowell, I extend you a cordial welcome to our city of opportunities. It is indeed a pleasure, much beyond my mere efforts to express to you my welcome and to assure you of our sincere appreciation of having such an important and influential organization as guests in our city."

"Your organization is to be congratulated upon the success it has achieved in various undertakings, your splendid insurance plan and the establishment and maintenance of your unique home in Colorado are matters which deserve the highest commendation."

With your permission I shall indicate your nature which is a matter of fact concerning the city of Lowell. This location of the city at the confluence of the Merrimack and Concord rivers, which are noted for the development of water power, is such as to attract large industries. There is about $50,000,000 invested in our industries and there is manufactured over 500 different articles and commodities valued at over $50,000,000, requiring the employment of over 35,000 people who receive in wages over $15,000,000.

"There is manufactured annually enough cotton cloth to bandage the world at the equator one yard wide, seven times around, while the Ayer, Heald and Father John's Medicine plants make enough pills to cure the his of mankind. Each Ford car is equipped with a self or spark plug made in Lowell, and enough carpet is made here to pave a way one yard wide to extend to Denver and a strip would be left over to extend to St. Louis. The city is noted for the development of water power, is such as to attract large industries. The city claims the greatest Textile school in the world, the largest hosiery employing 4000 people, a leather factory where 36,000 calf skins are tanned weekly, and the boot and shoe shops of the city make daily about 30,000 pairs of shoes.

"Lowell is sometimes called the Venice of America because of its network of 6 1/2 miles of canals which develop daily about 25,000 horse power."

"The city has beautiful parks and playgrounds and a visit to Fort Hill park is worthy of you. A splendid view of the city may be had from the summit of the hill."

"The city has played an important part in the development of the country and history is replete with the accomplishments of its sons and daughters.

"Lowell was the first city to use a canal for commercial purposes."

"Lowell was the first city to utilize water for motive power. Lowell was the first city to have a steam railroad."

"Lowell was the first city to have a telephone exchange."

"Lowell was the first city to send men to defend the Union."

"Lowell was the first city to send its products to all parts of the world."

"Lowell is still in the lead."

Rev. Joseph A. Curtin
Rev. Joseph A. Curtin was introduced by President Donoghue as a brother of a former secretary of the Boston union. Fr. Curtin, in the course of his remarks, said: "It seems to me that most men realize the influence of the press and that most men appreciate what you and your union stands for. There was never greater demand for the news disseminated by the press than at the present time and it is to you men that we must look for the news of the world. Yours is an important position and I hope you feel that the public, as a whole, appreciates that fact."

"The newspaper is man's every day companion and great public educator. It is a great factor in our every day life and I am pleased to say that a majority of the papers today are lofty, clean and dignified. They are wholesome and instructive and you are the men whom we must depend upon. You are the men we must look to for our information concerning industrial and social conditions. The newspaper is a powerful weapon to drive out vice and you men have been very appropriately referred to as a select army of soldiers."

"You are in a position to do a great deal of good for your fellow man and I am sure if you feel so do all the things you can. The mayor and others have already accepted you a hearty welcome to our city and I wish to add my welcome, too. We owe you a great debt of gratitude and we are willing and anxious to make your stay here as pleasant and profitable as possible."

Former Alderman Cummings
Lawrence Cummings, local representative of the Boston Globe, and an old time printer, was called upon for a few remarks. Mr. Cummings didn't expect to be called upon for a speech, but he was equal to the occasion.

"This is indeed a surprise party to me," said Mr. Cummings, "and I feel about as I did when I made my first speech in old ward seven. I felt then that if I wished somebody would pull a trap door and let me fall through."

"I want to say that as an old time type setter and newspaper man I am glad to meet you and greet you and I am glad you are getting what belongs to you. I now have my office where I learned my trade and it would take me the longest time to tell you of the wonderful progress that has been made in the newspaper business right here in this city, the evolution from the old hand press to the present modern, up-to-date presses."

"Some pretty big men have gone forth from the type setters' ranks and the delegates to this convention are I want to join with the others in welcoming you to the city and I wish you continued happiness and prosperity."

New England Secretary
John P. Murphy of Boston, secretary of the New England Typographical union, gave a brief history of the growth of the organization. He told of the enthusiasm aroused by the organizers and of the unprecedented increase in membership. He gave the total membership in several of the larger cities and said that the membership in Boston had grown to about 500. In many instances, he said, the membership had been doubled within the last two or three years. He expressed the belief that the New England Typographical union was the strongest and best coming within the jurisdiction of the I. T. U.

After Secretary Murphy had spoken, John V. Donoghue, president of the local union, turned the speaking over to William C. Trump, president of the New England Typographical union. Mr. Trump said he did not intend to make a speech. He thanked the mayor, Rev. Fr. Curtin and others for their kind words of welcome and he hoped that the conduct of the delegates here, their deliberations, etc., would measure up to the high opinion of the printers as expressed by the speakers. "I am sure," he said, "that your words of welcome will cheer us on to the accomplishment of better results and I hope the delegates will accept the invitation to visit Lowell's many large industries."

Delegates at Meeting
Miss Cora Van Surdan, of Haverhill, had the distinction of being the only lady delegate present at the opening session. Other delegates participating in the convention were: H. C. Maydwell, Meriden, Conn.; Frank W. McKane, Bridgeport, Conn.; Wallace Mackie, New Bedford; John H. Sullivan, Providence, R. I.; John V. Donoghue, Lowell; Edward C. Galt, Lowell; W. B. Chandler, Lynn; John J. O'Connor, Lynn; William P. Cantwell, Worcester; Louis J. Bernard, Worcester; John W. Ryan (no address given); James L. Anderson, Portland, Me.; Peter J. Curran, Portland, Me.; H. J. Trask (no address given); Henry White, Waterbury, Conn.; N. W. Brown, Marlboro; D. August Lamont, Lowell; John J. Brown, Boston; Fred P. Irving (no address given); John P. Murphy, John T. Maguire and Eli Alford, Providence, R. I.; George W. Andrews, Danbury, Conn.; R. O. Lamagdelain, Holyoke; Thomas A. Barry, James J. O'Connor, William C. Trump, Edwin M. Martin, and Joseph L. Shattley, Boston; George L. McAnama, Springfield; Edward N. Griffith, Providence, R. I.; Oscar A. Miles, Hartford, Conn.; John McCarthy, and Theodore A. Lawrence, Lowell; R. Saint, Brockton, and H. C. Whitcomb, Boston.

After the public meeting adjourned, the delegates went into executive session and later went to city hall where they had their pictures taken.

Visited the Factories
This afternoon the delegates went around the city in groups visiting the mills and factories, including the Lowell hosiery, the Harvard brewery, the North school, city hall and the Sun building.

Field a Smoker
There was a "get-together" and reception at the union headquarters when the delegates and visitors met each other and had a good time. The local union had a very enjoyable program arranged and the affair was presided over by Mr. Fred A. Spaul, who, in a short speech, of welcome, introduced Norman E. McPhail, of Boston. This gentleman gave an interesting talk on the history of the press. He was followed by Edward Martin, another Boston man, and both were accorded much applause.

Hon. James H. Casey was the next speaker, and his remarks were confined to his knowledge of the art of type-setting, for he is known, that besides being mayor of Lowell, Mr. Casey was at one time a "printer's devil," and they do tell that he was a very smart little devil, too. Mr. Casey's talk was along humorous lines and everybody enjoyed it.

The Progressive ministers gave a splendid entertainment. W. Edward Turnbull, an officer of the union, was the interlocutor and Cleve Nobles and James Callahan were the end men. The program included the following numbers:

"When I Dream of Old Erin," Earl Costello; "That's the Reason I Want You," W. E. Turnbull; "Sweet Sixteen," James Callahan; "Songs of the Forge," William Hodge, the man from home; "I Love the Ladies," Al Olson; song, selected, Charles Radford; whistling solo, William Carr; "Camp Meeting Band," Cleve Nobles; finale, "I Want to Go to Mexico." Refreshments were served and every mother's son had a jolly good time.

Banquet Big Feature
The banquet at 5 o'clock this evening will be the main feature of the convention. Covers will be laid for about 250 and Prescott hall will be gallantly decorated, and the D. L. Pogo Co. will furnish one of its finest menus.

The post-prandial exercises will be presided over by Harry Mozley, chairman of the committee, and President John V. Donoghue will act as toastmaster. The list of speakers will include Joseph J. Dallas, New England representative of the I. T. U.; Congressman John Jacob Rogers, Rev. T. Franklin Wood, C. M. L. son of the late Chief of Police Frank Wood, an old time printer, Hon. John J. Hogan of the governor's council; John H. Harrington, publisher of the Lowell Sun; His Honor Mayor Dennis J. Murphy; Rev. Nathaniel W. Matthews, Fr. D. of the First, Frothingham, Methodist church; Humphrey O'Sullivan, George M. Harrigan, president of the Lowell board of trade; Edward Martin, former president N. E. T. U.; Lewis E. MacBrayne, county editor, Courier-Examiner; The Lyceum orchestra will play during the banquet and the various speeches will be interspersed with songs by Commissioner James E. Donnelly, Andrew A. McCarthy, Cleveland K. Nobles, Edward F. Shea, William L. Gookin and John J. Dalton.

The Progressive ministers gave a splendid entertainment. W. Edward Turnbull, an officer of the union, was the interlocutor and Cleve Nobles and James Callahan were the end men. The program included the following numbers:

"When I Dream of Old Erin," Earl Costello; "That's the Reason I Want You," W. E. Turnbull; "Sweet Sixteen," James Callahan; "Songs of the Forge," William Hodge, the man from home; "I Love the Ladies," Al Olson; song, selected, Charles Radford; whistling solo, William Carr; "Camp Meeting Band," Cleve Nobles; finale, "I Want to Go to Mexico." Refreshments were served and every mother's son had a jolly good time.

Banquet Big Feature
The banquet at 5 o'clock this evening will be the main feature of the convention. Covers will be laid for about 250 and Prescott hall will be gallantly decorated, and the D. L. Pogo Co. will furnish one of its finest menus.

The post-prandial exercises will be presided over by Harry Mozley, chairman of the committee, and President John V. Donoghue will act as toastmaster. The list of speakers will include Joseph J. Dallas, New England representative of the I. T. U.; Congressman John Jacob Rogers, Rev. T. Franklin Wood, C. M. L. son of the late Chief of Police Frank Wood, an old time printer, Hon. John J. Hogan of the governor's council; John H. Harrington, publisher of the Lowell Sun; His Honor Mayor Dennis J. Murphy; Rev. Nathaniel W. Matthews, Fr. D. of the First, Frothingham, Methodist church; Humphrey O'Sullivan, George M. Harrigan, president of the Lowell board of trade; Edward Martin, former president N. E. T. U.; Lewis E. MacBrayne, county editor, Courier-Examiner; The Lyceum orchestra will play during the banquet and the various speeches will be interspersed with songs by Commissioner James E. Donnelly, Andrew A. McCarthy, Cleveland K. Nobles, Edward F. Shea, William L. Gookin and John J. Dalton.

Hon. James H. Mr. Casey's talk was along humorous lines and everybody enjoyed it.

AT SACRED HEART SCHOOL

Graduation Exercises Last Evening—Address by Fr. Smith—Graduation at St. Columba's

Radiant beautiful June in all her charms mingled her smiles last evening with those of youthful, happy hearts to bid their parents and friends a joyous welcome to their graduation exercises of the Sacred Heart school.

The school hall was a scene of beauty, profusely decorated with cut flowers and palms.

To say that the hall was packed for the occasion seems almost superfluous, but last evening the audience seemed even larger than usual and all seats were occupied before the curtain rose.

The occasion was honored by the presence of Very Rev. T. W. Smith, O. M. I., Others of the clergy who witnessed the exercises were: Rev. J. P. Flynn, O. M. I., Rev. J. T. McDermott, and Rev. T. F. Wood, O. M. I.

The following program arranged with great care as usual with the one idea in view of furnishing wholesome joyous entertainment for the large audience was given:

"Soft Breaks the Morn," Two-part Sacred Chorus.
Welcome Greetings to the Very Rev. Pastor.
Clergy and Parents.

Misses L. Burke and M. Hewson.
"The Hat of Other Days," Humorous Song.
Senior Girls.

GIVE US A SANE FOURTH

So rapidly is the situation in favor of a sane Fourth of July growing that it is no longer necessary to explain to people generally why so many interests are earnestly supporting it. Other movements have to be explained on the basis of expediency and based on individual examples, but in this most important matter it is very apparent that the abandonment of dangerous practices of celebration saves hundreds of lives and thousands of serious accidents yearly. The only strange thing about the safe and sane propaganda is that it has not been preached for more generally for years past.

A table compiled by an interested contemporary estimates that for the past five years the number of serious accidents on Fourth of July has decreased systematically until last year when there was an increase of 15 over the previous year. This increase has been attributed to a less rigid enforcement of protective ordinances and the practice of holding celebrations that attracted great crowds of people into one place. In 1905 the number of important accidents was 160 and in 1912 it was 555 with a consistent reduction yearly. That this was due to the growth of the safe and sane movement is apparent from the fact that 218 cities had adopted the idea in 1912 as compared with four in 1905.

Any custom that is ancient has a certain attraction due to its long existence and this attraction in the case of Fourth of July celebrations is perpetuated by the juvenile tendency to make noise. Quite naturally, perhaps, all people are apt to get more or less noisy when asserting their independence, but this noise should be unattended with danger and the observance is useless unless its significance is understood. It is to be feared that many of those who in the past expended dangerous fire crackers neither knew the risk they were incurring nor the meaning of the pandemonium which they made collectively. Much of this silly celebrating reflected little credit on America or American citizens, and it frequently left regrets that came to maturity in the hospital. More than one father and mother in all our important cities connect the great holiday with some disaster that brought grief or death to their home.

Last year Lowell had a sensible and dignified celebration that must have impressed on our citizens the value of common sense and municipal sanity on such an occasion. This year the record should be equalled, for it cannot be very much exceeded. It is particularly desirable that some form of entertainment with a patriotic flavor should be provided for the young in various sections of the city, for any celebration that does not perpetuate the significance of the day is worse than useless. Let us have a sensible and really American Fourth of July this year.

PEOPLE OWN STREETS

Perhaps very many do not doubt that the streets of our cities belong to the people, but one's faith in the belief is apt to be shaken after long observation of certain conditions. The New York state court of appeals has asserted the fact very strongly recently in a decision which states that the ordinance of the city of New York giving equal rights to cab owners is valid. In that city private interests have invaded the highways, hotels have given valuable standing privileges to taxicabs and other conveyances, and a source of revenue was created to which the city asserted its right to control. It has now been settled by the courts, however, that the licensing of the streets can not be usurped by individuals or private concerns. The streets belong to the people.

All cities have had experiences that make this decision interesting as relating to their peculiar problems. Sometimes it is an encroachment of private interests on sidewalks; at other times it is in the illegal assumption of power by transportation companies or other public utilities. It may even be in the obstruction of traffic by signs. For long periods a city may allow some dangerous practices to grow, but sooner or later it becomes necessary to insist on public respect for and recognition of the principle that the streets of our cities are for the use of our citizens and that any form of private monopoly or abuse of privilege cannot be tolerated. Even the municipality cannot do away a right over which it has no control before the law.

Perhaps no one needs the realization of the fact that the streets belong to the citizens more than the occasional automobile owner who feels that his mania for speed must not be checked, however pedestrians may run or bump to get out of his way. Not content with indulging his propensity to speed and arrogance where it may not harm anyone except himself, he shows little respect for municipal ordinances or private feelings when driving in the heart of the city but sets his selfish gratification above the public good. Conditions have improved materially in Lowell of late, due to stricter supervision on the part of the authorities, but there is still need to impress on the few the truth that the streets belong to all the people and not to any privileged group among them.

NEW RAILROAD BILL

The majority members of the legislative railroad committee seem to have arrived in their final attitude to solve the railroad situation of New England for the substitute bill which has been framed by Senator Fisher and Rep. George H. Ellis will go to the legislature with the approval of Public Service Commissioner George W. Anderson and Governor Walsh. The new bill provides for a complete separation of the two roads, it respects the rights of the stockholders and the commonwealth regarding the stock now held by the Boston Holding company and finally it protects the minority stockholders. The approval of the governor was secured when Senator Fisher and Rep. Ellis called on him and declared that they approved of his general stand on the railroad question but differed from him in some positive ways about the application of his theories. The success of the new bill in reconciling those who were not unanimous in support of any preceding measure will result in a new session of the railroad committee in the first instance and may lead to the settlement of the railroad question, though this question is so involved and hedged round with possibilities that action on any proposed bill cannot be forecasted too accurately.

The conviction seems to be growing, in connection with this same railroad question, that the state of Massachusetts does not want to own its transportation systems wholly or in part except as a last resort. If it should come in the present state of perplexed conditions, it could hardly be regarded other than as a necessary evil—and a few years of political instead of business management would tend to make matters infinitely worse than they are at present. The growing tendency now seems to be towards more careful state regulation so that the railroads may first of all be rescued from their present perilous position and then run in the interest of the public instead of a small group of selfishly interested financiers. It is to be hoped that the tentative bill to be considered by the Massachusetts legislature will prove a step in this direction.

CITY BOOMING

In a recent editorial on "City Booming" the St. Louis Star says pertinently: "The booming spirit is a mighty fine thing in a city, if the citizens realize what they are boasting, and boost in the right place." It goes on to state that the merits of a community as a place of residence or a place of business cannot be estimated from the wealth of the city, from the diversity of its manufactures, from the great number of its factories or its immense population. When a city begins to call attention to these things it is apt to become deluded, forgetting that a progressive civic spirit, wise municipal regulations, and an efficient government are what make cities desirable to the prospective resident. The real booming looks within and finds enough to agitate at home without heralding the virtues of the city broadcast. When the home booming secures the desired advantage, the outside advertising will take care of itself. As the St. Louis Star says:

"A million-dollar fund for better schools, better homes, better taxes, finer and more democratic parks, lower car fares, cheaper light, heat and power, more clean pleasure for all the people, would be worth boasting for. Nobody is afraid that this kind of boasting will not come, for it is already spreading. In fact, when it does become a habit it will put the old style form of boasting to shame."

PROPERTY DETERIORATION

The folly of letting railroad property deteriorate until the ultimate cost of repair is far in excess of what would have been spent for systematic upkeep has been demonstrated so unmistakably in this city that no one has a doubt of it. The danger of procrastination has also been forcibly proved. In the present state of public opinion it will not take many such occurrences such as the collapse of the Chelmsford street bridge to arouse a storm of protest that no public utility could ignore with impunity. Probably the railroad already realizes this as far as the public, and feels somewhat powerless, but nothing can justify conduct that results in danger to the public.

In the matter of rolling stock also the railroads must be prepared to do a little more business than usual on special occasions. News comes from

TYPOGRAPHICAL CONVENTION

The delegates to the convention of the New England Typographical union opening here today are cordially welcomed not only by the local fellow members of the craft but by the other unions of the city, the press and the city government representing the entire people. The Typographical union nationally is probably the strongest and most progressive body of organized workers in this country. For this reason alone the convention assembling here today is an honor to our city which our citizens should fully appreciate. The Sun welcomes the delegates to Lowell and hopes their stay will be enjoyed in every possible manner.

THE RIVER PROJECT

The most ardent optimist in the ranks of those who have been becoming the navigation of the Merrimack river could not wish for more prompt or more convincing action than was displayed in the legislature, for the bill went through all its stages from the committee report to the governor's signature without a hitch. It now remains for the people of the Merrimack valley to turn their attention to the federal government, confident that the spirit which carried the project through the legislature will carry it triumphantly through congress. After many years of neglect the Merrimack is coming into its own.

One is never apt to get a million dollars by figuring what you would do if you had it.

It is our theory that the inventor of the doughnut was no friend of humanity.

It isn't final proof of aristocracy to call the Young Thing in the family a debutante.

If a man had to go home from work to a campfire supper, how he would howl about it.

The eating of a good Sunday dinner is much more pleasant than cleaning the dinner away and washing the dishes.

A poor man is always saying he would like to be rich because of the great amount of good he could do with his money.

"What made me mad," said one zealous Sunday patron of the hotel, "is that they charged me a double price for a sandwich that was dry as a stick and nearly as hard. But I got even. I bored a hole in it, so it can be used again."

SOME COMPLICATION

Having been fully instructed in the intricacies of the white slave traffic as it exists among women who are immoral because they earn only $3.00 a week, instead of $3.12, says the New York Sun, the court is apparently to be educated in another phase of the same subject. The General Federation of Women's Clubs was informed on Tuesday as to the antecedents of several practitioners of the oldest profession that:

"Some of them are from homes such as yours—their fathers are merchants, real estate agents and managers of large business enterprises.

"One that we have interviewed is the daughter of a minister.

"Some are employed in department stores and offices.

"They are stenographers, cashiers, ticket sellers and do not work, but live at home in idleness.

"Their fathers own yachts and automobiles.

"Some are in the grammar schools, some in high school."

And some call the young men of their home village "boobs." Thus the situation grows confused. A year ago the minimum wage would have wiped out the evil; today we must abolish automobiles, yachts, "hobbies," even living at home, apparently.

The matter is not so simple as some earnest reformers are anxious to have us believe.

HOME, SWEET HOME

It was midnight. The burglar had entered the house as quietly as possible, but his shoes were not padded and they made a little noise. He had just reached the door of the bedroom when he heard some one moving in the bed as if about to get up and he paused. The sound of a woman's voice floated to his ears.

"If you don't take your boots off when you come into this house," it said, "there's going to be trouble and a whole lot of it. Here it's been raining for three hours, and you dare to tramp over my carpets with your mud."

A STOMACH TONIC

There is a form of indigestion called "atonic" dyspepsia. Atonic means "lack of tone." It is probably the most common form of indigestion but not much is heard about it because people are inclined to group all forms of dyspepsia as "stomach trouble" and the doctors let it go at that.

Lack of tone in the digestive organs means that the stomach is no longer able to do its work as nature intended. The nerves that control it are weak. The glands that supply the digestive fluids are not working properly. Gas on the stomach, sour risings in the throat and constipation result. The cause of the trouble is thin blood. Stomach, nerves and glands are all dependent on the blood and when it gets thin and watery they are at once weakened. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood and the first response from the stomach is a better appetite, freedom from distress after eating and an increase in ambition and energy generally. Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a stomach tonic and see how your general health improves.

A diet book, "What to Eat and How to Eat" will be sent free on request by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Every druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Lougher, and other agents in the various communities to lecture on the causes of crime and to effect local organizations tending to the extension department.—From The Survey.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

"The Kissing Cup," one of the finest of racing reel plays, will be shown at the B. F. Keith theatre today and tomorrow, and should push interest up to a keen pitch. On Wednesday evening to the fact that the high school graduation exercises will be held in the evening, no performances will be given. So a shorter time than usual will be allowed to those of sensational films to take in this real feature.

"The Kissing Cup" was built from a scenario written by a man who knows the racing game from first to last, and who was in a position to have motion photographs taken of practically all of the noted running horses, with their jockeys in America. He has built around the film a story of compelling interest, and one which is literally crammed with thrills. In addition to this there will be the striking two-reel feature, "Convicted 113," an amazing story of a reformed criminal, who dismisses from his life the only woman he ever loved, in order that she may be saved the taint of being a criminal's wife. As a story of redemption it stands forth as one of the most wonderful ever put on the stage.

Two comedy pictures will also be shown. On Thursday afternoon, and continuing through the remainder of the week "Sealed Orders" a magnificent military picture in six reels, will be shown. Hundreds of men have brought the picture to the theatre, and the story is one which is full of thrills from beginning to end. It is a wonderful picture, because the participants have succeeded in getting together scenes which seem practically impossible for anybody to bring into a picture. The cavalry charge, the hand to hand fighting, the realistic bombardment of a town are some of the things which will make "Sealed Orders" one of the best of the season. During the week Samuel W. Taylor will continue the soloist. Admission is 10 cents to the theatre, with a few seats reserved at 15 cents, and children being admitted for five cents. Performances begin at 2 and 7.15 p. m.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

This week marks the close of the season at the Merrimack Square theatre and for the concluding offering Charles Barron has selected a strong attraction in the wonderful play, "Lena Rivers," a play taken from Mary J. Holmes' novel of the same name. It is expected that each evening a large number will be marked by large numbers who will attend for the purpose of giving the players an enthusiastic greeting and a hearty welcome. The play is a story of "Good Bye Night," which is a house is sure to attend. If you are anxious to assure yourself of seats for the play, it is well to order your tickets in advance. Remember that this theatre is always cool and comfortable, no matter what the weather conditions are for within the theatre, and cooler than the street in hot weather, made possible by the use of electric fans, a new ventilating system and several other improvements.

THE OWL THEATRE

Thomas W. Ross is getting to be a great favorite in Lowell. He will be seen as the star in "Checkers," to be shown at the Owl today and tomorrow. The A. S. Feature Corporation, the producers of "Checkers," is a great six-part feature photo-play staged under the personal direction of the famous American director of playright and the producer of the scenario upon which the production is based was prepared by Lawrence M. Gill and Eustache Hale Ball. Supporting Mr. Ross is a great cast of Broadway favorites, and the production has been made without consideration of expenses, hundreds of actors appearing in the great racing and betting scenes. It will be shown in six great parts, and over 200 scenes, the humor and the acting of the star himself, make a great, appealing picture for all classes and conditions of life, men, women and children. Although this picture has had one successful showing in this city, requests were so numerous that the management of the Owl decided to repeat it "Checkers" as a book and play has delighted hundreds of thousands as a moving picture it brings delight to millions. Mr. Ross' peculiar type of acting "sticks out" in every one of his big scenes. It is replete with human interest, full of thrilling situations in six great parts and novel scenes and 100 actual "punches" besides "Checkers," six other reels of regular releases have been booked, making a show of five reels. A Keystone entitled "A Missing Bride," will be on the program. "Forest Vanities," a two part drama, will be shown, also "In the Spider's Web" and "Beyond the City" and another Jack Dalton picture as usual. The other feature is a strong picture entitled "Old Hollab" a story of a wrong that was righted. There are three comedies, and Bob Fournier will sing two pleasing songs at each showing.

As an added attraction we have secured from the Brunswick-Balke Co. the celebrated makers of the best in the bowling and pool line, a series of pictures showing their workshops, their tables and alleys are made. The first we will show is the making of the alleys from the picture which was used in the making of the finished product. The other reel is a comedy bowling match of two very fat men, what they don't do on the alleys never happened.

SHOT PARIS PHILANTHROPIST

PARIS, June 22.—An old man, Francois Prudhon, was the assailant of Dr. Henri De Rothschild, writer and philanthropist, who was shot Saturday night in front of a boulevard cafe. Questioned yesterday by the examining magistrate, Prudhon repeated his statement that Dr. De Rothschild's scheme for supplying pure milk to the poor had driven him out of business. He now regretted his act, but he explained, at the time his feelings overcame him when he saw the man to whom he attributed his misfortunes.

The inquiries of the police show that the old man was subject to delusions. He rarely left his home for fear of lunatic forces.

The buildings, all four story brick structures are filled with offices and small shops and they suffered from smoke but the principal loss was in the cellar from fire and water.

Fine Showing at the Exhibition of Work in the Vocational School

The exhibit at the vocational school showing the work of the boys' departments at the Mann and Old Bartlett schools attracted a great many visitors Saturday afternoon and was highly creditable to the school.

The electric department showed a great variety of work in the line of wiring and equipment which only an expert could understand.

Similarly in the automobile repairing department there were to be seen various parts of automobiles upon which the students were working, their duty being to take the parts asunder and put them together again or to repair breaks or any defect that might occur in the mechanism. Perhaps it was in the machine shop work that the products of the school were shown to the best advantage. Here were a great many articles actually made by the pupils, including lathes and different other pieces of machinery. The most important exhibit, however, were two cycle gasoline engines for motor boats, five or six horse power each. These engines attracted much attention and were admired by many practical machinists who visited the school.

In the carpentry department were seen many articles constructed by the student, such as screens, cabinets, desks, boxes, step ladders and many others calculated to train the young men in the different operations of carpentry.

Principal Fisher was congratulated upon the fine showing made and the state officials are well pleased with the results attained.

SPILLANE IS SENTENCED

Judge Enright Imposed Term of
One Year in Stabbing Case—
Defendant Appealed

Michael Spillane was sentenced to one year in the house of correction by Judge Enright in police court today for assault with a dangerous weapon upon John J. Moloney, a barber residing at 125 Pleasant street. Through his attorney, J. Joseph O'Connor, he appealed and was held in the sum of $300 for his appearance in superior court.

The assault occurred on June 4th, while Mr. Moloney was proceeding to his home about 11.10 o'clock in the evening. He was taken to St. John's hospital and was released about a few days ago, the case having been continued twice so that he could testify. In court today the complainant told of being stopped by Mr. Spillane near the corner of Pond and Concord streets and when he refused to talk to him, the defendant followed him for about 100 yards and then struck him in the side. Mr. Moloney said that he was not aware that he had been stabbed until he had walked several yards and then he felt the blood flowing from his wound. He identified Mr. Spillane as the man who committed the assault.

Patrolman Simon Lane testified that he went to the prisoner's house about 2.30 o'clock on the morning after Mr. Moloney was attacked and found a jack-knife covered with blood on the kitchen table. He woke Mr. Spillane and asked him about the matter but defendant denied any knowledge of it. The stained knife was presented as evidence. Sergt. McCloskey, who assisted the former witness in making the arrest, corroborated his statements. Joseph Sharkey told the court that he heard Messrs. Moloney and Spillane disputing on Concord street and said that the former was requesting the defendant to go away and let him alone.

Dr. Loughran was summoned to testify to the extent of the complainant's injuries, but he arrived late and after a short delay over the local court's jurisdiction in the case the aforementioned sentence was imposed. Mr. Spillane was bailed out by John J. O'Connell.

Larceny Cases

Costas Samaras pleaded not guilty to the larceny of $34 from a Greek Newspaper Co., but as the evidence presented was not sufficient to satisfy the court of his guilt the case was continued till tomorrow morning for further consideration.

It seems that Samaras was engaged to deliver newspapers in the upper Market street district and the government contends that he collected money for these papers which he never turned over to the company. However, there was no evidence presented to this effect, but the complainant said he could bring in more witnesses and he was held in the sum of $200 for his appearance tomorrow.

Walter Hayes, alias Francis Keefe, the young man who was arrested by Patrolman Kennedy on Church street last Saturday forenoon, after stealing a pocketbook and a ring from Rose Zabalowski, was ordered committed to the house of correction for four months.

Deputy Downey produced a letter from the police department of Manchester, N. H., which showed that the defendant had been arrested many times in the Queen city.

According to the evidence presented in court today Hayes went into a house on Church street, pretending to sell oil and while the woman was busy washing the floor picked the purse containing $34 and a ring from the table. He pleaded guilty but asked for an opportunity to do better as he had a wife ill in New Hampshire. The court ordered that the case be continued for one month for sentence. The other two men and wife, were given suspended sentences of three months in jail.

Thirteen first offenders were arrested over Sunday and after signing the card were released. Two second offenders were fined $6 each and one third timer paid a fine of $15.

UNDERTAKER HEALEY'S AUTO

Undertaker George W. Healey is the first undertaker in the city to purchase a commercial auto to be used in his business. It is a Buick, 22 horse power and was constructed to meet the requirements of his business, being used for the first time Saturday.

MAN WAS FOUND DYING

AND TAKEN TO THE POLICE STATION—TWO OTHER ACCIDENTS YESTERDAY

While patrolling his beat late Saturday night, Officer Drewett found a man named Clifford Coss, aged 32 years, of 2 in the rear of 600 Middlesex street, lying near his home in a very weak condition. The ambulance was summoned and the man was removed to the Chalmers street hospital where he died a short time after. It was stated at the hospital that he was suffering from lack of food and care when he arrived at the institution. Coss leaves a father, with whom he lived, and other relatives legged, they were indulging in alcoholic liquors and committing a general disturbance. One of the men denied the charge in court this forenoon while the other man and the woman entered pleas of guilty.

The man who pleaded not guilty stated that he had six children depending upon him for support and his case was continued for one month for sentence. The other two men and wife, were given suspended sentences of three months in jail.

At one time he worked in a second-hand store on Middlesex street.

Man Broke Leg

While jumping from a boat to the shore of the Merrimack river yesterday afternoon, Joseph F. Sears of 171 Broadway, landed on a rock, sustaining a fracture of the leg. Mr. Sears had attended the outing of the Lowell Motor club and was crossing the river in a boat to board an electric car for Lowell when the accident occurred. The ambulance was called and he was removed to the Lowell hospital for treatment.

Frank Wells of 27 Stackpole street fell to the platform while getting on a train at Ayer yesterday afternoon and was slightly cut and bruised. His condition is not serious.

LOWELL MAN'S BROTHER KILLED AT NO. READING

Charles S. Harris Shot by His Brother James After a Quarrel Over Chopping Wood—Slayer Surrendered—Brothers of Rev. Benjamin Harris

NORTH READING, June 22.—James Harris, aged 55, a farmer and special policeman, shot and killed his brother, Charles S. Harris, 56, yesterday morning in the kitchen of the house on Chestnut street where the bachelor brothers have lived a lonely life for a score of years.

The news of the tragedy was first told by James Harris himself, when leaving his house about 12:15, he met Edward Coran, a friend, who was on his way to call on the Harris brothers. Harris told Coran that he had shot his brother. He then walked to the home of Constable Thomas Crosswell, but that official was already on his way to the scene of the tragedy, having been summoned by a neighbor's telephone.

James then kept on to the office of Dr. George W. Averell, asking him to come to the Harris house at once and repeating his confession. He then returned home, where Constable Crosswell was in charge. His brother was dead. Constable Crosswell notified the state police and Dr. Roscoe D. Perley of Melrose, the medical examiner.

Quarreled for Long Time

To the constable and other town officials, James said he and his brother had had trouble for years and had not spoken for a long time except to quarrel. He claimed the shooting yesterday was done in self-defense.

James' story is that yesterday he found Charles chopping wood at the block in the yard. He told him to desist and Charles refused. A dispute ensued and both grew excited and angry. Charles raised the axe and came toward James, uttering threats of violence. The elder retreated to the kitchen. The elder retreated to the kitchen, Charles following him with the axe.

Once within the house James drew his revolver and struck his brother, hitting him with the butt of the weapon on the forehead, bruising on the head of the dead man bearing out this statement.

James Discharges Revolver

Charles continued to advance. Then James fired three or four shots, striking his brother's legs and the marks of imbedded bullets in the kitchen walls seem to corroborate this. Then the men clinched, and in the struggle another shot was fired, entering the right breast, penetrating the diaphragm and the liver and lodging in the back.

The wounded man fell and James walked out of the house to seek help and give himself up. It was then he encountered Coran, who with his family was spending the day at Mrs. Harris's, a neighbor, and who was about to call on the brothers.

In response to the call of Constable Crosswell, State Officer Silas P. Smith arrived within an hour, and Dr. Perley came later and performed an autopsy. His verdict is death from internal hemorrhage caused by a bullet wound.

James Harris was taken to the Reading police station, where he will spend the night.

Brothers of Lowell Clergymen

Charles S. Harris, the victim, was a shoemaker and worked in a building in the yard near the farmhouse. The two brothers have been residents of North Reading about 40 years. Their mother died 25 years ago. For 10 years they have lived alone in the Chestnut-street house, James conducting the farm.

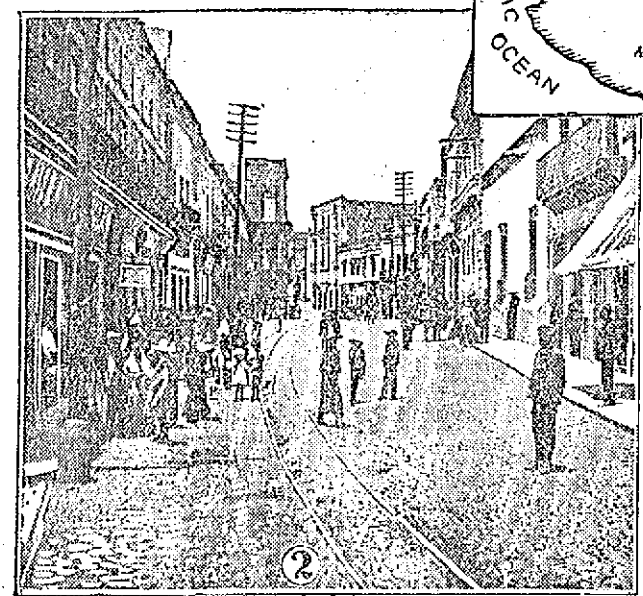

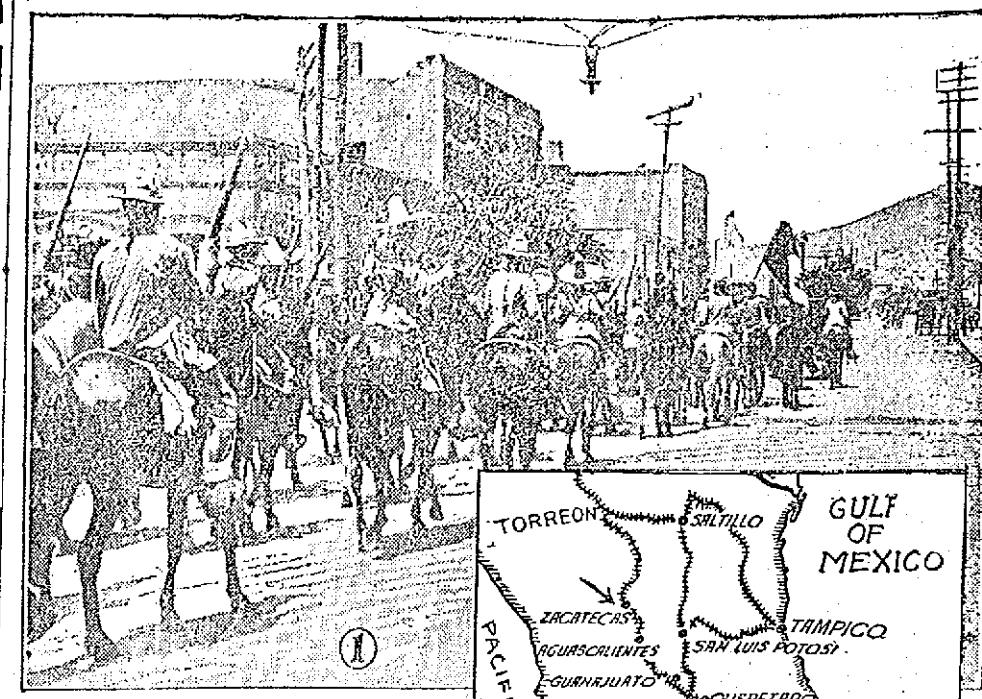

Rev. Benjamin Harris of Lowell is a brother. Both brothers spent Saturday evening in Lawrence. To those who gathered at the Harris house yesterday afternoon and to the officers James seemed not to realize the gravity of his act, the only time he exhibited any emotion being when he bade good-bye to his sister before starting with Constable Crosswell for Reading.

FORMAL CHARGE OF MURDER MADE AGAINST JAMES HARRIS TODAY

WOBURN, June 22.—A formal charge of murder was made in the district court here today against James Harris, who is alleged to have shot and killed his brother, Charles, at their home in North Reading yesterday. By agreement of counsel the case was continued until June 27 for a hearing and Harris was committed without bail to the Middlesex county jail at East Cambridge.

Harris surrendered to the police yesterday, telling them that he had shot his brother in self-defense. He said that Charles attacked him with an axe and that he fired five shots into the floor before firing at his brother. The quarrel arose over the disposition of timber on a wood lot which they owned jointly. An inspection of the premises disclosed five bullet holes in the floor and an axe near the dead man's body.

GENERAL VILLA ORDERS ADVANCE OF REBEL TROOPS ON ZACATECAS WHERE A DESPERATE BATTLE IS EXPECTED

1-VILLA'S TROOPS OFF FOR ZACATECAS-2-MERCED STREET, ZACATECAS-3-MAP SHOWING OBJECTIVE POINT OF REBELS.

TORREON, June 22.—General Villa, who showed his teeth to Carranza and is now in undisputed sway of the federal troops in northern and central Mexico, has given orders to push toward Zacatecas, where the federales expect to make a desperate stand. If the peace negotiations end and war with Mexico on the part of the United States ensues it is likely that Villa will push on toward Vera Cruz or Tampico with a part of his army to fight with the federales against the Americans.

CHARLES LYONS

Said to be From Lowell
Drowned at Suncook,
N. H.

Late yesterday afternoon word reached this city that Charles A. Lyons, aged 53 years, who claimed Lowell as his home city, was drowned in the Suncook river at Suncook, N. H., early Sunday morning. According to the story told the Suncook police the drowned man and a brother went to sleep on the bank of the river Saturday night and sometime before morning Charles rolled from his sleeping place into the water. When the body was found only the head was submerged. An attempt to locate relatives of the dead man in this city brought to light the fact that a Charles Lyons formerly lived near the Chelmsford line and it is believed he is the man.

PUT TO DEATH

Tool of "Black Hand"
Syndicate Executed at
Sing Sing Today

OSSINING, N. Y., June 22.—Peter Rebacci, a 19-year-old Italian, a tool of a "black hand" syndicate in Westchester county, was put to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison today for the murder of Tony Marro, of White Plains. Rebacci had figured in other crimes and on his promise to expose the workings of the murder syndicate Governor Glynn granted him a six months' reprieve. His confession will be used at the trial of four other members of the syndicate.

The electrocution today was conducted by E. B. Currier of Massachusetts in the absence of E. F. Davis, the state electrician, who is ill at his home at Corning. This is the first execution by electricity in this state Davis has missed. He has executed 121 criminals.

Friday, July 3rd, is "Quarter Day" at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank.

JILTED MAN SHOT GIRL

GARDNER, June 22.—Miss Wanda Rakowski, aged 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Rakowski of 430 Pleasant street, was shot through the body at 12:15 yesterday morning by a man who, aged 20, a boarder in her home. The bullet passed through her left arm was deflected by the left shoulder blade and was removed by Dr. J. B. Donnelly.

The shooting took place in a room occupied by the girl, Jost, who had the room across the hallway, then turned the weapon upon himself and fired three bullets into his head, one behind the left ear, one in his jaw and the third in the fleshy part of his neck. He was found unconscious on the floor and with the girl was taken to the Henry Hayward Memorial hospital.

At the hospital last night it was reported that the girl would probably recover. Jost, however, is in a serious condition, but an effort will be made to find the bullets in his head by the X-ray.

According to the parents of the girl, the cause of the shooting is ascribed to jealousy. Jost was anxious to marry Miss Rakowski but the young woman spurned his advances. They were both employed in a toy factory on Mill st. and Jost, for the past three months, boarded with the Rakowski family.

DELIGHTFUL LAWN PARTY
A delightful lawn party was held Saturday afternoon at the grounds of Mrs. C. R. Hunter, 815 Princeton street, under the auspices of the Dames of Bland and the program included concert numbers by the Middlesex County Training School and general dancing of the green. The grounds were prettily decorated and booths and tables were erected here and there and all did a prosperous business. The officers in charge were as follows:

Mrs. C. F. Hunter, in general charge, assisted by Mrs. Esther Whitaker, Mrs. Smith, Miss Bertrand, Mrs. Samuel Arnold, Miss Mildred Perkins, Miss Ruth Hunter, Miss Florence Hunter, Miss Nellie Whitaker and Miss Lillian Whitaker. Sir knights assisting: Messrs. Elmer D. Robinson, William H. Saunders, Arthur Delong and Harry Merrill. Ice cream booth: Misses Nellie Whitaker and Florence Hunter. Tonic booth: Misses Ruth Hunter, Irene McDonald and Mildred Perkins.

Supper committee: Mrs. Elmer D. Robinson, Mrs. Fred Bailey and Mrs. Samuel Arnold.

HELD AN IDEAL OUTING

Hamilton and Other Industrial Concerns Joined in Day's Outing at Nantasket Beach

In the good old summertime there are many outings of all degrees of social success; there are good outings, better outings and best outings. At the head of the list is the annual outing of the Hamilton Manufacturing Co. of this city, which this year was held jointly with the Merrimack Utilization Co. of Lowell, the Sharp Manufacturing Co. of New Bedford and the Mason Machine Co. of Taunton. Those who took part in the affair, to the number of about 200, were the superintendents, overseers, office clerks and others connected officially with the various companies. All the heads of departments were present. The joint outing is the idea of Mr. Arthur R. Sharp, who wishes by this means to keep in personal touch with these directing the many allied industries. At this outing a personal gift of $50 in gold is given to the superintendent of the Merrimack Utilization Co. for efficiency during the year. For the past two years the prize has come to the Hamilton Co. but this year it went to an employee of the Sharp Co. in New Bedford.

The happy representatives of the Hamilton Co. met in Merrimack square on Saturday at 5:15 and took a special car to Rowe's wharf, where they were joined by representatives of the other industries. The larger crowd then took the boat to Nantasket beach and went to the beautiful Villa Napoli on the heights above the sea. Here the crowd formed two by two and each man was presented to Mr. Sharp.

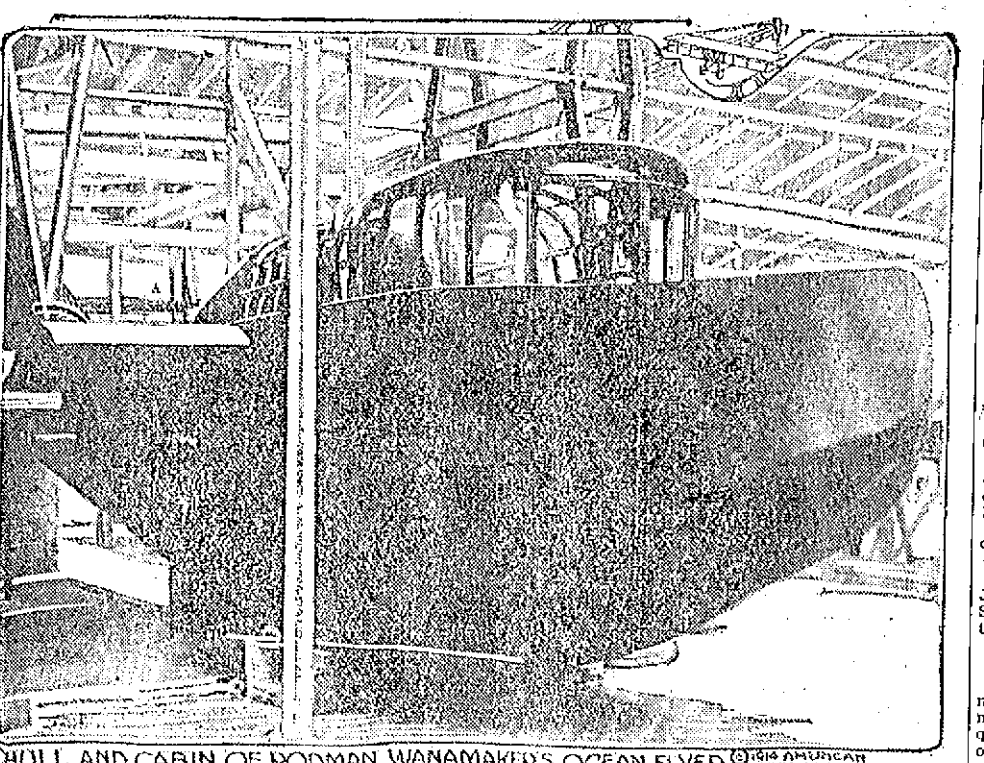

Shortly after their arrival all sat down to a splendid banquet which was as remarkable for quality as for quantity—a fact which the party with appetites well sharpened appreciated. During the banquet there was a fine entertainment by the resident amusement troupe, some pretty members of which had a more or less magnetic attraction for a few of the Lowell men—no names mentioned.

At the conclusion of the banquet a social time was enjoyed and several brief speeches were made. Thomas S. Pendergast presided, and made many pertinent introductions, the humor of which added not a little to the enjoyment. When Mr. Arthur R. Sharp was introduced as the first speaker, the crowd rose and gave three cheers, winding up with the spirited singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Mr. Sharp expressed his delight at being present and announced that the winner of the prize for efficiency was Henry Denoyer of the Sharp Co. New Bedford.

Col. Peter H. Corr of Taunton, chairman of the Massachusetts commission on the Panama canal, invited those present to hold their next outing at San Francisco, promising them all means of good times.

Mr. Stephen C. Lowe of the John Hetherington Machine Manufacturing Co. expressed his love for all outings and all good fellows, especially Arthur Sharp. He said that outings such as that of the allied industries are a great way towards promoting good business relations and cooperative efficiency.

WANAMAKER SEAPLANE WILL TRY ATLANTIC FLIGHT IN JULY, GUIDED BY SHIP FLAGS

HULL AND CABIN OF RODMAN WANAMAKER'S OCEAN FLYER

This is the Rodman Wanamaker seaplane with which Lieutenant Porto will try to cross the Atlantic probably about the middle of July. It shows the hull of the hydroaeroplane and a part of the cabin. It was planned to hold the first trial flight of the machine at Hammondsport, N. Y., where it was constructed by Curtiss, on June 22. Lieutenant Porto has announced that he will fly less than 500 feet above the sea. He will not have any wireless apparatus, because he wants to have weight. He will be guided by flags on passing ships.

VOWS OF POVERTY STAND

U. S. Supreme Court Reverses Decision of the Circuit Court Against Catholic Orders

STILL LIVE

Governor Walsh said that he anticipated that the railroad committee would report a bill permitting the state to retain control of the stock in the Boston & Maine railroad company, and that the Boston & Maine would be the Boston & Maine Railroad Co., and that before the week is out legislation would be enacted resulting in the immediate separation of the two systems.

The governor's statement was made at a conference with Senator Fisher and Representative Moorfield Storey, chairman of the railroad committee, New Haven and Henry L. Higgins, a banker of this city.

Referring to a Washington despatch quoting President Wilson as saying that the federal suit would be brought against the New Haven company, he said there was no action by the Massachusetts legislature before July 15, Governor Walsh said he had known it all along and that he had correspondence from the federal government.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vigeant of 43 Riverside street, this city, their two daughters, Regina and Annette, as well as their son, Napoleon, and niece, Miss Anita Boualdi, had a narrow escape from death yesterday afternoon in an automobile accident which occurred on the Lowell road two miles beyond Nashua. N. H. Fortunately no one was injured, but the machine was badly damaged. Mr. Vigeant when seen this morning said he could not explain how the accident happened.

To a Sun reporter Mr. Vigeant told the following story in relation to the accident: "Yesterday afternoon we were going to Manchester, N. H., in my familar 'touring car' and my son, Napoleon, a careful chauffeur, was at the wheel. In the machine also were my wife, my two daughters, Regina and Annette, and my niece, Miss Anita Boualdi, of Dracont street. We were going at a rate of about 15 miles an hour, and following the road.

"When we reached a spot about two miles beyond Nashua, N. H., an Overland touring car, owned and operated by Walter L. Jacobs of Manchester, N. H., came along at the rate of 30 miles an hour. At a glance I saw a collision was inevitable and I shouted, at the same time preparing to jump. My son Napoleon made a short turn to the right, while the driver of the other car turned out to swing to the left. In the other automobile were five passengers, mostly women, and they were all panic stricken. Despite the efforts of the chauffeurs from Overland to get their car into the side of my machine and it was a really miraculous that the automobiles did not turn turtle. Both cars were brought to a full stop and upon investigation we found that my machine had been struck on the left side, and both wheels on the left side were damaged. The wheels were so badly mangled that they were torn from their sockets and the mud-guard as well as running board were badly damaged. The other car suffered only minor damage.

"Mr. Vigeant said the engine of his car was in good running order and the party were able to drive to Nashua, where the auto was left for repairs, and then the party returned to Lowell

By JOHN J. BREEN.

IN the occupation of Vera Cruz by American forces and the frequent clashes on the border the signal corps of the United States army played an important part. All nations realize that the success of important military operations mainly depends upon the rapid transmission of orders and information of war. History records many battles lost by superior trained forces due to failures in the prompt transmission of orders. The day of the dashing, mud besprinkled, but highly heroic aid, falling exhausted at his commander's feet as he hands in a report of danger to some particular part of the army, is a thing of the past.

The old familiar picture of the commanding general, surrounded by his staff, observing from a hill or a knoll a furious battle raging practically at his feet or setting off through a hail of bullets and bursting shells to the aid and encouragement of a unit of his army hard pressed will never occur again in time of war. In the wars of the present and future the commanding general will be found fifteen or twenty miles from the scene of carnage, comfortably ensconced in a farmhouse, seated in front of a map dotted with pins designated with the names of corps, brigades, divisions, etc., and calmly playing the exciting game of chess, in which the lives of hundreds of thousands of his fellow countrymen are involved.

His task, while not so wearing and tearing physically, will be as strained as under the old methods. He will spend hour after hour before his map, going for perhaps twenty-four or forty-eight hours without sleep. But he will be away from the confusing roar of big guns and surrounded by utter quiet, conducive to calm thinking. Even the telegraph office will be removed from his hearing in an adjacent room and only his closest aids allowed in his presence.

Wire Controlled Army.

This revolution of the art of warfare

has been brought about by the telegraph, the wireless and the telephone and the up to date methods of installing the wires as rapidly as the army can move.

No more striking case of the value of rapid communication of information and orders can be cited than that of the battle of Mukden during the Russo-Japanese war. Field Marshal Oyama controlled his entire force by wire from his headquarters in a farmhouse twelve miles to the rear of the fighting line, beyond even the noise of the thundering big guns.

As an army moves into hostile territory today its commander must be kept in constant communication with his base and the seat of government by lines of information. If they exist the ordinary telegraph or telephone lines of the country will be seized and utilized for this purpose. If such do not exist, field lines will be rapidly laid on the ground as fast as the army moves.

When deployment is made the division commander will require his signal troops to keep in touch with his brigade commanders and with his artillery. This calls for rapid work of laying lines.

Feats of the Buzzer.

The "buzzer" is a new development of the military lines of information. It is a composite telegraph and telephone, placed in a small portable case the size of the ordinary hand camera. When used as a telegraph instrument the buzzer emits a buzzing sound like that of a wireless apparatus in marked contrast to the sharp metallic click of the ordinary land telegraph set of instruments. A person accustomed to the latter set, however, has no difficulty in manipulating the buzzer. The battery for the buzzer is supplied with dry cells, included in the case.

Some remarkable feats are told of the capability of the buzzer to work under adverse circumstances. Authentic instances are cited by army officers of these sets being utilized along three miles of ordinary barb wire fence and for a distance of a quarter of a mile of railroad track. One instance is even told of the buzzer being worked where a break of five feet in the circuit was made for experimental purposes and messages transmitted across the intervening space without serious difficulty. With an ordinary land set of instruments operation where even a loose connection occurs is an impossibility.

Possibly the most interesting instance was that tried and successfully carried out at the signal school at Fort Leavenworth. Fifteen officers joined hands, the first grasping the end of a wire connected with a buzzer set and the last officer holding the end of a wire being reeled off along the ground from a moving wagon. In the wagon, at the other end of the wire being reeled off, was another officer with a buzzer set, sending messages through the entire length of wire and the bodies of the fifteen officers.

One sunshiny morning in the divisional camp at San Antonio, Tex., two privates of the signal corps were amusing themselves and a crowd of enlisted men in a company street of an infantry regiment by heliographing rather broad army witticisms with the burnished bottoms of dishpans. A veteran infantry sergeant stood watching the fun.

"Them divvies," he said with a grin. "I guess if one of 'em got out in the desert with nothin' but a stray coyote he'd signal by makin' the coyote wave its tail in Morse code."

And any one who watches the signal corps at work will be inclined to agree with the sergeant.

Roosevelt Sees Giraffe He Killed

Photos © 1914, by American Press Association.

Upper—Colonel Roosevelt from late picture. Lower—Colonel Roosevelt pointing to giraffe he killed.

ONE of the pleasantest experiences Colonel Roosevelt had on his return from South America was his visit to Washington, where he viewed the stuffed specimens of some of the big game which fell before his mighty gun on his South African trip. He didn't attempt to conceal his "delight."

The first appointment on the program for the colonel's half day at the capital was a visit to the Smithsonian Institution, and the automobile was sent at a smart pace in that direction.

With Dr. Merriam at the wheel, the big car rolled rapidly up through the Smithsonian grounds under the four splendid trees left of those planted three-quarters of a century ago by Andrew Jackson Downing, many of which were felled by Mr. Roosevelt's orders when he was president. At the main mouth door of the new national museum a large crowd stood waiting. Halfway down the granite steps stood a platoon of newspaper photographers and moving picture men.

These the colonel faced unflinchingly. Quickly realizing the need for "business," he turned, told a joke to Dr. Merriam, gestured and bowed to the cheering crowd, and his lips were seen to be moving steadily as he advanced up the steps. Midway he was halted by newspaper men, who told him of the death of his old friend Jacob Lills, and he stopped to dictate in measured and chosen words a tribute which was hurried at once to the wires for the press.

"Is he dead?" Mr. Roosevelt exclaimed as he heard the news. "I can't begin to tell you how shocked I am by that news. He was all through my life my friend. No greater patriot ever lived in his adopted land. I looked to him for counsel constantly, and he never failed me."

Then he hurried on up into the rotunda of the museum and into the west wing, the crowd rushing pell-mell after him. In the crowd were old men, women and children, many of them sightseers from out of town.

The first group he visited was that of the rhinoceros family.

"Ah, by George!" exclaimed the colonel when his eye caught it. "That is great."

Waving his hat over his head, he shouted: "Cherrie and Miller, where are you? Come here—see this!"

Leo Miller and George Cherrie, naturalists, who were with him on the South American trip, pushed through the crowd to where the colonel stood smiling as he studied the group.

"I remember just as well as if it were now, this moment, when I got that big bull," said the colonel to Dr. Merriam. "Kermit said to wait and get a better chance, but I said I must fire, and I did, and I got him."

Dr. Merriam gave the colonel an explanation of the newer methods of taxidermy used by the museum experts in mounting the colonel's specimens.

"It is wonderful," came the reply. "The best I have ever seen. And, see there, he has got the red dirt on the horns and snout. It is always there, and I was afraid the taxidermist would not remember. The pose of the head of that calf is fine—most lifelike. It is the same with the adults. The bull would rarely hold his head up like that unless he sniffed some danger. That's all right as it is, with that understanding."

"I am amazed," he said to Dr. Merriam, "to find that these specimens have been so well mounted. There lions are fine. But they are all in the trees. Oh, no; there is one on the rump of that cow. That's right, that's right. They perch there to eat the small flies that come up from the sand on the legs of the beasts. That is well done—by George, that is well done!"

Later Mr. Roosevelt pointed with considerable pride to a giraffe which he had killed on the South African trip. There always was a crowd of interested listeners, and the colonel's face glowed with pride as he answered questions and told of the stirring incidents surrounding the shooting of this animal. ## FINANCIERS QUAIL BEFORE "SHOW ME" JOE FOLK

AS counsel to the interstate commerce commission former Governor Joseph W. Folk of Missouri, in his conduct of the probe into the affairs of the New Haven railroad, exhibited a great deal of the combative spirit that gained him national fame when he sent the St. Louis board to jail. He entered the investigation with the zest that characterizes everything that he tackles, with the result that there were startling revelations of the mismanagement of the road, and the public got an enlightening idea of some of the methods of high finance.

It will be recalled that Mr. Folk, as circuit attorney of St. Louis, was the central figure in the most remarkable prosecution of political knavery since the breaking up of the notorious Tweed ring in the city of New York. His election was against his protest, but once elected he discharged his duties against still stronger protests from the party leaders who put him in nomination. Democratic and Republican corruptionists were all the same to him and were prosecuted without discrimination as to party affiliations.

One afternoon Mr. Folk was told that a large sum of money had been placed in a bank for the purpose of bribing certain officeholders to secure the passage of a street railway ordinance. An hour later Mr. Folk sent the names of nearly a hundred men to the sheriff with instructions to subpoena them for the grand jury at once.

When some of the hoodlums turned state's evidence there began the rapid procession of party leaders, millionaires and various city law makers which stirred the country and landed the fearless young lawyer in the governor's chair and made him loom big as a candidate for president.

Mr. Folk was elected to the office of circuit attorney by the stump in Republican power which swept that party out of office in St. Louis and turned over the government to the Democrats. As soon as he took office he began the investigations which resulted so disastrously to the ring. Soon after he assumed office he was approached by one of the party bosses who desired the release of one of the ward workers locked up on a criminal charge.

"I can do nothing," said Mr. Folk. "The man is guilty."

"But he helped to put you where you are," sneered the boss.

To this Mr. Folk replied that in that case the ward worker had made a mistake of judgment.

"He should not have helped to put me here," said he, "if he counted on my compounding crime. However, here I am, and as long as I stay here I am going to punish rascals."

tures generally are interspersed with interesting anecdotes. One of the stories Mr. Folk delights to tell of himself is the following:

At a small town where he was killed to speak a party man named Siddons had been scheduled to act as presiding officer. He felt the importance and dignity of the occasion keenly, but without knowing very much to say. In opening he rambled on about national issues and the past glories of the Democratic party till finally he reached the state situation, which he promptly declared was of overwhelming importance to the people of Missouri. To work up a climax he began:

"I will ask you this question: 'Who is this man that has been named for the governorship?' I say, 'Who is Joseph W. Folk?' I repeat it, 'Who is Joseph W. Folk?'"

"Oh, thunder!" squeaked a shriveled up little man in one of the front seats. "I'll bite. Who is he anyway?"

Rev. James P. Gookin Sings First Mass at Immaculate—Graduation at St. Michael's

Rev. James P. Gookin, son of Mrs. James Gookin, 821 Rogers street, this city, sang his first mass yesterday at the Immaculate Conception church at 11 o'clock. Fr. Gookin was ordained recently at Mt. St. Mary's seminary, Emmetsburg, Md. He was born in Tewksbury but spent most of his life in Lowell where both he and the other members of his family are well known and widely respected.

Yesterday the church was crowded with relatives and friends of the young priest, and with others to whom a priest's first mass makes an especial appeal. His mother, brothers and sisters were present, including one sister who is a nun in a convent at Convent Station, N. J. The altar was massed with roses and other reasonable flowers and the musical program was particularly elaborate. Throughout the ceremony was most impressive.

Fr. Gookin's assistant in the mass was Rev. Hugh McKeown of Our Lady of the Presentation church in Brighton, formerly of St. Peter's, and the deacon and subdeacon respectively were Rev. Terence P. Loftus, O. M. I., and Rev. Patrick McConnell of St. Joseph's seminary, Baltimore.

Rev. Patrick J. Pichon, O. M. I., preached the sermon, which was an eloquent exposition of the dignity of the priesthood. The text was: "The Lord hath sworn and will not repent: Thou art a priest forever according to the order of Melchisedech." (Ps. CLXIV-4).

After dwelling on the personal traits and characteristics of Fr. Gookin, and complimenting both himself and his family on the culmination of his hopes, Fr. Pichon said:

Before the newly ordained priest proceeds to the holy sacrifice of the mass it is but fitting that we pause for a moment to contemplate his Christ-like powers, as ambassador of God in the pulpit, as judge in the tribunal of penance and as offerer of the adorable sacrifice at the altar.

As God's ambassador the priest bears a commission from Jesus Christ. "As the Father hath sent Me I also send you." "Going, therefore, teach you all nations." (John XV, 21). St. Paul says when the priest, as he is, is Christ that is exhorting by his lips: "For Christ we are ambassadors, God as if he were exhorting by us." (2 Cor. V, 20). Nay Christ identifies himself with His priests when He said to them through His Apostles: "Ite" that heareth you heareth Me, he that despiseth you despiseth Me." (St. Luke X, 16).

Truly then as St. Paul declares the priest should be received, listened to and revered "as angel from God" as Jesus Christ Himself. (Gal. IV, 14). How sublime the dignity of the priesthood considered merely as an embassy from God to man.

Concerning the power of the priest on the confessional the preacher said: God alone can forgive the sins of men, but this divine he can and did bestow on His Apostles and their successors in His one true church when he said "Receive ye the Holy Ghost whose sins you shall forgive they are forgiven them, whose sins you shall retain they are retained." Mysterious power of the priesthood. Though often we kneel before the priest in the confessional, how seldom do we reflect on the power he therein exercises in the name of Jesus Christ. Well may we marvel at the power shown by St. Peter when upon entering the temple in Jerusalem he bade the crippled man to arise and walk; well may we marvel when a word from Jesus cleanses the hideous leper and restores him to a healthy state, or when that same Jesus stood before the tomb of His friend and commanded Lazarus to come forth alive. These are acts of stupendous and supernatural power.

Yet we must not forget that acts no less great, no less stupendous are every day wrought through the instrumentality of God's priests. Before him in the confessional kneels repentant and sorrow stricken sinners. He receives them with the same tenderness that Christ of old received Mary Magdalene; he listens with patience to their self accusation and then lifting his hand in the name and by the authority of Jesus Christ he speaks over them the mystic words of absolution: "I absolve thee from thy sins in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

No sooner does this sentence of forgiveness and mercy fall from the lips of the priest on earth than it is ratified in heaven. "Whosoever shall loose upon earth, shall be loosed also in heaven." The chains of sin are broken, the foul, moral leprosy is cleansed, and the soul is raised from the grave of sin to the life of God's grace; it is restored once more to the love and friendship of Jesus Christ. How wonderful and how consoling is the supernatural power of the priest exercised in the secret precincts of the confessional.

But what shall we say of the priest as he stands at the altar engaged in the holiest, the sublimest act that it is in the power of any human being to accomplish—changing bread and wine into the body and blood of Christ, and renewing in an unbloody manner the sacrifice of Christ's life on the cross. Today our minds naturally revert to the first mass that was ever offered on this earth. Behold Christ on that first Holy Thursday night sitting at the banquet table surrounded by His 12 apostles. What a sad and sorrowful occasion was that for the world's redeemer. The shadows of Calvary were closing deeper and thicker upon him, while His own chosen people were without clamoring for His blood and all the evil powers of earth and hell were plotting His ruin. Yet it was on that night (as if to show in the most striking manner possible His great love for man) that Jesus Christ performed His greatest miracle and bequeathed to the world the best gift in His power. Into His hands He took bread and wine and over them pronounced the solemn words of consecration. And as at the words, "Let there be light, and the light was made," so at the omnipotent words of Christ, "This is my body, this is my blood," instantly the substance of the bread and wine ceased to be, and in its place came the body and blood, soul and divinity of Jesus Christ. To His apostles He said, "Take ye and eat. This is my body." "Drink ye all of this. This is my blood, which shall be shed for many unto the remission of sins." Thus the first mass was offered; the first holy communion administered. Yet, more, the first ordination of God's priests took place for upon His apostles Jesus at once bestowed power to do as He had done. "Do ye this in commemoration of Me, for as often as you shall eat this bread or drink this chalice you shall show the death of the Lord until He come." (I. Cor. XI, 26).

Thus the apostles and their successors in the ministry were empowered by Christ Himself to perpetuate to us, new throughout all time, the great sacrifice of Calvary and to shed its graces, its blessings, its merits, upon every individual soul. Hence, dear brethren, when God's anointed priest, standing at this altar today, shall pronounce the solemn words first pronounced by Christ over 1900 years ago, the same stupendous miracle shall take place in this church as took place in the cenacle at Jerusalem.

When this newly ordained priest, with the authority and in the name and person of Jesus Christ, shall bend low over the bread and wine on the altar, and whisper with trembling lips the sacred and all powerful words, "This is my body, this is my blood," immediately on this altar shall come the body and blood of Jesus Christ. Yes, there in our very presence, in the hands of the priest will be that Jesus Christ, who once immolated Himself on Calvary to redeem the whole world, and who now immolates Himself on the altar for His own faithful children. Here then upon our altar is the adorable victim, Jesus Christ, to which the whole world comes, nothing to be compared; even heaven itself contains nothing greater or more holy. Here is enacted a sacrifice worthy of the great God Himself. Well could the eternal Father, looking down on the sacred and consecrated host as uplifted in the hands of His priest, exclaim: "This is by beloved son in whom I am well pleased."

O venerable and exalted dignity of the priest of God! What office can be conceived or imagined greater than that of Christ's priest? Again, I repeat in the whole range of God's creatures there is nothing to surpass their dignity and power, especially as exercised in the pulpit, in the confessional, and at the altar.

Sacred Heart Church
At the 11 o'clock mass at the Sacred Heart church yesterday the 40 hours' devotion service, which opened Friday, was brought to a close with beautiful and impressive exercises. As yesterday was also the feast of the Sacred Heart, the day was one of general observance. Solemn high mass was sung, during which a musical program of rare excellence was given by the church choir, directed by John J. Kelly, and the sanctuary choir, in charge of Rev. James T. McDermott, O. M. I. The blessed sacrament incense in a beautiful monstrance was exposed on the main altar during the three days of the devotion and was carried in a procession at the conclusion of yesterday's mass, after which it was removed to the tabernacle while the procession marched through the aisles of the church, the choir alternating in singing hymns appropriate to the occasion. Upon the return of the procession to the sanctuary, the service closed with solemn benediction of the blessed sacrament.

ST. MICHAEL'S SCHOOL
Yesterday was a very significant day for St. Michael's church, being the 30th anniversary of its dedication and the graduation day of the parochial schools. At the high mass the pastor, Rev. John J. Shaw, preached an anniversary sermon and supplemented it by remarks on Education. Diplomas were presented to the pupils of the parochial school by Fr. Shaw, as follows:

SHAMROCK IV TO MAKE USE OF BIG BALLOON JIB IN GREAT CUP RACE

The Shamrock IV is being groomed to use her immense balloon jib in the international races. Her great spread of canvas handicaps her, as the other boats will have a slight time allowance. To offset this the heavy head-rigging will be resorted to, and Skipper Burton thinks it will prove a great success.

A large attendance witnessed the entertainment given by the pupils of the Riverside grammar school Saturday afternoon and all were pleased with the program which had been carefully prepared by the teachers. The affair consisted mostly of dances.

TRIP TO VALLEY FORGE

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—Preliminary to the starting tomorrow of the pilgrimage from this city to Cambridge, Mass., over the route taken by Gen. Washington when he went to New England to take command of the Continental army in 1776, members of the American Society of the Sons of the American Revolution today visited historical places in this city and Germantown and also made a trip to Valley Forge. The visitors were the guests of the Philadelphia chapter of the society.

Tonight a banquet will be given here to commemorate the farewell dinner tendered Washington on the night before his departure to take command of the army.

Tomorrow, the 139th anniversary of Washington's departure for Cambridge the members of the society taking part in the pilgrimage will leave in automobiles for the journey.

LAWN TENNIS TOURNAMENT
PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—Three of the ten best lawn tennis players in this country are entered in the Philadelphia district championship tournament, which opens today on the courts of the Germantown Cricket club. William J. Clothier, a former intercollegiate champion and for many years ranked among the top notchers, will compete for the first time in several years. R. Norris Williams, 2d, winner of the state championship and a member of the Davis cup team last year, and Wallace F. Johnson, are also among the 60 entries.

FOR GOVERNOR OF MINNESOTA
ST. PAUL, Minn., June 22.—Congressman W. S. Hammond won the democratic nomination for governor at Minnesota's recent state wide primary election by a plurality of 569 votes over Daniel W. Lawler, corrector of unofficial returns today indicated with less than 25 precincts missing.

Next week is "Quarter Week" at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank. The bank will be closed Saturday, July 4th, it being a legal holiday.
